The Witches' Pot.
To Curb Reds, Hire Them.
Nordics on the Rampage.
The Psychic Bid.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE POT, with Macbeth's witches dancing around it, was boiling mildly, compared with the political pot in Washington. Every Democrat has his candidate, "the only one that can be elected." Slogans and catchwords are flying, much thicker than the leaves in Vallombrosa.

THOSE THAT want Gov. Ritchie, of Maryland, say:

"Get rich with Ritchie."

One Hiram Johnson enthusiast sends a beautifully printed green card, referring to the unemployment situation, and urging:

"Elect Hiram, and let him hire 'um."

FRIENDS OF Newton D. Baker quote, enthusiastically, his statement:

"Bread, more than beer, will be the great issue in 1932."

They say this slogan will bring many votes in the South. It does not want a wet Democrat, whereas the North wants one dripping. His "bread, more than beer" remark is a middle-of-the-road slogan for a wet-dry candidate.

Mr. Baker, by no means an avowed candidate, looks at you in wide-eyed surprise if you suggest it. He thinks Mr. White is entitled to Ohio's support.

MANY WORKMEN hope that before 1932 the bread question will have been solved, especially as this government has enough wheat on hand to supply bread for everybody, and farmers can supply more indefinitely. Also some workers would like to have a glass of beer with their bread, and say, brazenly:

"If that be vice, make the most of it."

HIRAM JOHNSON really and truly is no candidate, for he understands politics and knows that President Hoover will be renominated. Still, miracles have happened.

All Washington is interested in a poll taken in the Northwest, which shows Gov. Roosevelt at the head of the list in a straw vote, with former Gov. Alfred E. Smith No. 2 among all presidential candidates.

It was not to be expected that the 15,000,000 and more that voted for Gov. Smith last time would suddenly lose interest.

"PATRIOTIC CIVIC, church and labor organizations" met in the Army and Navy Club in New York City yesterday, to devise plans for "curbing reds."

There is one good plan for curbing reds and there isn't any other. That plan is to give work to men that want it, food to children that need it, relief from anxiety, harassing taxation, and uncertainty to the industrialists and business men whose enterprises provide work, prosperity and happiness.

TO "DISCOURAGE reds" or any other radical dissatisfaction, by threats, abuse or compulsion, is as foolish as trying to discourage gunpowder by throwing lighted matches into it.

THE GERMAN 'Nazis," an imitation of the Italian Fascists, are ready for the use of power, when they get it.

They will "assure Nordic dominance," whatever that may be, and with Fascist enthusiasm and thoroughness, would even go to the extent of sterilizing undersirable races, forbidding intermarriage calculated to injure the Nordic strain.

Nordic supremacy may come some time, and it may not. It did not come at Verdun, when the French, mixture of Latin and Nordic blood, held fast, and subsequently collected the Young plan money.

THE CONTRACT bridge battle rages furiously, and brings out this fact, encouraging to second, third and tenth class contract players.

There is, it seems, such a thing as a "psychological bid," based not on sound play, but on the desire to befuddle, amaze and paralyze your opponent. Poor players, that bid offhand, two of a suit, which is "a command" bid without having "tops," can explain to a raging partner that it was a "psychological" bid.

THOSE THAT make prices in Wall Street, at this moment chiefly stock gamblers, have queer notions.

When the President announced a moratorium, to avoid collapse of the CREDIT-ANSTALT in Austria, and the REICHSBANK in Germany, which would have meant general disaster, our wise men in Wall Street immediately put prices up.

Hearing that many of our best companies were threatened with bankruptcy, they took that as "a bull tip."

Yesterday they read President Hoover's message, which you will read in full this morning, and put prices down. The drop on the message was as foolish as the rise on the moratorium.

RAILROAD MEN may now sing that good old hymn, "Light In the Darkness, Sailor, Day Is at Hand," at least for a while. The Interstate Commerce Commission authorizes increased freight charges until March 31, 1933, which will amount to more than one hundred million dollars a year. Small favors thankfully received.

The arrangement will end 27 days after the inauguration of the next President. Perhaps he will extend it.

GERMANY, THROUGH Carl Melchior, assures the world

AUCTION BRIDE ASKS $15,000

"Auction brides" hit a new high today when Miss Pauline Lango, 23, of 7038 Frankstown avenue, offered to marry any respectable white man for $15,000.

'BLUEBEARD' WEEPS, BLAMES MYSTERY MEN IN MURDER

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 9.—Harry F. Powers broke down on the witness stand today and sobbed as he told the story which he hopes will clear him of the murder of Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, 50-year-old Northboro (Mass.) divorcee.

The alleged mail order Bluebeard's calm, which has stayed by him throughout the trial heretofore, left him and tears streamed down his cheeks as his wife's name came into the trial under a relentless cross-examination as court reconvened this afternoon.

Under indictment for the deaths of Mrs. Lemke, Mrs. Asta B. Eicher and the latter's three children, of Park Ridge, Ill., Powers was the first witness called this morning.

Early in his testimony, he sought to shift the blame toward two unapprehended "mystery men," Cecil Johnson and Charles Rodgers.

Powers testified that Mrs. Lemke, whom the prosecution contends was his promised bride, whom he was bringing to Clarksburg from her Massachusetts home by automobile, deserted him in Uniontown, Pa., for Johnson.

She left a note in his car, he said, telling him:

"I think it better after what happened this afternoon that we part."

This note, and another purported to have been written by Mrs. Lemke after August 3—the prosecution contends she was murdered between July 31 and August 3—were admitted as evidence.

LETTER BARRED

Another letter, dated from Fairmont, W. Va., July 6 and which Powers' attorney claims was written by Rogers, was not admitted to the court records. It read:

"Dear Pal:

"I am penning you just a few lines as I am busy packing. We are leaving here the ninth and I thought to write you and tell you Mrs. Eicher and the children are well and they look forward to that trip with great anticipation.

"You will find the enclosed letter. I am sending it to you because I know I can trust you and it contains a very important paper. Be sure to keep it for me and move the things that you sent here to Quiet Dell. Keep an eye on them as they are valuable.

"We will write again soon."

It was signed "Charles."

FAIL TO FIND PAIR

Powers, in referring to the murders, frequently has mentioned Rogers as "the man who must have done it."

Attorney J. Ed Law, Powers' council, said that repeated efforts to locate either Rogers or Johnson for subpena as witnesses have failed.

The defendant took the stand soon after the prosecution closed its case at 9:45 this morning.

He went on the stand chewing gum—and was still chewing it as his testimony was halted for the noon recess. Throughout the questioning of his attorney Powers remained calm and quiet, answer-

GIRL KILLED, ICE WRECKS AUTOS

A girl was killed today in one of the numerous skidding accidents when rain and snow combined with near-freezing temperatures made highway traffic hazardous.

She was Louise Cochran, 17, of Apollo, fatally crushed beneath the machine driven by W. W. Flitten, in which she was a passenger, after the car skidded in the Apollo road, overturned and plunged over an embankment. Flitten was uninjured.

More than 15 persons were shaken up when a Detroit-bound Greyhound bus skidded in Aliquippa, crashing into a store at 142 Station street after striking a telephone pole. No one was injured, and the passengers continued their journey in another bus.

Traffic on the William Penn highway, near Wilkinsburg, was delayed for almost three hours when an auto driven by Alex Lockhart, 7508 Ellsmere avenue, Swissvale, skidded into a pole and caused the machine of George Wagner, of 7914 Mulford street, to run into the curb. Both drivers were hurt.

Roads north, east and west of this district were reported in a dangerous condition by the Pittsburgh Motor Club.

Light snow fell in Pittsburgh early today followed by rain. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicted the rain would continue tonight and tomorrow morning.

High School Girl Killed as Car Skids

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Dec. 9.—Venetia Gribble, 17, cheer leader at Midvale High School, was killed and her mother, Mrs. Walter H. Gribble, and her twin brother, Clarence Ray Gribble, escaped with slight injuries when the coupe driven by the latter skidded on the icy Uhrichsville road and upset. Second Fordham Grid Star Hurt in Game Near Death

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(INS.)—John Szymanski, Fordham University junior injured in the Fordham-Bucknell football game, hovered near death today.

Grave fears were held that his name might be added to the list of the 40 football players who died this season.

He received head injuries and his left side was paralyzed in the fateful game into which he had gone to replace Cornelius Murphy at left tackle. Murphy died a week ago from injuries received in the same game.

It was reported Fordham would abolish football if Szymanski died but a university spokesman denied the matter had been discussed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—The Daily News, student publication at New York University, today called on the Board of Athletic Control not to offer a new contract to John F. (Chick) Meehan as head football coach, saying:

"We do not want Mr. Meehan because Mr. Meehan stands for a university policy of 'big time' football with all its corollary evils—recruiting of players, lavish entertainment of prospects, subsidization of athletes, athletic scholarships and a general drafting of students to the university for the sole purpose of playing football."

Cards Get Wilson for Grimes

'Hack' Elated Over Trade Taking Him From Cubs

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(INS.)—Hack Wilson, former National League home run king, goes to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Wilson and Bud Teachout, a left-handed pitcher, today was traded to the Cards for Burleigh Grimes, veteran spitball pitcher.

Announcement of the trade was made at the meeting of the major league magnates here by Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Cubs. No cash was involved in the deal, Hornsby said.

Wilson got into bad graces last season through failure to hit up to his 1930 standard, when he poked out 56 home runs for a new league record. His lapses from training regulations also irked Cubs' officials. Toward the end of the season he was suspended.

Grimes, who pitched and won two games for St. Louis in the 1931 world series, will be serving with his sixth National League club when he joins the Cubs. He started with Pittsburgh and has pitched for New York, Boston, Brooklyn and St. Louis. He still ranks as one of the most capable pitchers in baseball.

Teachout, a promising young pitcher, has been on the Cubs' staff for several seasons, but never attained rank as a regular.

'Great,' Says Wilson, Of Deal; Raps Rajah

"That's great!—And thanks to the Sun-Telegraph for telling me the good news!"

So shouted Lewis R. (Hack) Wilson over the telephone this afternoon from his home in Martinsburg, W. Va., when this paper

DEMOCRAT BATTLE ON PLAN OPENS

Will Present Own Program Placing Burden on Higher Brackets; Rap Sales Levy

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The Hoover-Mellon tax program—to materially increase income taxes in all brackets as well as impose numerous "nuisance" taxes—met instant opposition in Congress today.

No sooner had the administration's program been laid before the two houses than Representative Henry T. Rainey, the new Democratic leader of the House, declared the Democrats would formulate their own program.

The Democratic plan, Rainey said, would be evolved by the joint policy committee, composed of Democrats in both Senate and House.

BIG INCOMES

Rainey predicted that the Democrats would base their tax increase plan upon big incomes, probably increasing surtaxes beyond the 40 per cent figure of the 1924 taxes suggested in the Hoover-Mellon program. Rainey said:

"I am in favor of increases in taxes on larger incomes so as to make up the amount the President proposes to obtain from sales taxes.

"It is too late, now, to lower the exemptions and I am opposed to that feature.

"The small income taxpayers need all their incomes at present.

"The big income taxpayers ought to be patriotic enough to give up larger portions of their incomes than the President proposes to tax. There are 500 incomes of over a million dollars a year."

ASSAILS MESSAGE

Rainey also assailed the President's message of yesterday declaring he found nothing in it in which "even expressed a desire on his part that Congress adopt legislation which will remove the causes for the present world-wide depression."

He added that "a progressive Democratic program of legislation will be announced soon."

'NUISANCE' TAX PLAN REVIVED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Virtually everybody would be affected by the taxes proposed by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon in his effort to balance the federal budget by the fiscal year 1934. "Nuisance" levies on cigarets, radios, automobiles, movie tickets, telephone calls and bank checks are among those contemplated in Mellon's program. The plan would add 1,700,000 persons to the federal income taxpaying group.

Mellon's detailed recommendations on "nuisance" taxes are:

An increase of one-sixth on the present tax on tobacco manufactures and products, except cigars.

A 10 per cent tax on tickets of admission to theaters and other amusements costing more than 10 cents.

A stamp tax of 2 cents on each bank check or draft.

A tax on telephone, telegraph, cable and radio messages of 5 cents on charges of 14 to 50 cents, and 10 cents on charges in excess of 50 cents.

A tax of 5 per cent on manufacturers' sales of radio and

PROPOSALS HIT LOWER INCOMES

President Asks Increase to Meet 4-Billion Deficit, Effective in January

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—A two-year tax increase that will dig deeply into every American pocket was proposed to Congress by President Hoover today when he submitted the 1933 budget disclosing estimated Treasury deficits of $3,630,000,000 for the current and next fiscal years.

The President recommended putting federal taxes back on the 1924 basis. The increases would be applicable to this year's incomes.

Simultaneously, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon supplied the details of the administration's plan. It really goes far beyond the 1924 tax law by proposing the revival of some old, and the addition of some new "nuisance" taxes, applicable to telephone and telegraph messages, bank checks, etc.

'NUISANCE' TAXES

Income and corporation taxes would go sharply upward, while for those who escape these there would be the "nuisance" taxes affecting the daily business and diversions of almost every citizen. An increase in the cigaret tax and the tax on small-priced admission tickets probably would assure that no one could totally escape contributing to the federal government.

Normal income tax rates would be 2, 4 and 6 per cent, instead of 1½, 3 and 5 per cent as at pres-

POWERS SHIFTS BLAME FOR MURDER TO MYSTERY MEN

'BLUEBEARD' SAYS VICTIM DESERTED HIM ON TRIP TO W. VA.

His attorney's first question was:

"What is your name?"

Powers answered:

"Herman Drenth."

"Where born?"

"Holland. I came to this country when I was 17 years old."

"Did you know Mrs. Lemke?"

"Yes."

"By what name did you meet her?"

"Harry F. Powers."

"Where?"

"On Pike street in Clarksburg."

"Who introduced you?"

"Charles S. Rogers."

"Who is he?"

"He is a man I met in Ohio several years ago. We both worked for a Pittsburgh contractor on a job in Ohio."

"Did you ever write to Mrs. Lemke?"

"Yes."

"Under what circumstances?"

"Mr. Rogers asked me to—he gave me a list of names."

VISITED AT HOME

"Then you wrote to Mrs. Lemke after Rogers asked you?"

"Yes, sir."

"When?"

"I first wrote Mrs. Lemke during January, 1931."

"Did you visit her at her home?"

"I did."

"When?"

"I left Clarksburg about July 9 or 10."

"How long were you there?"

"Two or three days."

"When you left did you have a return engagement with her?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you go back again?"

"Yes."

"When did you go back?"

"About the twentieth."

"On this trip did you meet any members of Mrs. Lemke's family?"

"I met Mr. and Mrs. Flemming. I visited at their home with Mrs. Lemke."

ADMITS USING ALIAS

Powers admitted using the name of "C. C. Pierson" on the trip to Massachusetts. He also admitted shipping the trunks to himself at Fairmont.

Powers said he and Mrs. Lemke left Northboro on the morning of July 28. He said he and Mrs. Lemke spent the night "in the country somewhere." He could not remember exactly where.

"Where did you spend the next night?"

"Near Harrisburg."

"How was your friendship with her progressing at this time?"

Powers shifted in the witness chair—half rose, coughed apologetically and then launched on a recital of his relations with the women whose body was dug from a ditch on his farm. He said:

"Well, there was never any misunderstanding about our relations—we stopped at a hotel near Harrisburg and took separate rooms. I went to my room and she went to hers—it was still early in the evening, about 8 o'clock.

TIP-TOED TO ROOM

"I started to read a magazine—then decided I'd go to Mrs. Lemke's room and talk to her awhile. I tip-toed over to her room and found her door part way open. I could see her sitting with her back to the door.

"I moved on tip-toe over to where she was sitting.

"I was going to play a little joke on her, you know."

Here Powers chuckled as though recalling the occasion with mirth. Continuing his narrative, he said:

"When I got close I saw she was writing a letter. Another letter was in front of her and there was a picture on top of it.

"I recognized the picture of a man I had met in Clarksburg—it was Cecil Johnson.

ROW OVER LETTER

"Mrs. Lemke turned around just then and I saw she tried to hide the letter. I grabbed it and read it. It was from Johnson and spoke of him meeting her in Uniontown.

"We had an argument about it and I gave it back to her and went to my room.

"The next day we started out again, getting to Uniontown about noon."

He continued his narrative telling how he left Mrs. Lemke in the car for a few moments and when he returned she had disappeared. He said he found a note, which he produced and read. It began:

"Connie, dear—"

Law interjected:

"Who is 'Connie, dear?'"

Powers smiled.

"That's me."

MEET IN RESTAURANT

Then he resumed, reading the note:

"I think it better after what happened this afternoon that we part. Please think the best of me.

"P.S.—I will write you a letter this evening and tell you where to send my things."

The note, Powers testified, was in Mrs. Lemke's handwriting.

Later on, the defendant continued, he found Mrs. Lemke in a restaurant with Cecil Johnson. He said he joined them and after some idle talk Johnson asked him to cash a check. He said:

"It was Mrs. Lemke's, Johnson told me."

"He said he agreed to cash one of the checks and did."

Law asked:

"Did you see both checks?"

"Yes."

He then identified one of the checks for $1,533 which he said he cashed.

ADVANCED MONEY

The second check was for $2,754. Both checks bore the indorsement A. R. Weaver. Powers said he indorsed both at Johnson's suggestion.

Powers said he advanced the money on the $1,533 check.

Powers then told of leaving Uniontown to visit a friend, Ben Brewster, in Harrietstown. He said he remained in Harrietstown on the night of July 30, unable to find his friend. The next day he said he returned to Uniontown, staying there the night of July 31. He went to the bank with the checks on August 1, he said, admitting the testimony of bank employes who testified yesterday.

Powers then identified a letter purporting to have been sent to him from Mrs. Lemke and postmarked "Uniontown, August 3." The letter was signed "Dorothy."

The date is three days after the day fixed by police as the day Mrs. Lemke registered at the Gore Hotel.

READS LETTER

Powers said he received the letter August 7. He read the letter, which follows in part:

"I do not blame you for getting so mad at me for deceiving you. Please forgive me. I meant no harm.

"Please hold my things for awhile until I settle and then I will write where to send them."

The letter was addressed to "Dear Connie" and signed "Always Your Friend, Dorothy."

He admitted getting the trunks from the express office on August 11 and on the same day he said he went to Uniontown to collect the money due on Mrs. Lemke's checks. He said he met Johnson in Uniontown and gave him $2,754 received on one check and kept the $1,533 he had advanced on the other.

Continuing his testimony, Powers said:

"I went to Chicago the next day, August 12, and got back on August 18."

SAW NO BLOODSTAINS

Law asked:

"When did you next go to your garage at Quiet Dell?"

"About the twentieth or twenty-first. I went inside where I had left Mrs. Lemke's trunks and found the contents of both scattered around on the floor.

"I didn't know who had done that and decided to take the clothes to my home for safekeeping.

"Did you see any bloodstains in the garage?"

"No."

"Could you have seen them if you had looked?"

"Well, if I had been looking for anything like that, I might, but I never had any idea of any such thing—it never came to my mind."

ROGERS' LETTER

"I did not see any bloodstains until taken there by the police on August 28."

"Were you in the garage at any time between August 21 and August 28?"

"Yes, on the twenty-seventh I had gone to the garage about 10 o'clock in the morning. It was when I came back that City Detective Carl Southern came to the house and told me I was under arrest."

Law then offered a letter purporting to have been written to Powers by the mysterious Charles Rogers." It was sent to "Dearest Pal" and was signed "Charlie." On a question whether the letter was in Rogers' handwriting Prosecutor Morris rose to an objection which was sustained by the court. It was denied as an exhibit.

Powers admitted under direct examination he had done work in the ditch where five bodies were found but was rather vague about just what kind of work he did.

"Oh yes—I did some work—filling in the ditch and covering up some gas pipes, but I just don't remember when."

He also admitted burning trash in the ash heap alongside the burial ditch, saying:

"I often burned up trash."

DESCRIBES ROGERS

Johnson was introduced to Powers by opers. He testified after resuming the stand in the afternoon. He said he "did not know Johnson very well" but described him as a man of "ruddy complexion," blonde hair, slightly bald and weighing about 165 pounds.

He said he saw Johnson in Uniontown the day he cashed the Lemke check.

"Where did you meet Charles Rogers?"

"Between Louisville and Canton, in 1925."

He decribed Johnson as a "likeable fellow."

Law asked:

"What kind of a fellow was Rogers?"

"He was a fellow about 185 pounds—his eyes dark-brown—his hair dark-brown, I think."

Rogers sometimes wore a mustache and sometimes was clean shaven, and had lost a middle finger on his left hand, Powers said.

FRIENDSHIP CLUB

On cross-examination Powers said the list of names turned over to him by Johnson was for a "friendship club." He was asked:

"A matrimonial club?"

"I think it was something like that."

"Did you ever have any letters from Mrs. Lemke?"

"Yes."

"Wher are they?"

"I don't remember."

"You can't produce a single letter written to you by Mrs. Lemke?"

"I don't know."

"What was your purpose in corresponding with women—you a married man?"

"That's a long story."

"Well, let's have it."

"I was married in 1927. I became desperate. I planned to get a divorce. I told Rogers all my troubles. There was a dispute at home. I left home. Rogers said 'I know what I'd do in your place. I'd get someone else.' He showed me that list. My troubles had driven me nearly crazy."

At this point Powers broke down and cried. After a minute he continued:

"Then I corresponded with these women."

"And one of these women was Mrs. Eicher, of Park Ridge, Ill.?"

"Yes."

DENIES TROTH

"And you had an understanding with Mrs. Lemke you were to be married?"

"No understanding at all."

"In the spring of 1931 you gave her a photograph of yourself?"

"Yes."

"You knew rules of this matrimonial club?"

"Yes."

"You sent a picture to Mrs. Eicher?"

"A small one."

"What name did you use?"

"I used name C. O. Pearson."

"Did you describe yourself as a man of wealth?"

"Don't recall."

"What occupation did you give?"

"An engineer."

"And who wrote first, you or Mrs. Lemke?"

"I did."

"Didn't you tell her you had a ranch in Iowa?"

"I don't think I did."

"Do you deny that?"

NEVER OFFERED MARRIAGE

Powers hesitated, then said:

"Yes, I do."

"Don't you remember telling Flemming's two boys about your ranch and how you fed the stock?"

"Well, I had talked to them, but I didn't tell them about the stock."

Powers denied he had ever made an offer of marriage to Mrs. Lemke. He said he went to Massachusetts in July at Mrs. Lemke's invitation to "spend a vacation" with her.

IDENTIFY POWERS

County Prosecutor Will E. Morris yesterday called Mrs. Lemke's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Flemming, to the witness stand. Both pointed out Powers as the "Cornelius O. Pierson" who took Mrs. Lemke from Northboro, Mass., last July 28.

Prosecutor Morris asked Flemming:

"Have you ever seen this defendant, Powers, before?"

The witness, turning to face the accused "Bluebeard," pointed his finger and shouted:

"Yes, sir, I have. He is the man who killed my sister-in-law."

"When did you see him?"

"In my home. My sister-in-law introduced him to me as Pierson."

Flemming said Powers came to his home in Northboro with Mrs. Lemke on the afternoon of July 27. They remained over night, leaving together the next day. Mrs. Lemke introduced Powers as her "intended husband," Flemming said.

SOBS ON STAND

Mrs. Flemming followed her husband to the stand. Several times she broke into tears as she identified, one by one, the stock of wearing apparel found in Powers' home and "slaughter-house garage as having belonged to her sister.

Mrs. Flemming testified that her sister first appraised her of her intention to marry Pierson last June 25. She said:

"She showed me a photograph of the man and it was him!"

At this point Mrs. Flemming turned towards Powers, her eyes blazing. She continued her testimony, staring at the mail order Romeo, who dropped his eyes to the table.

MARCHERS DUE HERE TONIGHT

"Hunger marchers" returning home from Washington, by truck and automobile, left Cumberland, Md., today for Pittsburgh after the city officials refused them permission to remain over for another day because of weather conditions.

After spending the night in a dance hall in Cumberland, the marchers sent a committee to Mayor Thomas W. Koon demanding another night's lodging and food because of dangerous conditions existing on mountain highways from rain and sleet.

Mayor Koon ordered them out of town immediately. All the trucks, except one with a broken axle, left for Pittsburgh, expecting to arrive here tonight.

PINCHOT SEEKS COMPROMISE ON BONDS

Willing to Reduce Amount as Foes Swing Ahead With Own Bills to Aid Jobless

HARRISBURG, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—The General Assembly completed its fifth week today with the anti-Pinchot $27,000,000 unemployment relief program well under way and a new effort launched by the administration to obtain approval of its prosperity bond issue on a $15,000,000 basis.

While the Senate was passing on second reading the Talbot $10,000,000 direct appropriation to poor districts, the basic bill of the alternate program the administration moved to bring its revised bond issue plan before the House.

The House committee on constitutional amendments reported for passage the Bell resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to permit the issue. The resolution, placed on third reading and final passage for Monday night, would make possible the issuance of bonds subject to the approval of the measure by the special session and 1933 general assembly, together with the approval of the electorate.

AMOUNT REDUCED

The amount of the bond issue and the method of administering the proceeds would be specified by the enactment of the McClure bill with which the House judiciary general committee wrestled today. Through Attorney General Schnader, the administration conveyed a suggestion to reduce the amount of the proposed issue from $35,000,000 to $15,000,000 and revise the original personnel of the State Unemployment Relief Commission, which would direct the allocation of the fund.

The Judiciary General Committee postponed until next Tuesday final action on the bill, after debating the report of a sub-committee which had studied the measure and received the amendments proposed by the Attorney General.

To obtain some indication of the crystalizing sentiment of the committee, three votes were taken on amendments effecting the amount of the bond issue. Proposals for an issue of $35,000,000 and for an issue of $15,000,000 to $35,000,000 were rejected by close votes and one setting the amount definitely at $15,000,000 was approved.

FATE IN DOUBT

The prosperity bond issue, the Governor's plan for permitting state relief directly to political sub-divisions, has no place in the anti-Pinchot substitute program and opinion of anti-administration members was divided on the probable reception of the McClure bill, if revised according to today's development.

Coupled with the Talbot bill, which opposition forces say they can pass over a gubernatorial veto, the proposed revised prosperity bond issue would make available a total of $25,000,000 for direct relief. To Philadelphia, the combination would mean a total state allocation of $6,250,000.

Rep. Talbot of Delaware, and Hagmaier of Allegheny invited the House bloc, now grown to a majority, would not consider passage of the bond issue plan until the substitute program is enacted and signed by the Governor.

However, other nations, including a thousand million human beings that have no gold, may encourage these and others to give up the gold fetish and the gold standard.

For the commerce, industry and population of the world to attempt to do business on $10,000,000,000 worth of gold is something like 10,000 sailors trying to keep afloat on one small log.

BABCOCK MAY YIELD ON JOBS

Possibility that some of the 168 county employes discharged by Commissioner E. V. Babcock would be reinstated was seen today when Babcock and Controller Robert G. Woodside conferred for several hours.

Neither would make a statement after the conference but it was understood that their only subject was the wholesale dismissal ordered to bear on Babcock from powerful politicians.

Babcock's salary was increased $250 monthly when he was elected to the chairmanship of the board by Commissioner C. C. McGovern following the death of Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong. Asked whether he would contribute this increase to the Welfare Fund, he said:

"I haven't got it yet and I haven't made up my mind."

DEMOCRATS RAP TAX PLAN

"I would oppose returning to the exemptions in the 1924 act as I prefer the existing exemptions. So far as special taxes are concerned there may be instances where it is profitable to raise revenue from such sources without the tax being on business."

HARRISON RAPS PLAN

Senator Pat Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, confirmed Rainey's statement the Democrats would formulate their own plans for balancing the budget.

Hhe criticized the President's plea for a series of miscellaneous taxes, asking how money could be expected to flow through the "channels of commerce, if checks, deeds, telephone and telegraph messages are to be taxed?" He also condemned the radio, automobile, real estate, cigaret and movie taxes. He said:

"He goes back to the Spanish-American War as a precedent to put a tax on checks and drafts and is resurrecting war taxes in peace times. Such policy is imposing greater burdens upon commerce, communication, transportation and banking."

Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, said:

"This is the sort of a tax program that was to be expected of an administration that demands those least able to pay, bear still greater emergency."

Senator Nye (Rep.), of North Dakota, said:

"This Hoover-Mellon tax scheme is intended to relieve those best able to bear the burden of tax increases and put it on the shoulders of those least able to stand it."

UNEMPLOYMENT DEBATE

General debate on President Hoover's recommendations to Congress opened in the House this afternoon.

Representative Huddleston (Dem.), of Alabama, who is identified with the House progressive group, opened it with an attack upon the President's refusal to countenance direct aid for the unemployed. He said:

"No honest American should be allowed to starve. The President predicted that the depression would be over in 1931 and urged that measures for relief be limited.

"The year has gone, but millions of our fellow citizens are walking the streets without work."

JOHNSON ASKS U. S. PROBE OF LOANS ABROAD

Senator Demands Prompt Inquiry Into Bond Issues, Bonuses Paid to Bankers

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—A Senate investigation of the flotation of foreign securities in the United States was called for today by Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, in a formal resolution.

The measure will be "pressed will all vigor" Johnson announced, in order to get the inquiry started before the Senate begins consideration of the Hoover one-year moratorium on intergovernmental debts. The President was preparing his message covering the moratorium today and it was expected to be sent to Congress soon.

Johnson's resolution provides that the Senate Finance Committee make the investigation.

The committee would be directed to investigate the flotation, sale and allocation by banks and individuals of foreign securities in this country and ascertain what profits were made and if any bonuses or special commissions were granted for the handling of such bonds.

The committee would be asked to learn the extent of foreign government securities held by banks, corporations and individuals, the amount of foreign industrial bonds held and the terms and conditions under which they were acquired.

The resolution gives the committee farreaching authority to command all books and records and to compel testimony from witnesses it summons.

JAPAN ACCEPTS LEAGUE 'PEACE'

TOKIO, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—The Japanese government prepared today to instruct its representative at the League of Nations council, Kenkichi Yoshizawa, to accept the council's Manchurian peace resolution in its entirety.

It was understood, however, that, although the government is ready to accept the resolution, Ambassador Yoshizawa would be instructed to clarify Japan's position regarding her claim to the right to deal with bandits by means of a separate reservation stressing that this is a temporary measure pending return of normal conditions.

LEAGUE DRAFTS PLAN

PARIS, Dec. 9.—(INS.)—The final draft of a resolution designed to bring about peace in Manchuria, calling upon Japan and China to take all necessary measures to prevent further outbreaks of hostilities and appointing a neutral commission to investigate the situation, was presented to the League of Nations Council today.

The resolution leaves a loophole for direct negotiations between China and Japan, and capitulates entirely to Japan's insistence that the commission of neutral observers should interfere in no way with military activities of the armies in Manchuria.

Youth Deserting Harvard For Stanford Held Here

A 17-year-old Harvard freshman who wanted to be educated at Leland Stanford University was being detained in North Side Police Station today, his hitch-hiking efforts frustrated.

Eugene Silberman didn't like Harvard. He preferred Leland Stanford, on the coast. So he ran away from Harvard Saturday night and started hitch-hiking to California.

When he reached Pittsburgh last night he went to the Pennsylvania Station and asked Travelers' Aid Society where he might sleep.

Suspicious, the society representative sent him to the North Side Y. M. C. A., then telegraphed his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Silberman, of Revere, Mass., which is just a few minutes' ride from Harvard's campus at Cambridge.

When Eugene reached the Y. M. C. A. police met him and provided a bed in a North Side cell.

Eugene's father is on the way to Pittsburgh to take his son back to Harvard. And Eugene says:

"I've always wanted to go to a college away from home. I don't like Harvard, anyway. Father, I guess, thinks I'd raise too much hell away from home."

CULBERTSONS TRAILING BRIDGE RIVALS BY SLAM BID

LENZ, JACOBY SWELL LEAD 360 POINTS

Challenger Adds $1,000 to His Bet on System at 2-1 Odds; Play Is Brilliant

Mrs Culbertson's own story of last night's play appears on Page 4.

By J. C. OESTREICHER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Still only a little more than a slam bid apart, Sidney Lenz and Ely Culbertson tottered off to bed early today, with approximately one-sixteenth of their 150-rubber contract bridge tournament completed.

They parted amid hand-clasps, smiles and compliments. Lenz, aided by Oswald Jacoby, had succeeded after almost five hours of steady play in increasing their lead over Culbertson and his wife, Josphine Culbertson, by 360 points for a net margin of 2,075.

Playing in comparative peace after the riotous carnival of Monday night's opening session, all four gave masterly exhibitions of bridge. With no spectators on hand to applaud and cheer, it was left to the players themselves to act the roles of Alphonse and Gaston, and on frequent occasions Culbertson bowed to Lenz in recognition of a brilliant coup, while on the very next hand Lenz was obliged to salute his redoubtable opponent for the same reason.

BETS RAISED

This being an unusual bridge tournament in every sense of the word, the second night's session could hardly get under way without a little divertissement. It was provided by Culbertson, who again demonstrated his utmost confidence in his approach-forcing system by offering to bet Jacoby $1,000 to $500 that he would triumph. Jacoby took the bet, and Culbertson promptly offered another "grand."

This time there were no takers, and Culbertson was still mumbling about being ready to bet up to $25,000 at 2-to-1 odds when the referees told him to put his money away and get on with the game.

During the early stages of the game, the advantage swung back and forth like a pendulum. The Culbertsons held far better cards than on the opening night, and at one time, through persistent application of their forcing system, cut their opponents' lead down to 535 points. Toward the end, however, Lenz and Jacoby rallied and aided party by Lenz's first demand bid of the tournament, scored a brilliant 5-spade bid for game and followed it soon after by a slam bid in spades.

CULBERTSON REBUKED

The night's play proceeeded without untoward incident save for a polite protest from Jacoby against Culbertson's practice of leaving the playing room every time he was dummy. The referees ruled there was no particular reason for it and that it was delaying the game, so Culbertson agreed to stick around.

The approach-forcing master provided a mild stir early in the evening by asking Jacoby, who was dummy, to play a hand for him, as he had "something important to do." Jacoby, startled, was ready to comply for politeness' sake, but the umpires, while appreciating Culbertson's amazing confidence in his opponent's honesty, would have none of it.

The first show of artistic temperament developed toward the end of the session, when the players began to jump every time someone walked across the room behind the screen which shielded the stars from the gaze of hard-working secretaries and tabulators, engaged with the task of recording every card played. Culbertson finally jumped to his feet and demanded to know who was "squashing his Russian boots back and fourth" and the unwelcome noise promptly ceased. Culbertson, half-Russian by birth, may have been reminded of some incident of his childhood and it annoyed him no end.

The players got through seven rubbers last night, as against the three eked out during the ballyhoo of the opening session. Lenz and Jacoby won four and the Culbertsons three. There were 36 hands played, both sides making 11 successful contracts.

MRS. LOWTHER GETS LIFE

WOOSTER, O., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. Julia Maude Lowther, 24, confessed killer of Mrs. Clara Smith, of Ashtabula, escaped death in the electric chair today when Common Pleas Judge George A. Starn returned a verdict of first degree murder, with mercy. The verdict requires a sentence of life imprisonment.

Judge Starn promptly sentenced Mrs. Lowther to life imprisonment in Marysville Reformatory.

Before giving the verdict, Judge Starn spoke for 45 minutes in the courtroom. He reviewed Mrs. Lowther's past life, and pointed out the unfortunate environment of her early years. He declared the crime of killing Mrs. Smith had been planned by her husband, Tilby, rather than by Mrs. Lowther. Tilby Smith was electrocuted November 20.

CLARA ADMITS SHE'S MARRIED

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—It started out to be a secret—the marriage of Clara Bow and Rex Bell—but it isn't any longer. Miss Bow, or rather, Mrs. Bell, arriving here last night, admitted she and Bell were married last week in Las Vegas, Nev. She said:

"We were married last week all right, but we tried to keep it a secret for a while so that we could have a bit of privacy. We are very happy, but I sure wish they would give us a break and let a couple of honeymooners alone. We thought we had fooled everybody, but imagine our chagrin when we read it in the headlines next morning. The only thing to do now is to acknowledge it."

Following publication of the report of the marriage, both Miss Bow and Bell had denied the wedding had taken place.

Mullarkey and his son, both indicted, with three others, by a federal grand jury on the "protection" charges, were reported to have journeyed to Europe.

DISOWNED, GIRL RUNAWAY ENDS LIFE IN HOTEL

Penniless Heiress, Deserted By Husband, Shunned by Family, Swallows Poison

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Love, family, money gone. So what was there left for pretty 19-year-old Rose Kaufman Schwab to do but end her misery?

In a little hotel room they found her slim body draped across the bed. On the floor was a drained vial of poison. On the table were sheaves of paper on which she had uttered her desire for death just a few moments before taking leave of life.

Police authorities were piecing the girl's story together today. She was believed to have been a New York heiress, daughter of Emil Kaufman, wealthy Manhattan furrier. She was the wife of a man who left her and refused to take her back, according to information supplied by social workers.

DENIES MARRIAGE

Her husband is Howard Schwab, 25-year-old manager of a transfer company. They were married secretly last August, but parted shortly afterward. The marriage occurred but a few months after Rose had run away from her home in New York to seek a career, according to social service workers who told police they had talked to the girl when she was in the Municipal Psychopathic Hospital.

She was committed to the hospital on the complaint of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Benjamin Bauer, who told authorities "she kept calling up at all hours for my son."

At first, after their separation, Schwab denied to his mother that he had married Rose. Later he admitted the marriage but a reconciliation proved hopeless. Rose was advised to go home and the social workers called Kaufman.

DISOWNED, PENNILESS

"I have no daughter."

So declared a voice from the other end of the wire and the receiver was slammed on the hook.

Disowned and penniless, the girl was released from the hospital Monday night she again called Schwab's home. Mrs. Bauer informed her that Schwab had gone to Detroit.

In one of her notes Rose said to her husband:

"I hope you have a nice time in Detroit."

THE ANSWER OF MR. BAIRNSFATHER, FAMED CARTOONIST, TO AN INTERVIEWER TODAY

VOTERS RETIRE 'BOSSY' GILLIS

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—The political diadem that has adorned the tousled head of Mayor Andrew J. (Bossy) Gillis for two turbulent terms today had been knocked askew. The largest vote in the history of Newburyport was cast yesterday and "Bossy" was defeated for re-election by Gayden W. Morrill.

Morrill received 3,932 votes to "Bossy's" 2,818, after a campaign that was as heated as the Mayor has ever participated in.

"Bossy" first entered the political arena after city officials had denied him the right to fell some trees that he thought interfered with business at his gasoline station. The conservative element of the city looked askance at the new candidate, but he was elected and then proceeded to chop down the offending trees.

The latter act resulted in his being sentenced to the County Jail at Salem, from which he directed the affairs of his office. He left the jail and relentlessly continued to snap his verbal lash at those he believed were attempting to oppress him. He was returned for a second term and later unsuccessfully ran for the Republican nomination for United States Senator.

Weather Conditions.

Low pressure now stretches from north of Lake Superior southward over the central valley to the Gulf, with the principal center over Northern Illinois. There is also a low centered over Utah and another over Alberta. The eastern low pressure is attended by rain or snow over most of the eastern half of the country; snow over Eastern Pennsylvania and Iowa. The rainfall was moderate to heavy over North Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi. The western lows are producing snowfall over large areas in the Rocky Mountain section. It is warmer than yesterday morning over the eastern half of the country, and generally slightly colder over the West. Temperatures this morning are only slightly below freezing over the northern states east of the Mississippi. The only zero weather is in Northern Montana and North Dakota and northward over Canada.

River Conditions.

The rivers are about stationary. Stage at Franklin is 2.8 feet; Lock No. 7, 12.1; Pittsburgh, 11.6; Dam No. 4, 9.2; Dam No. 6, 8.4; Dam No. 10, 9.5; and Dam No. 12, 8.5. The dams are up.

STUDENTS HEAR BAIRNSFATHER

"Ol' Bill" might have been born during war days to create cheer, but he's just as much alive right here in Pittsburgh. Bruce Bairnsfather, the famous cartoonist, who dislikes being called the creator of the character, today explained Bill can be found all around the city.

Bairnsfather, English World War captain, who has averaged 40,000 miles in railroad travel during the past two years on lecture tours, was heard by University of Pittsburgh students in Memorial Hall this morning. He revealed that "The Better Ole" has just been revived by Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Colburn in Detroit. The production's reception was so encouraging that plans are being made to send a production on the road next season, he said. Bairnsfather explained "Ol' Bill" as:

"He's not a creation of mine. I went to war and found his type in the fellows who didn't know what the war was all about but who planned to see it through. As an inconspicuous character in cartoons at first, he struck the public fancy and grew into popularity with Alf and Bert."

Accused of Slaying Wife, Sobs on Stand

DETROIT, Dec. 9.—(INS.)—Lonnie Jenkins, former street car conductor, on trial for the murder of his wife, Edith, whose death was at first thought to be a suicide, today broke down and sobbed when he assumed the witness stand. He denied that he had shot and killed Mrs. Jenkins.

Betty Zimmerman, 17-year-old sweetheart of the accused man, had previously testified that she wrote the "suicide note" which police found at the death scene.

Coll Trial Delayed In 'Baby Massacre'

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—After a long legal tilt the trial of Vincent Coll and Frank Vengali, gangsters, for the murder of 3-year-old Michael Vengali, killed July 28 by a gangland volley of bullets poured into a group of children playing in a Harlem street, was adjourned today until Wednesday.

Weather Disrupts Plane Schedules

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—All scheduled flights from the Newark Airport were cancelled today because of snow and rain and weather reports from points throughout the East, West and South which indicated conditions would make flying too hazardous for passengers and mail planes.

HOME OF KANE DESCRIBED AS 'MADHOUSE'

Sister-in-Law of Drowned Wife Says Professor Was Abusive, Taunted Mate

HAMPTON, Va., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—The home of Prof. Elisha Kent Kane while at Chapel Hill, N. C., was described today as a "mad house" by Mrs. W. H. Graham, wife of Mrs. Kane's brother, who testified for the state in the professor's trial on charges of drowning his wife.

She said Kane tortured his wife by blasphemy and treated her brutally, and boasted of his disbelief in God and relations with other women.

Judge C. Vernon Spratley ordered part of Mrs. Graham's testimony stricken from the records.

Five weather-scarred watermen today testified they heard distressing screams at Grand View beach the morning Prof. Kane is charged with drowning his wife in Chesapeake Bay.

Otis Ferguson, one of the watermen, said the screams might have been in a man's voice, but the others thought it was either the voice of a woman or a child.

G. M. Saunders, a friend of Mrs. Kane's family, testified for the state that Kane told him he was trying to teach his wife to swim at Grand View beach. Saunders said Kane told him he did everything he could to revive her after he brought her ashore.

Miss Emma Robelin, of Richmond, said she saw Kane driving down the beach at terrific speed and that he asked that she and her sister call a hospital. She said there was a woman in the car and that she appeared to have her eyes closed. She said Kane was very much excited.

Miss Hazel Wells, a nurse at the Dixie Hospital, described the arrival of Prof. Kane there with his wife. She said he had on one sock and no shoes, and wore a dark bathing suit.

HITLER WARNED BY BRUENING

BERLIN, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—The Damoclean sword of threatened martial law hung today over the heads of Adolf Hitler and other opposition forces in Germany.

Dr. Heinrich Bruening, scholar-chancellor and "man of iron," delivered the warning in a radio address last night which followed signing by President Paul von Hindenburg of a new and drastic emergency decree which slashed wages, prices and rents in the nation.

This morning the Communist newspaper Rote Fahne—red flag—took up the Chancellor's challenge, branded him as a "dictator" and appealed to the masses of the people to call a general strike on December 15 in protest against the "dictatorship" and the wage cuts.

Ice, Ginger Ale Sale Not Dry Violation

AKRON, O., Dec. 9.—(INS.)—Furnishing ice and mixing liquids to customers who use them for making drinks with intoxicating liquor does not constitute a violation of law on the part of a shopkeeper, the Court of Appeals ruled here today.

Reversing a decision of Common Pleas Judge Walter B. Wanamaker, who ruled that a restaurant owner was guilty of "aiding and abetting" in the violation of the prohibition law, the court declared that the judge's ruling was "contrary to law."

Ralph Capone on Way to New Prison

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Dec. 9.—(INS.)—The separation of Ralph Capone from other members of the Capone gang in the Federal Prison here was being effected today with Capone enroute to McNeil Island to serve the remainder of his sentence for income tax fraud.

It was learned that Capone was removed from the prison under heavy guard shortly after midnight yesterday and placed aboard a train bound for the Pacific Coast.

'Mercy' Killer Collapses As Autopsy Hits Story

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. Else Wille Bang collapsed in her prison cell yesterday when police informed her that an examination of the exhumed body of her mother, the Baroness Von Dueben, revealed she had not been critically ill before she died of an overdose of medicine administered by the daughter.

Mrs. Bang made a voluntary confession last week that she had given her mother a fatal overdose of medicine to put an end to her mother's suffering from an incurable disease.

An attorney for Mrs. Bang said she was physically and mentally unfit to face a cross-examination, which is scheduled for next Saturday.

Exhumation of the body of Baroness von Dueben was ordered after her daughter confessed to a clergyman that she had administered the overdose of medicine from which the baroness died, about two weeks ago.

Mrs. Bang surrendered to the police and was charged with murder. She said:

"I gave to mother eternal life."

The Rev. Johannes Engel, to whom she confessed, said she had been under great mental stress because she was compelled to choose between her mother and a husband.

Accurate Play Features Match

Following is a description by Mrs. Josephine Culbertson, noted bridge expert, of the second meeting of herself and Ely Culbertson, originators of the approach-forcing system of contract bidding, and Sidney S. Lenz and Oswald Jacoby.

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON
World's Greatest Woman Bridge Player.
Written Especially for International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—It was a stiff, hard fight of accurately drawn inferences, accurate bidding and in a number of cases beautiful play that marked the second night of the match between my husband and myself as representatives of the approach-forcing system of contract bridge and Sidney S. Lenz and Oswald Jacoby as proponents of the official system.

We played seven rubbers last night and four were won by our opponents and three by us. The net difference in score on the seven rubbers was 360 points. This added to the lead already held by our adversaries gave them a net lead of 2,075 points. There are still 140 rubbers to be played.

The play last night demonstrated what I have heretofore stated, that our chances of success rest largely upon what we call a superior bidding system, for both Lenz and Jacoby played accurately and brilliantly.

INTERESTING HAND

One of the most interesting hands was the second and final hand of the first to the last rubber.

It was interesting from the bidding standpoint because we reached the high contract of five clubs in the teeth of an opening bid of one no trump by Jacoby in the South. It was interesting from the playing standpoint because of the presence of four spades in my hand and the unusual distribution of the spade suit. Jacoby's opening lead of the ace of spades made necessary the loss of a trump trick, and so the hand although not particularly difficult presented an opportunity for accurate play. Here is the complete hand with the bidding. East and West vulnerable.

NORTH
(Mr. Lenz)
Spades—Q-J-9-8-6-5-3.
Hearts—9-7-4.
Diamonds—10.
Clubs—7-6.

EAST (Mrs. Culbertson)	WEST (Mr. Culbertson)
Spades—10-7-4-2.	Spades—4-3.
Hearts—J.	Hearts—A-K-10-8-5-3.
Diamonds—A-8-3.	Diamonds—K-Q-6-5.
Clubs—Q-10-9-	Clubs—A-J-5.

SOUTH
(Mr. Jacoby)
Spades—A-K.
Hearts—Q-6-2.
Diamonds—J-9-7-4-2.
Clubs—K-8-2.

Bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 N. T.	double	2 spade	Pass
Pass	double	Pass	3 clubs
Pass	3 hearts	Pass	4 clubs
Pass	5 clubs	Pass	Pass

EXACT BIDDING

Hand number four of rubber number six furnished an example of exact bidding. This was the final hand of that rubber, and my partner opened the bidding with one spade. His hand contained three honor-tricks and excellent distribution. Mr. Lenz passed and I sitting East bid three spades. Mr. Jacoby, the South player, made a courageous bid of four clubs on a six card suit and an outside ace. My partner then bid five clubs.

It is perhaps incorrect to speak of this as a slam invitation. Rather the message to me was a request to bid the slam if I had any values in addition to those already shown. My partner's bid of five clubs was a distinct warning to me not to attempt the slam. His bid of five clubs could show only one thing at this time and that was a void in the suit. Thus we were faced with duplication of values and so I bid five spades and Ely heeded my warning and did not attempt the slam. In the play, five spades were made.

The hand follows:

NORTH
(Mr. Lenz)
Spades—J-7-5.
Hearts—J-10-2.
Diamonds—K-8-4-3.
Clubs—8-5-2.

EAST (Mrs. Culbertson)	WEST (Mr. Culbertson)
Spades—K-10-4-3.	Spades—A-Q-9-8-6.
Hearts—Q-3.	Hearts—K-8-5-4.
Diamonds—Q-J-7.	Diamonds—A-10-5-2.
Clubs—A-10-9-4.	Clubs—0.

SOUTH
(Mr. Jacoby)
Spades—2.
Hearts—A-9-7-6.
Diamonds—9-6.
Clubs—K-Q-J-7-6-3.

SLAM HAND BID

It was the fifth rubber of the evening of the eighth of the match which saw the bidding of a slam hand and the scoring of it.

Mr. Lenz, sitting North, was the fortunate holder of the cards which justified, under his system of bidding, the opening forcing bid of three hearts. He found his partner with a strong hand which justified the response of four clubs.

Mr. Lenz, who was void of clubs, then bid four hearts and this Mr. Jacoby raised to six hearts, which became the final contract. Six hearts were made without difficulty, the only winning card for us being my partner's ace of diamonds.

The hand:

NORTH
(Mr. Lenz)
Spades—A-K-J.
Hearts—K-Q-7-6-5-4-2.
Diamonds—K-Q-7.
Clubs—0.

EAST (Mrs. Culbertson)	WEST (Mr. Culbertson)
Spades—Q-10-9-4-2.	Spades—8-6.
Hearts—3.	Hearts—10-9-8.
Diamonds—4-2.	Diamonds—A-J-6-3.
Clubs—10-9-6-5-2.	Clubs—Q-J-7-3.

SOUTH
(Mr. Jacoby)
Spades—7-5-3.
Hearts—A-J.
Diamonds—10-9-8-5.
Clubs—A-K-8-4.

"TERRIBLE PLAY"

My whole evening was embittered by a most terrible defensive play. My partner was extremely sweet, perhaps too sweet, about it. Hand No. 34 was the one that gave me the opportunity to make an extremely bad play. (By the way, the contract of three no trump which was reached on this hand was not so good. The hand should have been safely played at five diamonds.) Here is the hand:

NORTH
(Mr. Lenz)
Spades—A-Q-8.
Hearts—7.
Diamonds—A-J-10-7-6-3.
Clubs—K-Q-10.

EAST (Mrs. Culbertson)	WEST (Mr. Culbertson)
Spades—K-7.	Spades—6-5-4-2.
Hearts—A-Q-9-6-4.	Hearts—K-10-5-3-2.
Diamonds—9-5.	Diamonds—Q-2.
Clubs—J-9-8-6.	Clubs—7-4.

SOUTH
(Mr. Jacoby)
Spades—J-10-9-3.
Hearts—J-8.
Diamonds—K-8-4.
Clubs—A-5-3-2.

Mr. Jacoby was the declarer and my partner led his fourth best heart. When the dummy went down I saw the singleton seven. It was, of course, apparent to me that Mr. Jacoby held two hearts and I played the ace. Now what do you think I did? Instead of playing the queen, I woodenly returned my fourth best heart, a perfectly proper play as a rule, but this was the exception because I held five hearts and not four. The result of my weak defensive play was that Mr. Jacoby scored the game and rubber which should have been defeated.

Next time I'll do better, but experience is a most unpleasant teacher.

WOMAN INJURED IN CRASH DIES

Rose Gazdik, 28, of 408 Path way, died last night in Montefiore Hospital from injuries suffered early Saturday when the automobile in which she was a passenger skidded on wet pavement and crashed into a pole at the Second avenue entrance to the Glenwood Bridge. Frances Shollenberger, 20, of 209 Second avenue, Homestead, another passenger, died a few minutes after being admitted to a hospital. Two men occupants of the machine were seriously injured.

Robert Schmeld, 37, of 3729 Beechwood boulevard, was injured slightly last night when he was struck by an alleged hit-and-run driver while crossing the boulevard at Forward avenue. A gasoline station attendant, seeing the accident, took the car's license number and reported it to police.

John Elgard, 34, of Cassidy street was injured seriously when his machine collided head-on with a street car on the Charleroi-Pittsburgh highway yesterday. He was taken to the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital.

Lump of Coal Costs Taxpayer Five Dollars

One good-sized lump of coal cost John Sabol, 39, Ontario street, $5, in Magistrate Ray E. Schneider's Allegheny Police Court today. Police testified that Sabol pays the city $500 annually in tax on several business and residence properties and was found carrying a lump of coal from the Woods Run Coal Company's Ketchum street yards. Police said he had been filching coal regularly every morning for several days. Sabol, employe of a bridge company, denied that he had been taking the coal.

CITY TO COMBAT SAFE ROBBERS

Lieut. Edward O'Rourke of the automobile detective division today prepared to combat a gang of safe robbers who he said plan to pay a return visit to Pittsburgh Saturday night. Armed with machine guns, 12 detectives in five radio cars are to cruise from Saturday night until Monday morning, O'Rourke said.

O'Rourke said the gang was known as the Ripper mob, of Wheeling, W. Va., and Steubenville, O.

The lieutenant said the gang made a visit here November 30 when they got almost $1,000.

2 MEN BEATEN, 4 ARRESTED

Two men, one struck on the head with an iron bar in an alleged speakeasy in the Strip and the other beaten in the street, were in hospitals today and police held four men for arraignment in connection with the injuries.

E. L. Lyman, 39, of Castor street, Emsworth, was in St. Francis Hospital with a probable skull fracture and lacerations of the scalp inflicted with an iron bar in an alleged speakeasy at 1311 Penn avenue last night. Jerry Daniels, 39, reputed proprietor, was being held as the assailant, police said.

Police raided Daniels' place and reported confiscating moonshine. Three other men were detained as witnesses.

James Collins, 40, of 180 Thirty-eighth street, was beaten by several men at Charlotte and Thirty-fifth streets early today, police reported. Suffering lacerations and bruises, Collins was taken to St. Margaret's Hospital.

Shortly after Collins had been taken to the hospital, police reported arresting Anthony Ritzel, 32, of 305 Thirty-seventh street, as one of the participants in the attack.

3 RADIO MEN GO ON TRIAL

Lee Elton Spencer, Charles Robinson and Gene Etz are on trial before Federal Judge R. M. Gibson, charged with violating the federal radio act by operating a broadcasting station at Jeannette without a government permit, or having licenses issued by the Federal Radio Commission to operate it.

It is the first case of its kind in the Federal District Court and the sixth case in the country. The case is being prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Lloyd Bryan and B. S. Fisher, of Washington, assistant general counsel of the Radio Commission.

4 Dead, 14 Sailors Saved From Rabies

MANILA, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Fourteen sailors of the destroyer John D. Edwards, who were exposed to rabies through dog scratches or bites, were pronounced out of danger today after three weeks of the Pasteur treatment. They will return to duty next Saturday.

Four of their shipmates, who were bitten by a pet dog smuggled aboard the American naval vessel during a visit to Chefoo, China, October 16, died of rabies. Because of a general order against bringing pets aboard, they had failed to report being bitten.

Woman, 78, Begins Second Dry Law Term

HAMMOND, Ind., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—At the age of 78, Tillie Kella, of Indiana Harbor, went to the Indiana woman's prison for her second term in two years, both sentences for violating the liquor law. She started a year's term today. Her husband died in jail a year ago.

2 WOMEN HELD IN ROBBERY

Two women and two men, arrested by Lieut. Edward Helwig of Oakmont, last week, in connection with the robbery in the real estate office of J. M. Witherspoon and Son, Oakmont, were held for court by Justice of the Peace W. E. Bair, Oakmont, last night. ADMIRAL FIGHTS NAVY CUT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—In the boldest declaration yet issued from an official Navy source, Rear Admiral Frank B. Upham today termed the administration policy of reduction a severe blow to the national defense.

Upham as chief of the Bureau of Navigation is one of the highest placed admirals. He chose his annual report to the Secretary as a vehicle to air his views, with the attack particularly directed at the current reductions in the number of ships in active commission, and in the number of men allowed on the vessels. He said:

"This reduction in the strength of our enlisted personnel and in the number of ships retained in commission was made after the ratification of the London treaty and with the Navy still greatly under the strength permitted us by that treaty and inferior to ratios prescribed by the Washington and London treaties."

'Nuisance' Tax Plan Revived

phonograph equipment and accessories.

A 5 per cent tax and manufacturers' sales of automobiles, 3 per cent on trucks and 2.50 per cent on accessories.

An increase of 1 per cent in the existing stamp tax on sales or transfers of capital stock.

A stamp tax on realty conveyances of 50 cents for each $500 in excess of $100.

The Mellon program was revealed coincidentally with the submission of President Hoover's budget message to Congress in which the executive disclosed the necessity for raising $1,310,000,000 additional revenue in the next two fiscal years.

SECRETARY'S PROGRAM

Based for the most part on rates in the 1918 revenue act, the Secretary's program in brief is:

1—Income tax increases that will produce added revenue of $83,000,000 in the last half of next year and $185,000,000 during the full fiscal year of 1933.

2—A corporation tax increase from the present 12 per cent to 12½ per cent, producing an additional $22,000,000 and $66,000,000 respectively.

3—Miscellaneous taxes, including a limited sales tax producing an additional $205,000,000 and $514,000,000, respectively.

4—Restoration of the 1924 estate tax producing an additional $11,000,000 and $22,000,000.

5—Increase of postal rates to provide an added $150,000,000 on an annual basis.

INCOME TAX RATES

Under the income tax proposal the normal rates would be fixed at 2 4 and 6 per cent as compared with 1½ 3 and 5 per cent at present.

Surtax rates would be set at 1 per cent beginning with net incomes over $10,000 and graduated up to 37 per cent on incomes of between $100,000 and $200,000 reaching a maximum of 40 per cent on incomes in excess of $500,000. This compared with the present maximum of 20 per cent incomes in excess of $100,000.

Personal exemptions would be lowered from $1,500 to $1,000 for unmarried persons without dependents and from $3,500 to $2,500 for married persons.

The existing exemption of $400 for each dependent and the 25 per cent deduction for earned income would be continued.

In addition to the one-half of one per cent increase in the corporation tax, the Secretary recommended that the present exemption of $3,000 for domestic corporations with incomes of $25,000 or less be eliminated.

ESTATE TAX

The 1924 estate tax which the Secretary would restore provides for taxation of net estates at rates graduated from 1 per cent on the first $50,000 to 25 per cent on amounts in excess of $10,000,000.

To avoid automatic increase in state levies where such taxes are based on the present federal rate, the Secretary urged that the increase be effected by means of a supertax to be imposed in addition to the present rates, with no deduction from this supertax for state taxes paid. Thus amounts of state taxes paid would continue to be allowed as credits against the federal tax, as at present, but the entire proceeds of the supertax would be retained by the federal government.

The Secretary made no specific recommendations with regard to the additional $150,000,000 postal revenue. Postmaster General Brown already has urged a permanent 2½ cent rate on first-class mail and an emergency rate of three cents.

GOVERNMENT ECONOMY

In submitting his program, Mr. Mellon called for the most rigid governmental economy, adding:

"The taxpayer is asked to assume a large additional burden. He is entitled to know that the government on its part is so conducting its business as not to demand of him anything more than is actually necessary."

Again he said:

"It is not easy for any people to determine to assume a large additional tax burden at a time when their resources are depleted through business depression, but in the long run they will best serve their own interests by doing whatever is required to maintain the finances of their government on a sound basis.

"The history of many nations attests this conclusion."

MELLON URGES END OF BRANCH BANK BAN

Secretary Points to Losses From Failures in Sending Proposal to Congress

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Alarmed over the appalling losses from bank failures during 1931, Secretary Mellon today recommended to Congress legislation that would permit national banks to establish branches within trade areas surrounding the parent institution.

In this recommendation, Mellon backed Comptroller of the Currency J. W. Pole and for the first time placed his influence back of the extension of branch banking in the national system.

Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, head of a sub-committee of the Senate, is now making a study of the banking situation. It was anticipated a bill providing for a wider range of activity by national banks would result.

OTHER RECOMMENDATIONS

Other important recommendations by Mellon were:

1—Authority for corporations to deduct from gross income for tax purposes contributions made for charity.

2—Authorization for the Treasury to subscribe for additional amounts of capital stock of federal land banks to the extent of $100,000,000.

3—Authorization for the Treasury to take action necessary to enable the government to realize the utmost amount obtainable on account of outstanding railroad obligations and to liquidate these post-war borrowings.

4—Ratification of the Hoover moratorium on foreign war debts and their repayment over a 10-year period, beginning July 1, 1933.

5—Increase in postal rates to reduce the $150,000,000 estimated postal deficit in the fiscal year 1932; to reduce the deficit by $75,000,000 in 1933 and to eliminate it in subsequent years.

Mellon estimated total government revenue in the 1933 fiscal year would amount to $2,695,960,500, expenditures of $4,112,909,900 with a deficit of $1,416,949,400 and in 1931 receipts, $2,359,469,700; expenditures, $4,482,153,400, and the deficit $2,122,683,600. These figures compared with receipts of $3,317,237,400 in 1931, expenditures, $4,219,950,300, and a deficit of $902,716,800.

ESTIMATED REVENUE

The estimate showed anticipated income tax collections of $1,100,000,000 in 1933 and $1,140,000,000 in 1932 compared with $1,860,394,200 in 1931. Miscellaneous internal revenue was estimated at $588,000,000 for 1933 and $544,000,000 for 1932 against actual receipts for 1931 of $569,386,700. Customs receipts were estimated at $480,000,000 for 1933, $410,000,000 for 1932 and $376,576,300 for 1931.

Mellon said:

"In making forecasts of revenue it has been assumed that in the calendar year 1932 there will be definite improvement in the general conditionf of industry and trade. The full effect of the improvement is not apparent, however, in the estimated receipts. The delay in improvement in receipts results partly from the fact that income tax collections on 1932 incomes will not be included in receipts until the last half of the fiscal year 1933 and partly from the fact that in the initial stages of recovery increased income, particularly of corporations, will be reduced by the deduction of losses which under the law may be carried forward from prior years."

CITES SUSPENSIONS

Mellon recalled that from January 1 to October 31 there were 1,753 bank suspensions, involving deposits of $1,461,852,000. Of this list, 310 with deposits of $367,088,000 were national banks.

It was pointed out that in December, 1929, the comptroller called attention of Congress to the necessity of strengthening the banking structure because of the rapidly mounting failures. Calling attention to the increase in the severity of the situation during the depression and large withdrawals, Mellon said:

"A fact not generally appreciated is that this vicious circle of events, which frequently leads to the restriction of operations by sound banks, is brought about largely through the action of the depositor himself."

It was a gloomy picture of falling receipts that the President laid before Congress.

For 1931, he reported the government's actual receipts fell short of the Treasury's estimates by $516,000,000, while the actual expenditures increased $207,000,000 over the estimates. The sharp drop in receipts was in the income tax and customs divisions, while the increased expenditures were for drought relief, public works and veterans' loans.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1932, he said, "receipts originally estimated at $3,956,000,000 are now expected to fail of realization because of the severity of the depression, and will fall below the estimates by $1,717,000,000."

Airplane Burned, Believed Incendiary

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—A biplane, owned by Tony Delvecchio, Rayland, O., was destroyed by fire yesterday at a loss of $2,500. Delvecchio believes the fire was incendiary, as he found a petcock under the gas tank turned on.

Plan Truck Merger As Railroads' Rival

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Jacob Maniss, traffic counselor, announced today 38 motor truck lines on the Pacific coast intended to consolidate to effect a working agreement with water carriers and compete with railroads for long haul shipments of less than carload lot freight.

TAX INCREASE TO AFFECT EVERYONE

Hoover's Budget Message Outlines Program for Overcoming U. S. Deficit

ent, and surtaxes would begin with 1 per cent at $10,000, graduating upward to 40 per cent on incomes in excess of $500,000. The present maximum surtax is 20 per cent.

Exemptions would be lowered, too, in order to bring some 1,700,000 citizens back into the income tax paying class.

The corporation tax would be increased from 12 to 12½ per cent, while the estate tax would go back to the 1921 level of 1 per cent on $50,000, graduating upward to 25 per cent on amounts in excess of $10,000,000.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS

The miscellaneous taxes would include manufacturers' tax on automobiles, radios, phonographs, auto trucks and accessories.

The President's message said:

"We cannot maintain public confidence nor stability of the federal government without undertaking some temporary tax increases.

"I recommend that Congress provide an increase in taxation for a definite limited period and upon the general plan of the revenue act of 1924, with such changes as may be appropriate in the light of altered conditions.

"It is proposed that this increase shall be definitely terminated two years from next July."

"This plan, it is estimated, will realize $902,000,000 next year and thus meet the conditions of balancing the budget for the fiscal year 1933, except for the statutory debt retirement. It would balance the budget, including debt retirement, in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1933. It would provide about $390,000,000 for the current year, leaving us with the necessity of borrowing an amount which will represent a net increase in the public debt of about $1,320,000,000."

RE-ENACTS 1924 LAW

The plan of approximately re-enacting the 1924 law, he said, has the advantages that both the government and the public are familiar with it. He continues:

"The public has paid such taxes in the past and has found them not intolerable and has found that they do not prevent increased prosperity. By providing a definite date for termination of the temporary increase it will allow taxpayers to look forward to definite relief.

"I further recommend that Congress inquire into the economic effect of the provisions of the present law relating to capital gains and losses."

Strawn Sees Barrier To Additional Taxes

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Elias H. Strawn, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, looks for difficulties in any national tax revision program.

Commenting on President Hoover's message to Congress, Strawn said he did not see how increased revenues were to be obtained. He expressed the opinion an increase on the income tax in the higher brackets would not solve the problem.

This completed "Christmas Jingle" must be in the mail before midnight, Thursday, December 10, addressed to CHRISTMAS JINGLES, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Write No. 28 on the lower left-hand corner of your envelope. Names of winners will be published in the Sun-Telegraph one week from day this incomplete "jingle" appears.

Jingle Writers Critical Of Tardy Shopper

Mrs. Topping, who was mentioned as one of the belated Christmas shoppers, is a type that once in a while drives the tired salesgirls to exasperation. Fortunately there are few of her kind, yet as a subject for "Christmas Jingle" No. 21 she created a lot of interest and an avalanche of answers.

She had most of the jingles "hopping" and "popping." Virginia Montague, 341 Bower Hill road, seemed to get unusual originality in her last line and the judges gave her the Sun-Telegraph check for $5—first prize. The jingle as she completed it reads:

A matron of wealth, Mrs. Topping,
Who was generally late with her shopping,
Seemed indifferent to clerks
With her last-minute quirks—
Just an old, thoughtless custom outcropping.

The five $1 prizes went to George M. Weaver, Imperial; C. E. Loos, 6529 Brighton road, Ben Avon; W. B. Atwood, Jr., 910 California avenue; D. E. Maston, Emsworth, and Gordon W. Lacy, 1653 Suburban avenue.

Try your hand on No. 28, appearing on this page today. The "last line" judged the best will win $5 and the next five $1 each.

All readers of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, with the exception of employes, are invited to enter the "Christmas Jingle" contest. You can send in as many last lines as you like. Equal awards will be paid to readers whose answers are tied in the judging. You do not have to buy a Sun-Telegraph to enter this contest. You may examine the files of this newspaper at the public library or at any one of the offices of the Sun-Telegraph, where you may make a tracing of the "Christmas Jingles" blank if you wish.

Each Sun-Telegraph "Christmas Jingle" will be consecutively numbered.

RADIO STARS AID CHARITY :-: Olive Palmer, Revelers In Farewell Program

WE NOW PRESENT

By Darrell V. Martin
Radio Editor

PITTSBURGH RADIO stars are to "pitch in" their share of relief for the needy tomorrow night by presenting a stupendous Christmas Welfare [illegible] arrival in the Duquesne Building. Cecil was [illegible] For the first time in the history of Pittsburgh radio talent from all five stations is to perform on the same stage. The "hall" has been sold out completely with perhaps 2,000 people anticipating the opportunity of watching in person the star radio acts in our city. The lineup of entertainment looks like a "Who's Who in Pittsburgh Radio" . . . Neal Mowry and Dick Carroll, chairmen of the affair, have included the following entertainment: Riggs and Moke, Lawson Sisters, Uncle Henry and his KQV Rascals, Virginia Harmon, Charles F. Danver, Glenn Riggs, University Dance Band directed by Don Breitenbaugh, Jean and Her Dad, Jay Smith, impersonator, Behind the Kitchen Door, Fred Webber, Cousin Lora, Gertrude Mohr, Joe Sartori, Jim Hughes, Uncle Ray, Dee and Tampa the Magician . . . Ford Miller, WCAE announcer, and Fred C. Millard are to alternate as master of ceremonies . . . the stage is to be a replica of a studio and the artists are to perform exactly as on the air . . . the entire proceeds is to be donated to charity.

Darrell V. Martin

* * *

The curtain rings down tonight on one of the most liked features of the air, the Soap Program over WCAE at 9:30, featuring Olive Palmer, Paul Oliver and the Revelers Quartet . . . and what a farewell! Don't miss it! . . . Olive Palmer, who in real life is Virginia Rae Murphy, has not as yet been signed by any other sponsor.

* * *

Mother and daughter are to be guests of Nellie Revell on WCAE at 11 . . . and guess who? . . . Sally Cohen, of old vaudeville fame and her now famous offspring, Gladys Rice.

* * *

Question a Day:

Has any announcer switching allegiance from one station to another, announced call letters of his old station by accident and, if so, is there any penalty?—Charles C. Perrysville.

Answer—It has happened a few times right here in Pittsburgh. Announcers soon grow accustomed to repeating one set of calls and when changing employment are apt to give the wrong call. Not so long ago a WCAE announcer, who transferred to KDKA, forgot himself and started off with the "W—" and craftily covered his error by saying "W—SXK and KDKA in Pittsburgh," giving the call of KDKA's shortwave station first. It took fast thinking on his part. There is no government penalty for this mistake.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Two famed sopranos who once roamed the operatic pastures have said within the past week that the day is at hand, or will come, when their voices will be heard only on the radio.

Only a few short years ago Geraldine Farrar and Amelita Galli-Curci were the two foremost stars in the opera heavens, and radio was merely an experiment of some visionaries in the electrical laboratories. Today—well, today is another story.

Today, radio is the old homestead of musical refuge, the ever reliable haven in which even operatic songbirds find hospitable shelter and ever so profitable protection in their declining years. Its beacon lights shine so friendly, so welcomingly. And even those who are out on the hills astray, far from its gates of gold, do not worry.

* * *

That is, they do not need to worry if the building light of publicity has beat well upon them. If their reputations have been vast and imposing radio not only will extend its hand but will even run out to meet them. Hence the assurance in the voices of Mesdames Farrar and Galli-Curci.

* * *

So revolutionary are the changes in the upper strata of the musical world, due to radio, that it seems to us the time is ripe and appropriate for a new and accurate simile:

As contented as an opera singer.

And the contentment can only be attributed to the microphones.

* * *

It must be immensely comforting to singers who, after long years of toil, have scaled the operatic walls to know that radio awaits them at the end of the journey—radio with its riches, its freedom from tours and exacting hours. And don't think they are not aware of the broadcasting glories that await them. They never lose an opportunity to get ready for the day when they can confine themselves exclusively to those glories.

ALL IN A DAY By Mark Hellinger

Unsung New Yorkers

STORIES OF the star and the understudy are generally interesting—but they usually have the common fault of being pretty much the same. In the end, the star becomes ill and the little understudy trips upon the stage to give a performance that tops anything the star ever did. Some day, if I get the courage, I want to write a similar yarn and change the ending so that the understudy proves a terrific bust. It may not be good reading, but it will at least be novel.

The story I tell you here was unfolded to me by a gentleman who knows both parties very well. Once again it concerns the star and the understudy—but I think it's a trifle different from the usual run.

Suppose we tag the star with the name of Bernice, and her understudy with the handle of Joan. The two of them have worked together for several years. Indeed, whenever Bernice has been engaged for a role she has always insisted that Joan be hired at a salary of $75 a week. And the request is never refused.

Joan liked Bernice a very great deal; liked her and admired her. It was to Bernice that she owed the fact that she was working pretty steadily. And if she ever wished from the bottom of her heart that the star would fall ill for just one or two performances, nobody knew it but herself.

The understudy must have had that hope in her heart. She wouldn't have been human if she didn't. I can't imagine anything much more unsatisfactory than standing around in the wings every night watching a performer doing the work you know you can do equally as well—and never getting the chance to open your mouth.

The star insisted on Joan as her understudy for more reasons than one. In the first place, the girl had been around her for some three years, and there weren't many things about the famous lady that she didn't know. And you can take it from me that that included plenty.

At the moment our story opens, Bernice was involved in one of her periodic affairs. There were many of them, and they didn't last long.

As soon as she tired of the gentleman in hand—which never took more than a month or two—she shook him pronto. Sometimes there was an episode with a gun that barely missed the papers. But always the star managed to come through unharmed—and happy.

It was when one affair was in its last stages and another was in the offing that Joan came in extremely handy. It was a simple matter to go out with a new boy friend as long as Joan was along. No matter where they went, Joan was the third party. And then, when a jealous man asked her this and that, her reply was simple.

"Why, Frank," she would say in amazed tone, "whatever are you talking about? Of course your friend saw me in the Five O'Clock Club after the show. But whom was I with? Why, you silly, jealous man—I was with my understudy and that very nice boy who likes her so much. Surely there's no harm in that. You silly, silly boy."

Yes, sir. Of such stuff is romance made . . .

Joan was in love. And not the type of love that the star went in for, either. This was the real thing. So real, in fact, that you don't meet much of it backstage. Come to think of it, the situation may be explained when I tell you that the boy had nothing to do with the theater.

He was a lawyer, and a very young one. He had only graduated as an attorney some five years before, but he was already doing extremely well in a profession that is far too overcrowded. No millions pouring in, and very few hundreds. But a deliberate building of good will that looked like a fine foundation for a future.

It was decided that Joan and her young man were to be married at some future date. . . . The boy wanted Joan to quit the stage and hop into the matrimonial sea as soon as it could be arranged. But Joan couldn't see it that way.

"After all, Tom," she argued, "I'll never have the same chance before me as I have today. I love you very dearly and I'm dreaming of the day when I will do nothing but be your wife and make you comfortable. But isn't there a little more time for that?"

"Maybe my break will come at any time. Maybe Bernice will decide to take a vacation—or something—and I can get my one chance. After that, I'll be satisfied to call it a go.

"Don't you see what it means to me, Tom. Don't you see that, all through my life, I'll have that to look back upon. Can you understand how very much it will mean to me?"

Tom said he understood. I doubt if he did. .

Bernice knew Tom. It was only natural that Joan should introduce them, and introduce them rather proudly. Bernice was a great figure in the theatre and Tom was a distinctly good looking bird.

It took about two months after that introduction for Joan to realize that something was wrong. You would have surmised the reason long before Joan did. Bernice had made a play for Tom, and he had gone for it in first-class fashion.

As far as Joan was concerned, he became evasive. He began to dodge phone calls from her and to miss appointments. At the same time, Bernice began to act strangely. And Joan was finally compelled to put one and one together.

She didn't go to Tom about the situation. She went to Bernice's dressing room between the acts one night and spoke a few words that were very much to the point.

"I know you," she told the star, "and I know what you can do to a man. I love Tom—and if you don't keep away from him, something terrible is going to happen."

Bernice went into one of her best performances.

"Why, my dear, dear child," she cooed, "don't be such a silly duck. I wouldn't hurt you for any man in the world. Just you get that silly notion out of your head."

A week later, Bernice did something she had never been willing to do before. She eloped with Tom—and married him . . .

* * *

The following morning, when the news was printed, congratulatory messages poured in on the couple. They sat together and read them. And near the end of the batch, there was one from Joan. It was addressed to Bernice alone and it made no mention of Tom.

"I said I was going to do something terrible," it read, "but I have changed my mind. I wish you all the luck in the world."

"It's funny how things run, though. When I finally played a part in real life, it had to be that of an understudy . . . "

Own Rifle Kills Man When Auto Hits Rail

WELLSVILLE, N. Y., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Hugh Faulkner, 23, of Friendship, was killed yesterday by a bullet from his own rifle. The shooting is believed to have been accidental.

There was no eye-witness, but marks on a guard rail, near the crest of East Notch Hill, on the Friendship-Bolivar road, and the course taken by the car, are taken by the authorities to indicate that the rifle was discharged when Faulkner's car sideswiped the guard rail. The automobile continued on its course 300 feet down the hill and around a bend, where it left the highway and hit a tree.

The affidavit, filed with a motion for new trial on the grounds of newly discovered evidence, was made by Mrs. Simone Glunck, a former maid employed by Mrs. Sanborn.

POLITICS
Gollmar Appointment Stirs Political Strife
By MARK SHIELDS

Mr. Shields

Seldom have the political waters of Allegheny County been so roiled as by the appointment of Frank I. Gollmar as Sheriff. It is significant that Independents generally and organization politicians outside the circle of Senator James J. Coyne and Mayor Charles H. Kline are bitterly displeased with the action of Gov. Pinchot.

The enigma in the situation is County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, vacationing in Bermuda. It has not been determined what McGovern's position is on the Gollmar appointment at this time.

It is termed odd that Sheriff Robert S. Cain, elected County Treasurer in November, insisted his resignation be accepted at this time. They admit Cain's right to a vacation before taking up his new duties, but see a remarkable coincidence in its acceptance with McGovern out of the territory. Cain, it must be remembered, is associated with the Kline-Schooley-Coyne organization, and is not an Independent.

Furthermore, it is reported that when organization followers protested Cain's candidacy for the treasury as a step which would turn the Sheriff's office over to the Independents, word was passed that this contingency had been considered, and that the post would remain in hands friendly to the organization, despite Gov. Pinchot's vehement independence. And today the Kline-Coyne organization men are satisfied.

* * *

Activity for Coyne Displeases Independents

Gollmar joined the Independent movement in 1922 and subsequently was rewarded by Pinchot with appointment as Deputy Attorney General and then Judge of Common Pleas Court. He was defeated when he ran for Judge, lacking an appeal to the same Independent wave which elected Judges James H. Gray, Frank Patterson and the late Richard W. Martin in the revolt of 1927.

He was ostensibly Allegheny County Pinchot manager last year, but the real work of that campaign was done by McGovern, Coyne—working as an agent of former Senator Joseph R. Grundy—and, as much as some independents will hate to admit it now, James F. Malone.

Gollmar's next discernible political activity was in behalf of Coyne as a County Commissioner candidate in the September primary this year. During that period his brother received a state job through Coyne influence.

This is the stumbling block for Independents. They contend that any man who could champion Coyne as one of the administrators of the county, endeavoring to extend his sphere of influence, is not the type for Sheriff of Allegheny County in view of the verdict of the voters in both September and November of this year.

* * *

Evidently Mr. Pinchot does not realize that the voters here this fall were not voting so much for individuals—McGovern, Barr or Mansfield—as against the extension or retention of a vicious system of corrupt politics. That is why the old county board administration was repudiated, and why Coyne, Gollmar's sponsor, was blocked in his effort to use the Republican machine to elect a pliant Democrat to the county board in November.

Independents figured that the county board was in their hands. They hoped that District Attorney Andrew T. Park, reading the signs of the times, would become a more vigorous prosecutor, as he seems to be doing. Then they wanted the Sheriff's office free of any organization influence, so it could be used to reincarnate its power to break up the protected rackets which can exist only through the sympathy and promotion of politicians.

They do not question Gollmar's honesty, but they do complain that, apparently, he believes that Senator Coyne is the ideal type of public official.

In essence, the Independents generally regard this as a Coyne appointment, rather than a Pinchot appointment. So much for that. Where does McGovern stand?

Reports on McGovern Stand Questioned

Friends of the Commissioner report that just before he left for his vacation he insisted that he was for another man for Sheriff.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

OSAKA, Dec. 9.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Flying from Japan to Manchuria. Every man, woman and Democrat in the world has seen pictures of Japan's famous mountain peak with the snow on top, Mount Fujiyama, but think of flying around him! We flew by him yesterday. And what a beautiful country this is to fly over. I didn't know Japan was so mountainous. Had old Gibbons rubbering for a landing field, but there wasn't any. This is just one of the villages of Japan. It only has 2,000,000. The papers here predict a fight at Chinchow.

MOTHERS SERVING SOUP FOR PUPILS
And Here's One Spring Garden School Miss Enjoying It

MISS VIOLET DEEP IN HER NOONTIME SOUP . . . . . MOTHERS MEET DAILY, SERVE IT FREE

SCHOOL SERVES HOT LUNCHES

Nourishing noonday meals are being served to an average of 60 undernourished students of the Spring Garden Avenue public school at a daily cost of 3 cents per plate.

Started on Monday through the co-operation of Principal J. C. Schrader and his staff, the Parent-Teacher Association and Kindergarten Mothers, the plan is meeting with success. The meal is being financed by Principal Schrader and his staff, and is prepared and served by members of the latter organizations.

Menus vary from day to day. On Monday mashed potatoes, sauerkraut and weiners were served. Tuesday appetizing vegetable soup was the offering and lamb stew was to be served today. The cost of the food, much of which is donated, for the week will not exceed $10, or an average daily cost of 3 cents per plate.

Principal Schrader plans to continue the noonday lunches the remainder of the school year.

Children Invited To Benefit Play

Public school children of the Ninth Ward have been invited to attend a free performance Saturday afternoon of the comedy, "It Pays to Advertise," being staged by the dramatic society of St. Mary's Church, Forty-sixth street, for the unemployed of the ward.

Afternoon and evening performances will be given Saturday and Sunday. The Rev. C. J. Coyne, pastor, is sponsor of the play.

Rum Seized in Raid On East End Club

Prohibition agents who raided the Hollywood Club on the second floor of a three-story brick building at 6353 Hamilton avenue late last night, reported they found a 20-foot bar and dance floor, confiscated whisky, gin and beer and arrested the alleged bartender. The prisoner said he was Jack Williams, 29, of Box 334, Frankstown avenue.

Message Not Sure Cure, Just A Wheel Chair
By Arthur (Bugs) Baer

We do this every morning, said Congress when it jumped under Mr. Hoover's cold showers.

Herbert sure turned on the ice water for the taxpayers, the Army and the Navy.

The message is not an absolute cure. The best we can say for it is that it is a wheel chair.

It helps the bankers and the railroads but the passengers must jump.

While calling for the territorial integrity of China it realizes that Manchuria is a divot that will never be replaced.

The dole and the bonus add up to two crullers and no coffee.

It favors stronger law enforcement that the government of the people shall not perish from the irks.

No change in the tariff and very little in the cash register.

Dublin Terrorists Get Long Terms

DUBLIN, Dec. 9.—(INS.)—Heavy sentences were meted out by a secret military tribunal here today to the notorious Gilmore brothers, accused of carrying on a reign of terror for years in the Dublin hills. George Gilmore was sentenced to nine years in prison and Charles Gilmore was sentenced to five years in jail.

COAL TO ARRIVE FOR DESTITUTE

Harry I. Miller, chairman of the Surplus for Needy Committee, today announced that five cars of coal would be shipped into the city today for distribution to needy families. The coal is part of 23,000 tons donated by a company, whose name is being withheld.

The coal company is putting men to work immediately, so that they may have a pay day before Christmas. The coal mined by the men will be given to the committee for distribution. The first day's shipment will be received at the yards of the McCrady-Rodgers Company in East Liberty. The company said it would deliver the coal free of charge.

Other shipments will be received daily. Another coal company has offered to donate 5,000 tons immediately, Miller said, and arrangements have been made with the Retail Coal Dealers Association of Pittsburgh to make free deliveries to families in distress.

PRE-CHRISTMAS PAYMENTS UNLIKELY
Only 3 Small Institutions Make Yule Disbursement; Organization Speeds Work

Expectations of an important pre-Christmas distribution of cash to depositors in closed state banks in Western Pennsylvania appeared dashed today as it became known that only three small institutions will pay anything before the holiday.

This became known through Banking Secretary William D. Gordon's hurried visit to Pittsburgh for organization of his liquidation corporation, yesterday.

Gordon, asked if more than these three of the 37 closed state banks in Western Pennsylvania would pay before Christmas, said:

"Only the three announced by me on my last visit will pay dividends within that time."

These banks are the Perry, the Hamilton and the McGillick.

Naming of officers and committees of the Second District Realization Corporation, however, marked completion of a step forward in final, orderly liquidation of assets of the closed institutions. Prominent business and financial leaders of Pittsburgh will help the work.

CHAPLIN PRESIDENT

President of the corporation is James C. Chaplin, vice president and active head of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association and president of the Colonial Trust Company. H. P. Phillips, Deputy Secretary of Banking in charge of the Perry State Bank, was named secretary and treasurer of the corporation.

Work of the corporation was divided into three categories for liquidation—of securities, of loans and discounts, and of mortgages and real estate. Committees were named to handle each division. They will be directed by an executive committee, headed by Chaplin.

Consideration of securities and mortgages and real estate will be made from the standpoint of probable increase or decrease in value. Future prospects will govern decisions to sell now or wait for future increases in value.

Individuals with commercial paper in banks will not be pressed for immediate full payment where their reputations and credit indicate that they are good risks and 21 Billiard Balls Mere Handful!

J. B. SHUSTER, OF JEANNETTE . . . . . 21, BILLIARD BALLS!

WARNS YOUTHS OF CARD FAKES

Picking up 10 billiard balls in one hand without assistance from the other is just play for J. B. Shuster, of 700 Magee street, Jeannette.

Doing the same feat with nine baseballs is slightly more difficult, but Shuster can do it. The secret is in his hand spread. Shuster explained yesterday in a stopover in the city en route to one of his public demonstrations. Each hand has a span of 10¾ inches from tip of small finger to thumb.

And if the hands seem so large that they might be clumsy, Shuster changes the idea with a demonstration in card manipulations. Out comes five deals with each a full house, but the succeeding one a little better until they end on the fifth deal with four aces. Shuster devotes part of his demonstrations to revealing the tricks of card "sharks" as a warning to youth.

FIREMEN FIGHT BLAZE TWICE

North Side firemen were called twice within three hours early today to prevent the spread of fire which damaged two unoccupied frame houses at 1441½ and 1442 Rush street. Damage was estimated at $1,500 by Battalion Chief Sam Jones. The cause of the fire was not determined by firemen.

Damage estimated at $1,000 resulted when fire destroyed a tool shed of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, 5948 Center avenue, and spread to the R. E. Loughney Motor Company Building, next door, last night. Damage to the motor company was placed at $100.

Explosion of several barrels of gasoline fed the flames and endangered firemen, who said they believed the fire was caused by an overheated stove.

WELFARE HEADS CITE STRICKEN HOMES HERE
Records for Relief Demands Broken as Campaign Seeks To Offset Huge Wage Loss

A list of Welfare Fund contributors appears on Page 17.

Urging the public to recognize and respond to the mute plea of thousands of needy families throughout Allegheny County, officials of the $5,981,000 campaign of the Welfare Fund and Allegheny County Emergency Association declared that all previous records of family welfare agencies have been shattered within the last month.

A total of 5,840 new and reopened cases were reported during November by one family agency alone, officials said. This figure does not include the number already being carried by the agency.

The Social Service Exchange, where new cases are tabulated to prevent duplication, reported the heaviest day in its history last month with 1,460 families recorded within a 24-hour period.

FAMILIES DISRUPTED

Declaring that desperation is leading to desertion and the breaking down of family life, G. G. Coolidge, president of the Family Welfare Association and associate chairman of the campaign, pointed out that the wage loss in the community this year, based on figures from the Pittsburgh Business Review, is over $500,000,000. He said:

"For the suffering, hardship and need caused by this wage loss we are trying to make up with the pitifully small sum of $6,000,000, and to raise that we have had to extend the campaign three weeks and go back to the contributors asking for increases."

ONLY JOBS NEEDED

Coolidge said that many families receiving aid are those who in ordinary times would never approach a welfare agency. Declaring that in hundreds of new cases coming to the attention of the agencies the one thing needed is a job—an opportunity for self-support, Coolidge said:

"The wage-earners of these families are skilled workers, white collar men. Unaccustomed to physical labor, they eagerly ask for a chance to dig sewers, to grade streets, to do anything at all for the bare $12 a week paid by the Emergency Association. And the tragedy is that no jobs are available."

With 10,000 men and women registered and demanding work, the emergency group is forced to hold back further expansion of its employment program pending the final outcome of the campaign, officials said. More than a quarter of a million dollars was spent in wages and relief during November, providing employment for 5,000 men and women and aid for 5,000 families, campaign leaders declared.

Drunkenness Plea In Killing Shaken

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—The murder trial of Jacob C. Lehman, reputed bookmaker and professional gambler, entered its third day today with a drunkenness plea he was expected to enter apparently weakened.

After the prosecutor yesterday announced he would ask the jury to send "Big Jake" to the electric chair for slaying Ralph Spanish at Conshohocken last October, Thomas A Touey, a state witness, testified Lehman entered a restaurant looking for Spanish three hours before the shooting.

Police Hunt Auto Stolen With Salesman's Gems

Police today were searching for an automobile containing thousands of dollars worth of gems stolen from Chester G. Hall, a jewelry salesman, yesterday on Center avenue, near Penn avenue.

Hall, a member of the firm of Hall Brothers & Co., Clark Building, reported that his coupe was stolen yesterday afternoon five minutes after he had left it to make a call on an East Liberty jeweler.

His sample case, containing diamonds and other jewelry, was locked in the rear compartment of the car. The doors and ignition of the car were also locked, according to Hall. The salesman said:

"Whoever stole the automobile must have known who I was, and followed me after I left my store."

He said he did not know the exact value of the jewelry.

'Vegetable Tea' in Place Of Water Served by City

Vegetable tea is the drink served in the East Liberty district, by the city today. It is all caused by the drought above the Kiskiminetas River last fall.

Complaints of the taste and odor of the city water were made to Dr. C. B. Maits, of the Department of Health and Chester Drake, division superintendent of the Bureau of Water.

Dr. Maits admitted he had received a complaint and Supt. Drake said following complaints he had taken numerous samples of water. He explained the peculiar taste is not serious and no ill effects would accrue from drinking the water.

He explained the woody taste is produced by surface water from above the Kiskiminetas River, now finding its way into the streams, he said:

"It is all caused by the drought and could happen to any vegetable districts. Technically, it is known as vegetable tea."

WOMAN CAUGHT IN PURSUIT, LOOT SEIZED

Fur Coats, Gems, Silver Recovered, Police Report South Hills Thefts Solved

Two truck loads of loot today was packed in Mt. Lebanon Police Station, taken from the Frankstown avenue residence of a Negro woman, a suspect, who was arrested late yesterday after a spectacular chase through Dormont streets and Greentree Borough.

Eight fur coats, silverware, jewelry, clothing and other articles were among the collection found in the residence of Lillian Smith, Negro 35, last night, and according to Mt. Lebanon police will clear scores of robberies in the South Hills district.

Harry Halfpenny, entering his apartment at Glenmore and Hillsdale avenues late yesterday, surprised a woman ransacking the place. As he stopped, she picked up a packet containing five men's suits and fled, chased by Halfpenny.

THREATENS PURSUER

The woman dropped the loot but Halfpenny continued to follow her. After chasing her several blocks he shouted to a gas station attendant to call Mt. Lebanon police. As Halfpenny continued the chase, the woman drew a knife and threatened her pursuer, it was said.

Thus she kept Halfpenny 20 feet away from her until the Mt. Lebanon police car took up the chase. The officers followed the fleeing woman out of Dormont, through a wooded section. In Greentree Borough they arrested the suspect.

Police say they found a knife and a complete kit of burglar tools on the prisoner. After questioning, the Smith woman gave her address and the police, with the permission of Pittsburgh police, went to her Frankstown avenue residence.

SEIZE $5,000 PROPERTY

Two trips to the residence were made by borough trucks before all the alleged loot could be carried out, Mt. Lebanon police said.

At the Mt. Lebanon Police Station, Dr. C. E. Schultz, of Park avenue, Castle Shannon, police say, identified the Smith woman as the one who, on June 24, entered his apartment and stole jewelry and cash valued at nearly $2,000.

The value of the articles confiscated at the woman's apartment will total more than $5,000, according to Capt. Charles W. Senn, of Mt. Lebanon.

Police say the woman made daily trips through the district, calling at homes asking for employment. If residents were not home, she opened the door with a key or broke a window to gain entrance, police say.

2 ON PROBATION IN AMBROSE ESCAPE

Former Fugitive's Helpers Warned in Federal Court; Another Aide Faces Trial

William Brennan, 21, of 27 Mansfield road, and Thomas Martino, 20, of 15 McKnight street, pleaded guilty in Federal Court of aiding and concealing Arthur (Hunk) Ambrose, after the latter, on September 28, escaped from federal officers by leaping through a railroad train window near the Fort Wayne Station.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker placed them upon probation for two years each, but warned them that if they broke any laws or in any way violated the provisions of their probations the probations would be revoked and sentences would be imposed for the part they took in assisting Ambrose to escape.

After escaping, Ambrose went to the home of Brennan, who then resided in Steuben street, and there Brennan and Martino filed off a pair of handcuffs on one of the fugitive's wrists. After remaining at large for several weeks Ambrose surrendered to special agents of the Department of Justice.

The escape occurred while Ambrose was being brought from Erie to Pittsburgh. He had been convicted in Federal Court at Erie on a Mann act charge and sentenced to serve three years in Atlanta penitentiary.

Frank (Slim) Merriman, a government prisoner, to whom Ambrose was handcuffed while en route from Erie, this morning was to be placed on trial before Judge Schoonmaker and charged with aiding in the escape.

MANAGER PLAN URGED AS MOVE FOR REFORM

Cincinnati Speaker Sees Prosperity Bond Issue As Need of Nation

Pittsburghers are mistaken if they think that one wave of reform such as swept the city and county in the last election will change local government over night, according to Walter J. Millard, of Cincinnati, a leader in the city manager movement.

Prosperity bonds are favored by Mr. Millard. An issue of bonds by the Federal Government rather than a tax increase would bring back prosperity in 30 days, Mr. Millard declared.

The strongest urge with the man in politics is that he wants to be elected, and often he feels that the only way to gain his end is to build up his organization by making appointments, Mr. Millard declared. The solution in Cincinnati, where the city manager plan is operating, has been a committee of 5,000 citizens pledged to ask no jobs nor special favors from the city government.

Mr. Millard said:

"The truth is that many citizens still want the personal form of government where something can be gotten for nothing. Many who are able to pay taxes are willing to sit back and applaud the spending politician as a sort of Robin Hood who is taking goods away from the rich in high taxes and handing some of it along to the poor. That is the spoils system."

Mr. Millard spoke today before the Inquiry Club of the University of Pittsburgh regarding money and buying power, and address the Overbrook Board of Trade tonight in Overbrook Junior High School on tax rates.

Just ONE Question..

"HOW GOOD ARE THEY?"—THAT'S WHAT SMOKERS WANT TO KNOW ABOUT CIGARETTES

SMOKERS, nowadays, aren't taking things for granted. They're shopping around . . . asking questions.

Old man habit has been discarded . . . forgotten. "How good is it?" . . . that's what they want to know about any cigarette they smoke.

"HOW good is it?" Brother, you put your finger right on it!

You want a cigarette that's milder. You want a cigarette that tastes better. You want a pure cigarette. And above all, you want cigarettes that satisfy.

Now when you say that, you're talking Chesterfield's language—none other!

IT STARTS with fine tobacco. Chesterfield buyers are experts in the art of judging quality leaf. They can spot the finest tobacco in any country . . . and they won't take anything else.

You'll find the same painstaking care . . . the same skillful handling . . . in the curing, the blending, and the cross-blending.

Blended and cross-blended . . . that's Chesterfield! And what a difference it makes in the way it smokes and tastes!

FROM field to package, Chesterfields are protected by the strictest purity standards; the most modern sanitary manufacturing methods.

They're rolled in the finest, whitest paper . . . that burns without taste or odor. Wrapped in a clean, attractive package . . . neat, fresh-looking; moisture-tight . . . but easy to open.

And delivered as fast as they're made . . . from 5 big factories . . . to every cigarette counter in the land.

THAT'S the story of why Chesterfields satisfy. That's the reason they're milder . . . that's why they taste better. Light up . . . and answer your own question!

TWO ARRESTED IN DOPE RING

With the arraignment of two suspects in Central Police Court today, government narcotic agents and city detectives were investigating the possibility that a dope ring had established itself in Pittsburgh.

Ed Danforth, 24, arrested at North Lincoln avenue, North Side, was turned over to the United States agents, who held a warrant charging him with possession and use of narcotics. Held as a witness against him, was Mary Ellen Lucke, 21, of the same address. Detectives told of finding a complete opium layout in his room.

Salvatore Carcello, 47, was held for investigation after detectives testified that three dope fiends had identified him as the man who sold them the stuff. He was taken in his restaurant at 529 Tripoli street.

YULE PAYMENTS UNLIKELY

would be adversely affected by immediate collection.

CENTRAL OFFICES

Offices will be set up within a week or two, and work in all closed banks will be centralized, so far as possible, Gordon says.

The Gordon plan, as originally announced, was to include three phases:

First, the payment, before Christmas, of dividends to depositors through a private banker [Robert L. McCune in Pittsburgh] in each of Pennsylvania's four districts.

Second, the extension of credit to depositors on part of their balances due, through cooperation of merchants in each district.

Third, the realization corporation to liquidate assets.

The first two parts of this plan seemed, today, to have collapsed. Small dividends will be paid depositors in the Hamilton State Bank, the McGillick Savings and Trust Company and the Perry State Bank, amounting, respectively, to 10, 5 and 15 per cent of deposits, on December 14.

COMMITTEES NAMED

No merchandising credit plan to increase purchasing power of depositors is near maturity, it is understood.

Committees appointed yesterday are:

Executive—Mr. Chaplin, chairman; Malcolm McGiffin, Sidney S. Liggett, George C. Watt and Dr. Gordon.

Securities—A. C. Robinson, chairman; Frank R. Phillips, Mr. Liggett, Frank A. Merrick.

Loans and Discounts—Mr. Chaplin, chairman; Edgar J. Kaufmann, Mr. Watt, William B. Purvis.

Real Estate—Howard Irish, chairman; Walter Rosenbaum, H. Lee Mason, Jr., Mr. McGiffin.

FURS SALVAGED BY ARCTIC HERO

POINT BARROW, Alaska, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Using dog sleds for bridges over cracks in the ice and ropes to pull themselves over huge bergs, O. D. Morris, one of the marooned passengers of the steamship Baychimo, and three Eskimo trappers have completed one of the most daring salvage jobs in Arctic history.

Morris and the natives, after a disheartening struggle for 15 miles over the ice to the Baychimo, frozen in when the Arctic winter caught her before she could escape to open water in the south, brought back 10 bales of valuable furs.

Dog teams were forced to halt half a mile from the goal. The men required four hours to complete the journey to the ship. Exhausted by the struggle, they returned here with the bales last night.

Morris, a trapper for five years on the east coast of the Canadian Pacific, is the son of a Seattle lawyer.

Co-Eds Win Fight For Smoking Permit

EVANSTON, Ill., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—It looks now as though Northwestern co-eds will be able to puff cigarets, if they wish, in some of the sorority houses, without fear of reprimand. The Women's Quadrangle Association, governing body of the houses, yesterday lifted the ban. The leader of the group that asked for the action said:

"It's home rule we are getting."

POLITICS

and would try to get him the appointment. It has been believed that McGovern's wishes would be paramount with the Governor. The Governor's office says McGovern was consulted on two occasions, and that he was kept fully informed of developments, knowing the appointment was to be made. The two reports do not reconcile themselves.

Some time ago, on the question of Gollmar's appointment, McGovern is understood to have said he was not interested one way or the other. It is undeniable that he wished to do something for Gollmar, but preferred to see him again on the bench.

A tentative plan included the elevation of an Allegheny County judge, with several years to serve, to the Superior Court vacancy caused by the election of Justice James B. Drew to the Supreme Court. That would have created a vacancy for Gollmar, whose experience has been with the law rather than police work.

However, other considerations intervened, and Judge Joseph D. Stadtfeld received the Superior Court appointment, a selection which met with universal approval.

In some quarters it is contended that Coyne, even though Gollmar is his friend, has made no headway. Cain also having been an organization man. But it should be remembered that among the Mayor's lieutenants Cain was friendly first of all to former City Treasurer Roy D. Schooey, foe of Coyne.

GUILTY VERDICT IN VOTE FRAUD

A sealed verdict of guilty was opened today in Criminal Court in the election law violation case against Jack Johnston, alias Frank Craig, 30, who said he lived at 1516 Clark street. He was charged with registering under an assumed name in the Sixth District of the Third Ward. The case was tried before Visiting Judge Miles I. Potter, of Union and Snyder counties. Sentence was deferred until Friday.

Assistant District Attorney Chauncey Pruger brought out, during the trial, that Craig presented a tax receipt made out for Jack Johnston. Officials testified he signed the registration book with the name Frank Craig and gave his address as 1528 Clark street, although he told them his name was Johnston. State police were notified and took Craig to 1528 Clark street, which was found to be vacant.

Craig's defense was that, after losing his tax receipt, he had been given the Johnston receipt and thought it was all right to register on it.

Arrange Reception For Dr. W. L. McEwan

An informal reception in honor of the Rev. Dr. William L. Evans, who will be installed as new pastor of the church next Wednesday, submitted his credentials and was taken into the Pittsburgh Presbytery yesterday at a meeting in the First Presbyterian Church.

DO YOU KNOW why Lux is so wonderful for stockings? Here's the reason . . .

New stockings are elastic. Made so each silk thread gives under strain. Stretches and springs right back again.

If elasticity is destroyed, the threads break, starting runs. Or they sag. You get wrinkles, crooked seams.

Lux is especially made to preserve this precious elasticity. That's why the Lux way of washing makes stockings fit with such flattering snugness . . . why it makes even the sheer ones wear.

Mergers and Lower Salaries Promised Hollywood Coming Year

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 9.

No matter what you may think of it, I have a story here that will be read with respect in Hollywood.

Draconis, a young astrologer who has drawn up charts of Constance Bennett, the Marquis Henry De La Falaise, Mary Astor, Greta Garbo and many other film people, has given me his predictions for 1932.

Here are some of the things he says will happen:

Greta Garbo

Nineteen hundred thirty-two will be a fairly good year for motion pictures, though troubled at the start. March and April should see things get under way. The latter part of the year will see the film industry organized in a more business-like way. Salaries will be reduced and the competitive element among producers will be curtailed. There will be many mergers. Three or four major companies will control the entire industry by the end of the year.

Box office receipts will not be much larger, but with the new business setup a profit will be realized.

One or more high motion picture executives will die during this year.

The legitimate stage will offer great competition.

The sexy type of star will be replaced by those with intellectual appeal.

Australia will be a fertile field for picture-making during the coming year. Anyone who goes there will reap a harvest.

Draconis urges great caution in films where explosions are used.

He says the pinnacle of wages and production costs in Hollywood has been reached for at least five years. 1935 he predicts, will be a boom year for the industry.

Apparently there is no depression in the astrologer business. Draconis asks me not to tell anyone where he can be reached, as he has all the work he can handle.

IN THE NEWS.

Tampa society has lost Ruth Hall for good. She has a new Warner contract, and will be loaned to Frank Kay for the picture he is to produce at Columbia. Barbara Stanwyck will be on the lot at the same time, playing the lead in "Zelda Marsh." I almost wrote Zelda Sears.

Over at Radio, Edgar Wallace will team with Herbert Brenon in the writing of a mystery story.

LATEST GOSSIP.

Lew Cody

I ate my first boiled turnip. The corn-bread was real Southern style, no sugar in it. Lew is the most genial of hosts, his house a typical bachelor establishment cluttered but interesting. John Decker's caricature portraits (a la Rembrandt) of Clark Gable, Schnozzle Durante and Roscoe Arbuckle attracted everybody's attention. Roscoe was there, by the way, with Addie McPhail.

Fifi Dorsey showed up without Terry Ray. They've had another falling out. Fifi now plans to return to vaudeville immediately. She opens in Brooklyn, December 23.

Somebody said Andy Devine's dog howls when he sees Andy on the screen.

Concerto op. 59..... Klughardt
Troubadour ..... A. Glazounow
Nocturne No. 3..... Papper
Nocturne No. 3..... Popper
Elegie ..... Wilhelmi
Cantabile and Waltz... F. Servais

A most encouraging audience attended the 'cello recital of Samuel Kliatchko in Schenley ballroom last night. It is a rare event when we hear the 'cello as solo instrument, still rarer when we hear unfamiliar music for that instrument. Kliatchko gave us opportunity for both.

Mr. Lissfelt

But that unfamiliar music is deservedly so, for nothing could be less worthy of Beethoven than these variations on a theme from Haendel's "Judas Maccabeus" seem on first hearing, nor the platitudinous tunes of the Klughardt Concerto. The 'cellist struggled valiantly to make them interesting, but he really became entertaining with his shorter numbers, pleasant melodies, played with richer tone and freedom.

We learned once again how meager is the repertory of good 'cello music; it might be a good field for our composers who cannot quite make their talents stretch as far as an opera or a symphony.

Sara Kliatchko played accompaniments and there were several encores.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Channing Pollock is in town. He will deliver a couple of lectures. He is to appear before the Drama League in the Twentieth Century Club Friday afternoon. He will talk to the students of the drama division, college of fine arts, Carnegie Tech. Whatever be his topic at either gathering, I can assure those who shall attend that they will hear a fine lecture. I speak from experience. He lectured to me for an hour yesterday in his hotel room. Mind you, not at, but to. Perhaps it were better to say he lectured for me, an audience of one, and I didn't pay a cent. You can realize my good fortune when I tell you that Mr. Pollock lectures for money, usually. However, he is so constituted that he prefers to do it at times for the fun of the thing.

Now, don't everybody go telephoning to Mr. Pollock asking him for one of those free delivery talks. When I said he prefers to do it at times for the fun of the thing, I exaggerated a little. I meant that he has often turned down a paying engagement to speak gratis in behalf of the theater which he loves.

A HAPPY KNIGHT.

He is a genial crusader, a happy knight. You know, he sees a sort of knightly activity in the daily hum-drum battle of ordinary folks against the mail-fisted world. As I understand it, sort of makes use of that fettlesome idea in his latest play, "The House Beautiful," which, like his fine drama of some years ago, "The Fool," is an argument as well as entertainment.

My somewhat hastily formed impression is that he is always gut up, prepared and eager to do battle for, as he expresses it, "the side of the Lord," but wishing he had "the army of the devil, which is so much more active." Which gives you something of the idea of the humor with which Mr. Pollock tinctures his talk. A genial crusader—a happy knight.

Naturally, the conversation trended to the theater, to drama, to criticism, to censorship. He is opposed to censorship and thinks it is the wrong way to go about it when the law attempts to take a filthy little line from a filthy little play written by a filthy little man." He is opposed to saying "don't" and is in favor of saying "do."

THE FOXY CRUSADER.

As that may give a wrong impression again, it will be better to illustrate, as he did, for he is not an advocate of filth in the theater. In the suburban community in which he lives on Long Island, a roadhouse was opened. Two nights a week there were dances. He noted the youngsters, all of whom he knew, were returning home intoxicated, and they were just young boys and girls. It disturbed him, but he didn't say "don't." That is he didn't say it directly. He wrote a letter to each of the youngsters saying that he was forming a reading club. He stated he knew the recipient would not be interested in anything like that, but would he attend just on the opening night, because if he did, others would follow his lead. All agreed to be accommodating just for once, anyway. He told them stories about Mark Twain (he's a fine story-teller, too), and two chapters of "Huckleberry Finn" were read. Refreshments were served. The next meeting was attended by still more of the young folks. When "Huck Finn" was finished other books were taken up.

ONE ROADHOUSE LESS.

The club is still in existence and it now meets in the former roadhouse, which had to close up for lack of business because the ally crusader had taken away all of its customers, and it had only the one village to draw from.

He is firm in his belief that people cannot be reformed by law and that to wean them from anything that is not good for them they must be given something better.

"The only way I know to get air out of a waterglass," he said, "is to fill it with water.

"The first time I was in Spain," he continued, "I was shocked by the bull-fighting. The better class of people were opposed to it, and I wondered why it wasn't stopped. I was told there were laws and that even the church had tried to end it but in vain. The public wanted it. On my last visit to Seville I learned that interest had decreased and that the popularity of the arena was dying all over Spain.

NOW PLAY FOOTBALL.

"I inquired the reason and learned that young fellows had learned to play football and were more interested in that."

He is opposed to censorship and to prohibition and—whisper—drama critics. He knows there are bad plays, but seems to think that critics, instead of belaboring them and finding fault, should be looking for beauty and such—if any. I believe he meant "constructive" criticism. And he used to be a critic himself. Also a press agent. It was in the latter capacity he last visited Pittsburgh—ahead of "Way Down East."

As a playwright he has been a success—but even in that he just must crusade in behalf of the theater. In all of his personal missives and letters pertaining to his own plays, he always adds a postscript—"Be sure to see," naming some production he thinks is fine. Last season he did it even in behalf of a play produced by a rival whom he dislikes personally with great intenseness.

Concert This Friday By Kochanski, Violinist

The major works on Friday's program will be the Bach Concerto in A Minor, and Concerto Opus 35, by Szymanowski.

Reply to Don Wahn's 'Nostalgia'

This he wants back . . . the newness of the day
When he might find the haven of her arms.
She, who was quite content to wait and pray
For him, while he went seeking other charms.

Now, he expects his roses by her side,
His name upon her lips, which have been brave.
Man-like, he says love never really died,
Though he, himself, unkindly dug its grave.

Being a woman, she will gladly rise
If he returns in boyish penitence.
Hiding all trace of sorrow in her eyes,
She will forgive and laugh at commonsense.

Love is a coin that faithful women squander
Trying to guide the foolish men who wander.

Drama.

He is a prominent Park avenue Oriental merchant. His domestic difficulties forced him to leave home on advice of counsel. He set himself up incog at a local hotel.

The day he left, his favorite child, 3, caught a cold, which developed into bronchial pneumonia. The tot is just hanging on, the medics giving her a 50-50 chance to come through. The frantic frau has located her husband, beseeching him to come and see the gravely ill child, but if he enters his home, his lawyers tell him, legal complications will follow.

So he stays where he is. This is not common sense, at all. If the child perishes, certainly nothing will stop him from attending the funeral. And his troubled mind certainly is nothing compared to a law-suit.

It is a remark of Landor that where lawyers flourish, there is a certain sign that the laws do not.

Quiteso, Quiteso.

It is Dorothy Parker's theory that men never make passes at girls who wear glasses. David Murray queries—"but how about girls who empty 'em?"

Poor Fella.

Take it from Mr. Elinson it's a sad story. It concerns the yes-man who was fired by a movie company. An executive, it appears, made a suggestion at a conference and asked the yes-man if he liked the idea.

For the first time in five years with the firm, the professional nodder shook his head from side to side. He couldn't help it!

He had just come from the 6-Day Bike Race!

One truth old letters cannot hide
With crosses signed to mean a kiss.
One truth I've gleaned from life is this—

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Seat shoppers for next week's legitimate menu will have only one box office to call at when the market opens tomorrow. "Two on the aisle, please" is a command that will find response only in the Alvin, where Channing Pollock's new play, "The House Beautiful," will be presented as the third Professional Players' offering of the season. It comes with the original company, headed by Mary Philips and James Bell. Matinees as per routine, i. e., Wed. and Sat.

Franchot Tone, seen here last season in the Theater Guild's "Green Grow the Lilacs," makes another New York bow tomorrow night in a play called "1931." It is produced by the Guild's foster-child, the Group Theater, whose initial production, "The House of Connelly," has left Broadway after a two-month run. It has been announced as one of the future attractions of the Nixon, which will blow out the gas after the current engagement of "As Husbands Go" and play dead until the holiday attraction, if any, comes along.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Society thronged the Twentieth Century Club last night for the premiere this season of the Stage and Play Society, made up of their own set.

Appearing in "Cock Robin" were Mrs. Edward J. House, Miss Madeleine McClintock, Mrs. Salle Dorrance, Clarence B. Watkins, Chester Wallace, James F. Macfarlane, R. E. Stanborough, Joseph F. Kuntz, Jr., Maurice L. Carroll, Jr., David MacDonald, Howard Wilbert and Harold Geoghegan.

And adding a festive note were the ushers, a group of young debs, headed by Lucretia Billings. Her aides were Rita Borntraeger, Katharine Frazer, Lucile Todd, Virginia Doyle, Betty Kennedy, Elinor Reed, Carolina Mitchell and Gretchen Bickford.

* * *

Scintillating indeed were the gay-hued gowns chosen by the buds who ushered. Rita Borntraeger chose green crepe, with rhinestones ornamenting the shoulder bands, and an ermine coat.

Buds Ushers

Katharine Frazer wore an attractive gown of brilliant cranberry red velvet made in sweeping lines with a bow suggestive of a bustle in the back, and a cluster of velvet flowers at the front of the bodice. She had a finger-tip jacket matching her gown, and Martha Mitchell Yost appearing in iced mint satin, with touches of scarlet, and two bows in the back.

Lucretia Billings chose forget-me-not blue lace with a cape outlining the decolletage and forming brief sleeves, with a crimson velvet belt adding a gay note. Attractive Gretchen Bickford chose black crepe with a bodice of ecru lace sparkling with rhinestones. Virginia Doyle wore brown and chartreuse crepe.

Lucile Todd, another bud, was charming in deep cream satin with the satin shoulder bands embroidered with a diamente. Crimson crepe having a peplum at the hipline was the choice of Betty Kennedy.

And loads and loads of other folks attended. Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby, who was taking tickets, wore a stunning creation of supple copper colored velvet, molded to the figure, with a cowl neckline, cape sleeves, and wide velvet ruching around the hemline. Her coat was of mink.

Taking Tickets

Mrs. H. Allen Machesney wore black velvet studded with rhinestones; Mrs. Mortimer Miller, wine velvet with a wrap of silver lame trimmed with sable; Miss Alice Grey, black satin with a claret velvet coat, and Mrs. Walter B. Spellmire, blue crepe.

Mrs. G. Cook Kimbell I noticed with her daughter, Marjorie, who wore blue crepe with a black carmeul coat. Martha Edmondson was there in blue lace, with Betty McCance in black velvet. Elizabeth Watkins was regal in pale blue crepe with a black velvet wrap. Mrs. Roy A. Hunt appeared in a gown of black velvet having a wide panel in front and back of black and coral velvet embroidered with rhinestones.

Nancy Doyle, in brown crepe with a white chiffon bodice, was with her sister, Rebecca, who wore electric blue crepe, and Rosamond Pitch, in a smart gown of brown and silver lame, having short slashed sleeves.

A most unusual creation of gold lame, having a pleated peplum, edged with a ruffle of blue velvet, with a tippet of blue velvet, was chosen by Louise Evans.

Unusual Creation

Mrs. A. C. Marn, of Greensburg, was among the audience, in black lace having a brief train, and a wrap of cream velvet and white fox. Betty Childs wore black satin, and Mary Carroll, green georgette, and I caught a glimpse of Georgia Pearson.

Mrs. Henry O. Evans was with Mrs. Frank J. Kier, and I saw Mrs. William B. Moorhead in beige georgette embroidered with gold. Mrs. Thomas J. Hilliard chose black velvet with a mink coat, and I saw Suzanne Trimble in black velvet. Blue crepe with brief sleeves banded with polinsky was worn by Mrs. Jack Whitcomb. Mrs. Franklin C. Irish chose black crepe with a black velvet and white fox wrap. She was with Constance Drake, in green crepe.

* * *

Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner, arriving late, wore black velvet, and Miss Neil Stewart wore flowered crepe with a bottle green velvet wrap. Maj. Reginald Macdonald and Mrs. Macdonald were there, too, with Mrs. Macdonald in black lace with a beige velvet wrap, and I saw Neil Stewart Zang in black satin with knee-length wrap of red and silver lame, with her mother, Mrs. William Zang, in royal blue satin.

In Black Velvet

Mrs. John W. Lawrence appeared in flowered crepe, and Mrs. George Harwood was regal in white satin with an ermine coat. And others I had a glimpse of were Miss Helen McCance, Mrs. Frank McCance, Mrs. George Carson, Mrs. Herbert DuPuy and Mrs. William MacLay Hall. Others were Mrs. J. S. Hillman, Mrs. Gerald Burt, the George P. Massetts, Mrs. Charles Schoenaker, Mrs. George P. Rhodes, Mrs. Harry S. Mitchell, Mrs. John M. Freeman and Miss Sylvia Robertson.

The Art Society will present Paul Kochanski, violinist, at Carnegie Music Hall, Friday evening. Already reservations are being made for the affair, and among those to be in attendance are Dr. and Mrs. Charles

Special Meeting Called Tuesday By Society Girls to Hear Head of Seeing Eye

The Junior League will be among the many organizations that will hear Col. Morris Frank, blind managing director of the Seeing Eye during his two weeks' stay in Pittsburgh. The league has called a special meeting for Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, in headsuarters. The Rotarians have also been added to Col. Frank's already long list of engagements, their date being next Wednesday.

Col. Frank, in his rapid-fire way, tells in a few minutes the value and necessity of a guide dog for the blind; he tells also of what the Seeing Eye is, how it is operated, gives a general idea of how its work is done and shows what great potentialities it holds.

Col. Frank has just come from Norristown, N. J., where the new Seeing Eye headquarters were opened a week ago last Monday. Here, on a 50-acre estate with a 16-room house, teachers are instructed (that takes two to three years), the dogs are trained in three to four months, and the blind are given instruction of from three to four weeks.

Aided by Railroads

Col. Frank says he wants to impress on his hearers the fact that all blind people are not deaf and dumb, and that no one needs to shout at them; that a blind person with a guide dog is merely a person with a pair of artificial eyes, and that these "eyes" should be accepted by seeing people just as artificial limbs are. The Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific railroads have already given permission for the dogs to travel with their masters.

Twenty per cent of the blind in this country are capable of being made financially independent, the Seeing Eye director points out, as he goes on to tell of the class now being instructed at Norristown. It includes an osteopathic physician, a delicatessen owner-manager, piano and violin teachers, a woman insurance agent, workers in blindcraft, a stenographer and several housewives who use their canine guides in their household and marketing duties. Everyone who has a dog has a definite occupation. There are 5,000 dog guides in Germany, where the work has been going on since 1807.

QUALITY MILK!

IT IS THE AIM of the Kroger organization to distribute products of superior quality, and at the lowest possible cost to our patrons.

One product that must be of EXCEPTIONAL QUALITY is milk. We are more interested in serving our patrons with a milk of superior quality than we are of serving them something that is bottled and sold at a price.

We insist that the milk distributed through the Kroger Stores comes from herds of cattle that have met all required tests and from farms and plants that have complied with all city, state and government requirements.

We insist that the milk we distribute be considerably above the percentage of butterfat that is prescribed by law. We insist that the milk be bottled under the most sanitary conditions.

Meadow Gold milk meets all of these requirements and, with its new "Silver Seal" sanitary cap, it is the acme of perfection. With all these features Meadow Gold milk costs no more. Today this high grade milk is selling at all Kroger Stores at a price lower than it has sold in a dozen years.

Dull Women Lose Interest of Husbands After Marriage

Why does the big boy run out on Selma—go to wild parties—and fool around with wild women?

"I adore him!" she wails, "and I try to make him happy—but still he goes! It's breaking my heart!"

That's an old, old story and an old, old question. Do you know the answer?

"Dear Sally Martin:

"Maybe you can help me. I hope you can, for I can't seem to figure out how to help myself.

"My husband and I are the average happily married couple, I guess. At least we don't quarrel and I keep myself as nice as I can and try to be a good wife.

"But my husband's best friend is not happy with his wife and the effect is that my husband is out together often. When I complain my husband says he can't take me along because his friend doesn't take his wife and so I must stay home while they go out together.

WILD PARTIES

"Well, finally he confided to me that for his friend's sake they go to some wild parties. And that he would take me along if I would be very sociable.

"I went and I am heartbroken. At the parties it made no difference your husband or my wife—it was one happy family—and not wishing to spoil the evening I showed not that I was a good sport. I had to watch him fool around, one women make love to them and kiss them, and I had to do the same with the other men in order not to be a spoil-sport.

"And he called that a wonderful time. Why is he like that? And how can I enjoy such parties when I simply adore him and want to mean something to him? All evening my heart was breaking while I was playing his game.

"I am sure that in time this will all end up in a terrible disaster—that I will lose him and my home. Why must things be like this and how can I keep that from happening? I am broken-hearted. Please help me! I can't play like he wants me to. SELMA

HE MAY BE BORED

No, I know you can't, my dear. And neither can he without having your marriage degenerate into a tragic, sordid mockery of all that a fine marriage should be. Then what are you to do?

Well, first you must decide just why your husband gets that way. I can't do it for you. I don't know your man. Perhaps you don't know him, either. But you must make yourself know him.

He is a child, probably sort of creature without any real fineness in him. If so you had better face that fact straight and begin to reorganize your life. It's a sheer waste of your time trying yourself to think he is going to change. You have married a child and for her to be other would be unnatural. She is not to be blamed for it. But it is unnecessary that she ruin your life.

He may be a very normal, healthy male who has just grown tired of you. He may be a very normal, healthy male who has just grown tired of you. He may be a very normal, healthy male who has just grown tired of you. He may be a very normal, need for fun and adventure which you no longer fill.

Once you were an adventure to him. You had idea. You had pep. You shared interests with him, real interests, your hopes, your dreams, and you were new to each other. You planned to do things—new, thrilling, difficult things—together.

Then you got married and shut all that out. You began to take each other for granted. You forgot to keep up with the rest of the world. You forgot to keep interesting. You let marriage get average and dull.

FIND NEW INTERESTS

And now your husband is bored. Why shouldn't he be?

What does he find now when he comes home at night, out of the swift, challenging, changing world in which he works? Does he find a dear, sweet, dull little woman, who hasn't an idea beyond him and home—who can't talk about a thing on earth that interests him, who can only cry and feel sorry for herself, and smilelessly ask "Do you still love me?"

If he does, why shouldn't he walk out and look for life and fun and stimulation elsewhere?

Snap out of it, honey! Get alive again! Find some new interest that will put lure and sparkle back into life—and you, from some study class. Join an athletic club. Take dancing lessons. Join a bridge club.

Get out and meet life and its people. Trade old faces for new. Get a kick out of living, and you'll come home with a zip in your gait and a mind brimful of new and interesting ideas, and he'll feel once more that you are his favorite wild party.

Fay King Asks Pointed Question About Women's Beauty and Brains

WOMEN ALSO ARE MORE INTERESTED IN BEAUTY AND CHARM THAN IN BRAINS
THE WOMAN WHO CAN WIN AN ATTRACTIVE HUSBAND INTERESTS THEM MORE THAN ONE WHO CAN WRITE A NOVEL
SHE LOOKED STUNNING! SHE WORE — FAY-KING

By FAY KING

We sometimes hear women condemn men for admiring beauty more than brains.

But women themselves are more interested in charm and beauty in another woman than in brains and ability.

Women are not enthusiastic over women aviators, women politicians or women who excel in business.

I can't imagine a crowd of women falling all over themselves to have a look at a woman who has just made a million dollars in some brainy business deal, but every woman would take a look at the woman who has just married a millionaire.

If the most beautiful woman in the world came in one door and the brainiest woman in the world came in another, which do you suppose would interest women more?

So why blame men?

Lillian Wins Over Dicky's Objections

The grim faced from Dicky's face as he listened to Lillian's impassive breath which as we both knew, lacked its accustomed fibers of steel.

"Look here, Lil," he said roughly. "You know I generally yield willingly, if weakly, to your judgment.

"Then why make an exception of this particular occasion?" she interrupted. "Think a second my lad, if it won't tire your mighty brain too much. Don't you know that Madge is as dear to me as a sister could ever have been? Have I ever done anything which would hurt her? Do you think I'm going to now?"

Oh! I know all that, Lil." There was defeat in his voice and in the way he spread his hands. "But I know too, the darn fool feminine notion you have about a woman's having as much strength and endurance as a man.

"You're mistaken, dearie," she said smoothly. "I've never claimed women had as much strength and endurance as men. They have more. Oh, I don't mean in a wrestling match or a bowling race or a week-end shopping contest. I mean in the long run of life. Count up the widows and widowers.

"I'm too chivalrous to give you the obvious retort on that," Dicky interrupted. "But I give in. I'm licked, as always when I stack up against you and Madge. But for heaven's sake, give a thought to what this girl's been through. Look here! Isn't there some way I can help?"

"Yes, darling." Lillian's tone was drippingly saccharine. "You can go to bed early and sleep soundly. No, that's too mean of me. But I could not miss an opening like that, you know. But there are several ways you can help. Keep the little boys and everybody else from underfoot, so nobody will be coming up and asking Madge or me questions. Let the youngsters dance. Noise won't bother us, unless they open the cutout on the phonograph when they put on the jazz. And see that they get to bed by 11. And placate your mother."

"Any other easy little job?" Dicky's voice was heavily sarcastic.

"None that I can think of just now. If any other inspiration comes to me, I'll pass it on."

"I'll beat it now," he said hastily, "while the going's good. Don't strain the well-known bean thinking out any more stunts, and I'll try to take care of the ones already outlined. I will get that fellow on the telephone, now, Madge."

"Be a sport!" Lillian begged, "and let me have the telephone first."

"Oh, the Veritzen telegram," Dicky said comprehendingly. "I hope you have fixed up a nice reassuring reply for him."

Knowing me," Lillian said modestly, "can you doubt it? Listen in. It will be worth the price of admission."

"Thanks." His tone was dry. "I will take your word for it. So long, Goddess of the Machine."

He hurried down the stairs, and with a reassuring pat upon my arm, Lillian went to the telephone while I took my rumpled manuscript out on the upstairs veranda, meeting Katherine in the doorway. She held my baby daughter in her arms.

"The afternoon breeze is coming in from the ocean," she said, "and it's a bit cooler than usual. I think we're going to have rain, so I'm taking her into the house. Isn't she precious?"

My common sense told me that Katherine with her knowledge and experience, enhanced by her devotion, could take infinitely better care of my baby daughter than I could, and that I owed it to myself and my children to grasp this chance for my "place in the sun" which had come to me with Philip Veritzen's offer to produce my play if it pleased him. But something less logical but more primitive than common sense demanded of me what I was doing with the manuscript of a play while another woman—no matter how skillful and devoted—took care of my child.

I let Katherine see no hint of my feeling, however. The arrangement was made. I could not change it now, even if I really wished to do so, without wounding her, and that I could not do. So I permitted my common sense to triumph over my emotions and, going to the big lounging chair near the edge of the balcony, settled down to a perusal of my manuscript.

I had but turned the first page, however, when Mary, with Marion close behind her, came rushing up to me. Lillian, at the telephone, had not yet had the opportunity to warn them about disturbing me. I reasoned, and was guiltily glad of the interruption, for the sight of my baby in Katherine's arms had left me with a curious disinclination for working over my play.

"'Member what killed the cat, Auntie Madge?" Mary began while Marion giggled sympathetically. "Well! I've caught the infection. Does the Veritzen telegram say when the family is descending upon us?"

"Tomorrow, Mary." I told her, "both Mr. Veritzen and Noel. Don't you think," I added slyly, "that you ought to postpone your trip for a day at least, until you have seen him?"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Don't Regard Sinusitus As a Trivial Infection

"Sinusitis," or inflammation of the nasal sinuses, is a common ailment. It causes pain or discomfort in the face, the forehead and particularly around the eyes. There is a heavy feeling in the morning which subsides later in the day.

Dr. Copeland

It is rarely seen by the physician in the acute stage. Consequently it quickly becomes chronic and then requires prolonged treatment. If every case of sinusitis were cared for in the early stage, the cure would be more easily obtained.

Sinusitis should never be neglected. It is a disease which may appear trivial, but often it has a marked effect upon the happiness of the individual. There is an increased tendency to colds and other diseases. Ultimately the victim may be compelled to stay away from work and because of this his earning power is reduced.

There are various causes for sinus infection. The lining of the nasal passages and of the sinuses themselves are constantly moist and warm. This favors the harboring and growth of germs. When once the germs get into the sinus cavities they find favorable surroundings for their unpleasant activity.

Such infections may come from diseased teeth. More frequently they follow attacks of colds and coryza, influenza, pneumonia and other acute infectious diseases.

Before the onset of several common diseases there is likely to be an inflammation of the nose. Even though there is speedy recovery from the original ailment, the patient may be left with a sinus trouble.

Swimming and diving in water that is too cold may be followed by a sinus infection. A very common cause is swimming in pools that are contaminated by germs. One person who has an acute cold may infect an entire pool.

The most common signs of sinus infection are headache or pain. This pain is usually in the face, the eyes, over the forehead, eyeache or any complaint of the head. As a result, there is a discharge from the nose or throat.

In this condition there may be a temporary loss of the sense of smell. Dizziness and disturbances in the ear, as well as an upset stomach, are common symptoms.

If you have pain in your forehead, eyeache or any complaint in the region of the face, do not trust to your own devices. Do not decide that your trouble is due to eye trouble or toothache. Consult your physician, who will advise you.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Golden Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please advise me if it would be correct to celebrate one's own golden anniversary, or should it be the children who celebrate? Please advise what one does in a case of this kind.

READER.

Indeed it is a beautiful thing for the husband and wife to celebrate this glorious milestone in life. Of course the children take part in the celebration—they usually plan it, but the principals are the husband and wife.

The celebration may be of any kind, formal or informal. Usually it is in the form of a reception, to which the couple's relatives and friends are invited. The hours for this are usually the late afternoon hours, 4 to 7, or it may be given in the evening, 8 to 11, say. The reception-refreshments may be very simple or they may be as elaborate as you wish to have them.

If you do not wish to include many people in the celebration, then it is delightful and correct to give a dinner for the few relatives and close friends you wish to invite.

The Divorcee

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I have recently been divorced and I would like to know if I should continue to wear my wedding or engagement ring (There is a baby girl.)

2. How am I to be introduced as Mrs. Dorothy Miller, or by my maiden name? D. W.

1. Such a personal symbol has only a personal significance, and you, dear lady, are the only one who can answer your question adequately. If in other words, the ring (either or both) has any significance to you, there is no reason for you to stop wearing it for them). If on the other hand, it makes you unhappy to wear this symbol of happy days that are no longer happy, then it is foolish to add to your mental or spiritual distress.

2. This depends on what name you have decided to adopt. This is sometimes determined at the time of the divorce, especially if you are to return to your maiden name. But even if you do resume your maiden name, usually (and especially if there is a child) the title of Mrs. is retained before the name.

There are, customarily, two forms from which a divorcee woman may choose for her name. The first one, and to me the one that shows real taste and discrimination, is the use of the last name of the maiden name before the last name of the married name. This suggests to the world just what name should suggest. Then the form is:

Mrs. Ralston Miller

The other form, the form which is rarely used in circles that are careful about such forms, is the use of the first name with the last name of the married name: Mrs. Dorothy Miller. But this form suggests informality in the name that should be formal.

Second Marriages

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother died over a year ago and my father has decided to remarry. Under the circumstances, it is to be a very quiet affair. I am wondering if it is proper for me to give any showers complimentary to Miss F.

Reader

No . . . . please, by no means do this. It would be quite out of order and in extremely poor taste.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

To protect the teeth against the fermentation of food chemicals that attract bacteria brush after each meal. If brushing is inconvenient at lunch time, rinse the mouth with clear water. Never neglect the scrubbing at bedtime. Use dental floss once a day.

When chin straps are worn for the purpose of tightening sagging tissues and urging the excess chin to be leaving, pads of cotton or gauze that have been dipped in an astringent should be placed inside the strap. The astringent should be ice cold. When the compress begins to steam another one must be applied. Witch hazel serves as an astringent. It freshens and soothes the surface of the skin.

Dry, brittle hair requires daily brushing, which stimulates the sebaceous glands, coaxing them to send forth their lubricating liquids. After the shampoo, rub an oily preparation on the scalp—brilliantine, mineral oil, vaseline or any one of a great number of proprietory articles that are offered in beauty shops and drug stores.

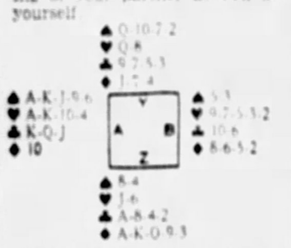
Since water waves and finger waves became popular, excellent curling fluids have appeared on cosmetic counters. Years ago the gals brewed their own of quince seed, but preparations of that character leave a gray deposit on the hair shafts. A curling fluid is a help in the preservation of beau catchers that trek along the forehead or peek out from tress-locks drawn over the ears.

Contract Bridge -:- OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Thinking of 26 Cards

The hand-hog sometimes magnifies the importance of his own 13 cards and his own ability as a player until the fate of each deal appears to depend only upon himself and what he holds. Two heads are better than one. Twenty-six cards are more important than either half of that number. The next hand shows the importance of thinking of your partner as well as yourself.



Z opened contracting with one Diamond. I fancy that most players in A's position would have overcalled with two Spades, which under the Official System would be only a strong invitation for partner to do something, if reasonably possible, certainly most players in B's position would consider it impossible to do anything except pass. Neither Y nor Z would interfere with a 2-Spade bid, and it would make little difference to him whether his five spades became trumps or his four hearts were to be trumps. It might make a world of difference to B which suit became trumps. Game was almost a certainty in case B could bid hearts, and if B happened to bid clubs A could still show his spades. So A wisely chose to make an informatory double. Y passed and B bid 1-Heart. Z went 2-Diamonds and A decided that he had to jump into 4-Hearts, ending contracting.

There was nothing especially unusual about the way play went. Of course, Z led a winning diamond; he saw that it might save game in case his partner was short of diamonds and could later on outruff dummy, so he obliged. A to trump a second lead of diamonds. Two leads of trumps dropped all adverse hearts. Then dummy lead two rounds of winning spades. B ruffed a third lead of that suit. A club was led back, and went to Z's ace. He took out A's last trump with another diamond lead, but B did not care; he led and trumped one of dummy's spades, leaving in A's hand one good spade and two good clubs. In his own hand B held one trump, one club for entry to dummy, and one losing diamond that he could discard upon one of A's good black cards. Five-odd were made at hearts, merely because A thought in terms of 26 cards.

Household Hints

Cane seats of chairs can be cleaned by sponging with warm water to which salt has been added. Use lemon juice and salt if the cane is white, and in both cases rinse well. If the seat has dropped, soak it in hot water after washing and turn upside down to dry.

Take a tip from the first-aid book of rules and read the label on the bottle of medicine three times each time before you take a dose, once when removing the bottle from the cabinet, once just before pouring out the dose and third when replacing the bottle on the shelf. Then you really cannot make a vital mistake.

In making pastry, roll in one direction only. If you roll first in one direction and then in another, your crust is always sure to be tough. To improve both flavor and appearance, brush a sugar syrup over the crust just before taking from the oven. Make the sugar syrup by dissolving one-half cup of sugar in one-quarter cup boiling water.

If the summer blankets that were not all wool prove too short after their washing, buy a strip of unbleached muslin the width of the blanket and the length, according to the shortage. Stitch it securely to the end of the blanket and use this at the foot of the bed, tucking the muslin under the mattress in place of the blanket. It will give you back just the length you need.

Hot soda water will quickly and thoroughly remove grease and dirt from pots and pans. But great care should be taken to rinse in clean hot water before they are dried.

THE NEWS is spreading like wild-fire. Men are telling their friends. Women are saying how much easier it makes driving. Mechanics recommend it for technical reasons.

ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH for winter takes in the full range of weather, cold days and warmer ones, blizzards and thaws! The reason is that Atlantic scientists have found new ways of beating winter at its own game. They have added improvements to the famous ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH formula which make it an ideal fuel for winter driving.

Don't take our word for it. Make it prove its quality in the hardest testing-ground you know . . . the engine of your own automobile. Try it with the thermometer flirting with zero, and see how quickly your motor starts! Try it in traffic, for its flashing pick-up. Mound for Kickoff Exit. * Smith Star Floorman.
Pro Teams Offer Remedy. Handicaps of Hobart.
Harris Complete Roll. Minnesota's Changes.

RETURN OF TEE MAY SOLVE PROBLEM

THE RESTORATION OF the artificial tee to support and elevate the pigskin for the booter is likely to be decided on as the solution to the kickoff problem in football. At least, present indications are pointing that way. Since the agitation started for a rule revision to eliminate the danger that led to numerous serious and even fatal accidents this year, when players on the kicking side were injured by the flying wedge that formed in front of the receiver, one gridiron faction, headed by Maj. Frank Cavanaugh, Fordham coach, has advocated the barring of the wedge and another has urged doing away with the kickoff itself.

Frank Cavanaugh

Many friends of the game have opposed the abolition of the kickoff on the ground that it is one of the sport's most spectacular plays, and they have advanced the opinion that the desired result can be obtained without sacrificing that feature. That is by restoring the rule which permitted the use of clay for an artificial tee and bringing back higher and longer kicks.

AS HAS BEEN pointed out by Cavanaugh and others, the old high-looping kickoff gave the kicking side time to filter down the field and get behind the wedge formed by the receiver's teammates. With the low kickoffs in which another player held the ball after the barring of the tee, the wedge had time to form and get started up field at a fast pace before the kicking side ran into it.

To try out the idea of restoring the clay mound, the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers, of the National Professional League, set aside the rules and used a tee for the kickoffs in a game at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn. The result was a series of high, spinning kicks well down toward the goal lines, nullifying the flying-wedge formation with which teams have been effecting long returns.

REFEREE TOM THORP and other prominent football men who watched the test expressed the opinion that injuries on kickoffs can be averted by the use of the tee, pointing out that the farthest return of any of the five kickoffs in the professional game carried only as far as the receiving side's 42-yard line.

Gridiron leaders in general were gratified at what the tryout disclosed, and it is probable that the return of the tee will be more strongly urged upon the rule makers than any other proposal that has been offered as a remedy for kickoff evils.

THE REAPPOINTMENT OF Bucky Harris as manager of the Detroit Tigers, after he had been rumored as likely to be displaced by Donie Bush, Muddy Ruel, Steve O'Neill or one of a host of others, completes the major league managerial roll for 1932 and means that there will be only three changes instead of the four anticipated. They are George Gibson for Jewel Ens in Pittsburgh, Max Carey for Wilbert Robinson in Brooklyn and Lew Fonseca for Donie Bush at the head of the White Sox. The retention of Harris by the Detroit club does not mean that the early rumors of a plan to dismiss him were without foundation. It is known that shortly after the season ended the Tiger owners went so far as to get waivers on Bucky Harris' first official act under his new contract, the signing of Jewel Ens as Tiger coach, was pleasing to Pittsburgh fans. Though sorry to see Ens leave the National League, they're glad he is to get the chance he deserves to remain in the big show. Harris is not likely to regret his choice.

Don Smith

IF HE CONTINUES to improve at the rate at which he started out in his sophomore year, Don Smith, guard on the Pitt basketball team, ought to rank among the leading players in the game by the time he is done.

Smith is a natural basketball player, fast, a good shot and a fine dribbler. When it comes to taking the ball out of a scrimmage under his own basket, there are few defense men who can clear the sphere as quickly.

IT IS THE opinion of Coach Carlson that were Smith to get some of the dash that Charley Hyatt had and take more shots when on offense he would be almost the equal of the former Uniontown flash.

Right now, Smith rises to the heights only on occasions but were he so equipped that he could travel at a high rate of speed all through the game he would have mighty few equals in the floor sport.

SMITH, BY THE way, is the only player of George Kowallis' last undefeated Pitt freshman team to be on the varsity. In fact, he was the only member of that group to come up in his sophomore year. Rocco Cutri and Zolo Alpert turned to football, Joey Rodgers dropped out of school and is managing and coaching an independent team, and Sammy Lewis found his 5 feet 2 inches a little below the requirements of the college ranks. Smith will be paired with another Don this season, Don McCamant, a sophomore and a former Sharon ace, having been picked to play guard beside him.

EXPLAINING THE NEW low established in football by Hobart College, coached by Jakie Bohren, former Pitt player, in winning only one game during the last three seasons after losing 27 in a row, a Hobart alumnus points out that the student body has never numbered 300.

He pictures the straits of Coach Bohren with a squad of 25, being forced first to run his 1931 team under a couple of steamrollers like New York U. and Syracuse next to check his hospital list, and then to wonder where he was going to find replacements over 150 pounds that could do 100 yards in less than 15 seconds.

KARL DAVIS sends word from Cleveland that among 44 freshmen coming up for the varsity football team at Western Reserve next year there are several from this part of the map, including Rody Rebich of Aliquippa, Stuart Weimer, of Tarentum, and Charles Wagner, of Mercersburg Academy.

Bernie Bierman

As recently announced, Reserve will be without a W. & J. game next season, as well as being off Pitt's schedule. Carnegie Tech will be met again, however, the Skibos ranking as the strongest team to be encountered in a lightened program of eight games.

IN ACQUIRING THE services of Bernie Bierman, Tulane's successful mentor, as coach for next season, the University of Minnesota keeps up a record for making more coaching changes in football than the majority of the big schools. It hung up an unusual mark of the opposite kind by keeping Dr. H. L. Williams in the saddle for a long term of years, but since that time things have been different. Bierman will be the fifth coach in 12 seasons. Williams served his final season in 1921. Then came W. H. Spaulding for three years, followed by Dr. Clarence Spears from 1925 to 1929, inclusive, Fritz Crisler in 1930 and 1931 and now Bierman for 1932. Incidentally, in signing Bierman, a Minnesota halfback in 1913-14-15, the Gophers get a graduate coach for the first time. The last four mentors there come from four different schools—Williams from Yale, Spaulding from Wabash, Spears from Dartmouth and Crisler from Chicago. In his first year as head coach at Tulane, 1927, Bierman's charges won only two games while losing five and tying two, but in four seasons since they have won 34 and lost only four.

CHICAGO EAGER TO CLOSE DEAL WITH SEATTLE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Pittsburgh's famous valley of diamond stars is about to be embarrassed by the portrait of a left-handed first-baseman who may be destined to pick up Charley Grimm's interests toga when the colorful Charles drops it at the home of the Chicago Cubs.

Harry Taylor

Authoritative reports from Chicago are to the effect that the Cub directors are about to close a big deal with Seattle of the Pacific Coast League which will land them a Pittsburgh district boy in the person of Harry Taylor, whose parents reside in Mt. Lebanon. They are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor, of 443 Layton avenue.

The young man had such a big season for Seattle that Cub scouts and agents have been on his trail for weeks, according to information which has reached the family here. By the terms of the transactions, the Cubs will pay Seattle $25,000 in cash and one pitcher in return for the Pittsburgher.

THRILL FOR FATHER

Harry's dad, a longtime official of the A. M. Byers Company of this city and an outstanding semi-professional baseball player of this district years ago, is having a hard time keeping back the bones, pride he feels in the latest developments regarding a son who is said to be another Grimm in the art of performing around a territory made famous by Pop Anson, Hal Chase, Fred Tenney and a score of other luminaries of bright hue.

One has to go into McKeesport to find the sand-lot story of the schoolboy who right now is being exploited in the Chicago papers in a manner that reflects credit, rather than discredit to a city. It seems the family resided in McKeesport in those days, and Harry, inheriting a keen love of the sport from his father, was found in the Bryn Mawr Church League at a very tender age. After he had graduated from the Fawcett Plan grade schools the family moved to Chicago for several years and the youngster entered East Chicago High School, but he generally found time to improve his baseball skill.

HAD RAPID ADVANCE

In the course of events the boy's parents came back to Pittsburgh, but just about this time Harry felt he was ready to do something in a big way in the National game. He heeded the advice of a big-leaguer named Horace Greeley, but his western excursion did not make a terminal further than the Mississippi Valley League. In Ottumwa, Ia., the enterprising athlete found a berth and he showed so much promise that his advance was freely predicted.

Only 22, young Taylor was just a boy when he reached the Seattle club three years ago. It seems he did not exactly find himself in a big way until this season, when his pace in fielding, hitting and general play proved high spots of the Seattle club's performances. Now he is declared to be as good as purchased by the Bruins, and Chicago papers state he has a chance to supplant Grimm after essaying the understudy role.

Taylor apparently is a youthful giant; he weighs something like 180 and is more than six feet tall. He bats and throws left-handed.

PLENTY OF HITS

The record compiled during the past season by the athlete of this district stamps him as a corner, no mistake. Playing in 175 games for Seattle, Harry batted .310. Among other things his chart for the year shows 121 runs, 222 hits, including eight homers, 13 triples and 39 doubles; 72 runs driven in and 30 stolen bases.

At the present time Harry and his mother are on tour to the West Coast by automobile. Harry's dad is as wild about baseball as ever and he can tell a lot about the game even as he trims an ordinary star in pitching horseshoes. If Harry comes here as the Cub first-sacker, you may hear of a pinch-hitter being used for the dad at the Byers plant.

MacMurdo, Pitt Star, to Play On East Team

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Jim MacMurdo, Pittsburgh tackle; George Chalmers, N. Y. U., center; Arthur Schleber, Colgate tackle, and Paul Marsland, Colgate center, have accepted invitations to play on Andy Kerr's all-East team in the annual East-West charity game at San Francisco.

MacMurdo's acceptance gives the Kerr squad three players mentioned frequently as all-America choices. Bill Morton, of Dartmouth, and John Orst, of Colgate, also will play for the East.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE 120-YEAR-OLD DEPUTY—Jacob le Patriarche was a native of Alsace, born in 1670. He was elected to the National Assembly of France in 1789, when he was 120 years old. When he entered the Assembly at the Menage des Tuilleries to take his seat between Barnard and Le Chapellier, the whole House rose to do him honor. He took a vigorous part in the deliberations leading to the expropriation of land vested in the church, and in that matter repeatedly clashed with Bishop Talleyrand de Autun. In the list of members Jacob appears as "Orfevre" (goldsmith). He died in 1791. (See: "Gazette de France" of November 2, 1789.) KELLY RAN 200 YARDS FOR A TOUCHDOWN—In the Texas A. and M.-Louisiana State football game of 1907, at Baton Rouge, La., Kelly, the Texas quarterback, called his own signal to carry the ball when he was on his own 45-yard line near the sideline. He started around the short end, found it blocked, then twisted and dodged his way across the field, was tackled and ran back across the field, then back again, and, after a fourth time across the field, spied the opportunity to run lengthwise for a touchdown—200 yards in all.

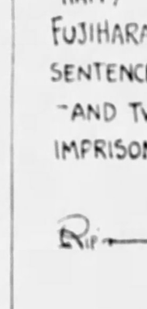
PITT QUINTET AMBITIOUS

By JESS CARVER

More enthusiastic than ever before, simply bubbling over with the old pepper and vim, Dr. H. C. Carlson is facing his ninth campaign as head basketball coach at Pitt, with a tremendous schedule and a squad as hopeful and ambitious as himself.



H. C. Carlson

In the years Red Carlson has been at the reins at the university, he has made Pitt one of the foremost basketball names in the country; has evolved a system of his own that has met with meteoric success and has turned out more than his share of individual stars.

With all this success, he has remained the same affable Redhead—and very successfully has escaped that disease known as Noxium Highhatitis. He also has improved his vocabulary until it ranks second to none in the land.

FIVE STARS LOST

From last year's star team, which took the best in the country, Carlson has lost Les and Milt Cohen, Willie Arture and Eddie Baker through graduation, and Bur Albright, giant center, who found his scholastic duties too heavy to permit his giving time to basketball.

So the Doc is constructing another winner, he'll tell you; from players of the caliber of his co-captains, Willie (Doc) Kowallis and Timmy Lawry, Steve Kowallis, Russ Ochsenhirt, Don Smith, Al Wrobleski, Chuck Hughes, Carl

SPORT VIGNETTES

The lowdown on that "fumble" by George Kavel, Carnegie Tech halfback, with the ball on the four-yard line in the benefit game with the Dukes at the Stadium last Saturday is that it wasn't a fumble at all, at all . . . No, sir . . . What happened was that Kavel accidentally kneed the ball, causing it to bound over the goal line and on past the end zone for a touchback to pull the Dukes out of a tough spot . . . There have been all sorts of versions of just what happened . . . Some say George punched the ball over, some that he punted it over, and others that he muffed or fumbled the ball, but this is Kavel's own story, and it is borne out by his teammates . . . Perhaps you've seen a baker knead dough? . . . Well, in this instance, Kavel just simply kneed the ball and there was a touchback instead of a possible touchdown . . . But perhaps that is a touchy subject.

George Kavel

And, while we're straightening out controversial subjects, here is the inside story on the alleged biting incident during the Battling Gizzy-Sammy Dorfman fight at the Motor Square Garden last Monday night . . . Gizzy was playing football with Dorfman, just about kicking him around the ring at will, when Sammy suddenly yelped out of a clinch that the Wild Man from Donora was biting him . . . The referee, Al Grayber, took instant cognizance of the alleged breach of ethics and told Gizzy that he mustn't.

Between rounds, Dorfman's seconds called Grayber to their corner and claimed their man had been atrociously, maliciously and Scandinavianly bitten and feared all sorts of complications, including hydrophobia . . . (Proving that Gizzy could not have been a barking dog, because it is a well known fact that boisterous canines do not chew.) . . . Close inspection revealed no teeth marks and so Grayber was inclined to pass off the matter as a bit of phony-bologny business on the part of the sharp New Yorkers . . . His suspicions were verified after the fight, when Gizzy, properly chained and under control, with the boxing gloves off his fists, was able to tell his side of the story . . . Even as Kavel, he had his side, you see.

"Well," said Gizzy, "you see it was this way. The first thing I know, my mouth is cut and I'm worried about it and trying to stop the blood and I get my mouthpiece all out of whack, and, the first chance I get, in a clinch, I lean over Dorfman's shoulder and pick out a spot to lean my face against and start to work my jaws to get the mouthpiece back where it belongs. I didn't bite Dorfman, and never think of biting him, and, besides, who wants to bite with a cut mouth? . . . The biting was all in his imagination . . . I'll admit times have been tough lately, but I'm not yet at the point where I have to go around eating chunks out of people. You can put it in the paper that I said so, and also that I don't care who they get for me now, the tougher the better, just so they draw, and I'll even let them put a clause

TWO GRIDIRON FETES TONIGHT

There are two very important football dinners to be eaten and enjoyed in the city this evening. At one, the Duquesne Alumni Association will honor the Duke varsity and freshman squads, and at the other, the Pittsburgh chapter of the Eastern Intercollegiate Football Referees' Association will gather. The Dukes will swing their knives and forks at McCreery's and the officials their knives and forks and oratory at the Keystone Club.

It is too bad, certainly, that both affairs have to come on the same night. It maker those fortunate enough to rate bids to both break up their evening. One hates to turn either down, especially if one has ever attended the previous gatherings of either.

At the Duquesne dinner a captain for 1932 will be named. Father Eugene McGuigan, former football and basketball coach and director of athletics on the Bluff, and as rabid a Duquesne adherent as breathes, is to handle the toastmastering. Ray M. Marlier, president of the alumni body, is in charge.

The officials, too, are set for a big evening. A report has gone forth that Dex Very, Dan Daugherty, Harry Robb and Red Frissell are to form a quartet, singing something about the moon coming over a mountain. Whatever it is, they'll sing it well.—JESS CARVER.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

ROYALS AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 9.—The Trinity Cathedral Royals, of Pittsburgh, play the Washington Five Aces in the local Y. M. C. A. tonight.

FORMER PIRATE PILOT TO AID HARRIS

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Jewel Ens, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates last season, has been signed by the Detroit Club of the American League, as a coach. Ens replaced Donie Bush as Pirate near the end of the 1929 season and served through the 1930 and 1931 campaigns. He was connected with the Pirates for years as player, coach and manager.

Jewel Ens.

Ens will remain in Pittsburgh until February when he will accompany the Tigers to their training camp at Sacramento.

Manager Bucky Harris, who has been retained as skipper of the Detroits, made a proposition to Ens when the two met here yesterday.

President Frank J. Navin, of the Tigers, submitted a contract last night and Ens at once affixed his signature. Harris had signed his managerial document only a few hours earlier.

ENS ADMIRES HARRIS

Roger Bresnahan and Jean Dubuc both were dropped some time ago from the Tiger board of strategy and Harris was in search for a man who could perform the work of both these coaches. He decided Ens was capable of filling the bill. The veteran Muddy Ruel, who will do a share of the catching, also will act as coach for the young pitchers.

"I'm sorry to leave Pittsburgh," said Jewel, "for I formed numerous valuable acquaintances in my 10 years there, but it will be a rare pleasure to be associated with such a fine fellow as Harris. I made his acquaintance when the Pirates played Washington in the world series of 1925, and was immediately struck by his great leadership as well as his many other splendid qualities. It was a very agreeable surprise when he told me he wanted my services and would not take no for an answer."

SHERID RULED OUT

New York's Yankees were confronted with the sudden necessity of sending another player to St. Paul, of the American Association, in the transaction that gave them Jack Saltzgaver, star St. Paul second baseman. The Yankees sent Pitcher Roy Sherid to the Saints as part of the deal, but Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis has ruled Sherid ineligible for violations of rules and the Yankees have to send another player in his place.

The 1931 managerial lineup for the major leagues was completed when Stanley (Bucky) Harris signed a one-year contract to pilot the Detroit Tigers for the fourth season. It was revealed he had been approached for the Pittsburgh management, now in the hands of George Gibson.

NAVIN RE-ELECTED

Club owners of the American League held a long discussion on the radio problem and adopted a resolution by which no American League club can contract for radio rights after the 1932 season, when a meeting will be held to decide definitely on the question. The question was postponed a year when it was revealed that one American League club had signed 1932 radio rights.

Frank J. Navin, Detroit, was re-elected vice president of the American League, while owners of the Chicago, Cleveland and Boston clubs were elected to the board of directors.

National League owners also voted local option on the radio problem.

W & J. ATHLETIC COUNCIL 'FUNCTIONLESS'

Windsor Swamps Yellow Jacket Skaters, 5-1; Detroit Here Tomorrow

EIGHT-MEMBER GROUP CUT TO THREE

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 9.—Washington and Jefferson comes pretty close to having a functionless Athletic Council. According to information obtained today, only three of the eight members who normally constitute the sports governing body, are holding their positions.

Judge Howard W. Hughes, of Washington, one of the two alumni members of the council; Dr. M. A. Dickie, faculty member, and Judge William T. Dom, of Greensburg, one of the trustee members, are the only "councilmen" who regard themselves as responsible for the institution's sport activities.

The Athletic Council at Wash-Jeff, under its reorganization a few years ago, was designed to comprise four members of the board of trustees, two from the alumni body, the president of the college and a member of the faculty. All are appointed, when vacancies occur, by the board of trustees, except the college president, who also names the faculty representative.

LEADERS RESIGN

At the beginning of the present calendar year, the members of the council were: John H. Donnan and W. H. Davis, Washington; Thomas J. Sherrard, Wellsburg, W. Va., and Park J. Alexander, Pittsburgh, representing the board of trustees; Judge Howard W. Hughes and Frank M. Wallace, both of Washington, representatives of the alumni; Dr. S. S. Baker, president of the college, and Dr. M. A. Dickie, faculty representative.

Dr. Baker resigned as W. & J. president before the end of the last scholastic year, creating the first vacancy which will not be filled until the new president, Dr. R. C. Hutchinson, is inaugurated.

More recently Alexander and Donnan resigned, and still later, Wallace Sherrard and Davis canceled their obligations.

APPOINTMENT REFUSED

Judge Dom and Walter H. Baker, of Washington, were named by Judge James I. Brownson, president of the board of trustees, to succeed Donnan and Alexander. Judge Dom accepted the place and has attended one meeting. Baker refused to accept the appointment and so informed President Brownson in writing.

The situation is regarded as rather critical for the reason that numerous important duties are to be performed. A new graduate manager of athletics must be chosen, the present manager's contract expiring with the first of the coming year; contracts with Amos Henry and Wild, as athletic coaches, must be drawn and ratified or somebody else secured, and the whole machinery of sports at the institution guided and directed. Schedules, including next season's football chart, must shortly be ratified or the Presidents will be without games.

A constant stream of criticism directed at the operation of athletics for two or three years has, it is claimed, prompted the numerous resignations from the council and also had made it difficult for President Brownson, of the board of trustees, to fill vacancies.

GRIMES TRADED TO CUBS

notified the erstwhile home-run king of the Chicago Cubs that he had been traded, with Southpaw Pitcher Arthur J. (Bud) Teachout, to the St. Louis Cardinals, for Pitcher Burleigh Grimes, former Pirate star. He exclaimed, exultantly:

"Why shouldn't I be tickled? The treatment I received in Chicago was terrible, especially from the officials of the club.

NOT ALLOWED TO HIT

"You can say for me—and make it strong—that they took the bat right out of my hands in Chicago. How is a fellow going to live up to his reputation as a batter if he is not allowed to hit? When I made a home run record in the National League I was not under any big handicap at the plate as was the case last year.

"Manager Hornsby would not let me hit 'two-and-nothing' or three-and-one.' I had to stand up there and take them; yes, take a lot of sweet strikes that I might have hammered out over the fences.

RAPS HORNSBY

"The fans don't realize what I was up against as I played under the Hornsby system. And I don't think there is any harm in telling the truth about the matter. Moreover, you can say for me that I will be out there next season to show Hornsby and the others that they had been wrong.

"Ever since the season ended I have been out in the open with the idea of keeping in shape for a big season. I have hunted a lot and walked up an down the mountains. Also I have officiated in football games and I get plenty of action there.

"Gee, it surely is fine to realize I am to get with a club like the world champion Cardinals. I believe I will be able to use my own judgment to a certain in St. Louis, so I think I will have a big season next year."

Wilson held the second highest playing contrast in the National League this year. At a meeting with President Veeck, of the Cubs, in Pittsburgh last winter, Hack signed a one-year document for a sum reliably reported as $27,500. Rogers Hornsby, Cub pilot, holds the biggest playing contract in the league. Wilson probably will consent to a reduction in pay in the new St. Louis contract.

BRAVES OBTAIN COAST STAR

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—The Boston Braves today bought Fritz Knothe, star third baseman of the Seattle Pacific Coast League Club, for cash and players to be named later. Knothe batted .320 last year and Pacific Coast sports writers voted him the outstanding third baseman of the league.

Six W. & J. Stars Look to Captaincy

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 9.—Six candidates have entered the field as aspirants for the Wash. Jeff. football captaincy for 1932. They are: Carl Johnson, end, and George Shaffer, quarterback, both of Greensburg; Phil Port, quarterback, Rutherford, N. J.; Gerhard Zagray, halfback, Canton, O.; Alfred Rometo, halfback, Glassmere, Pa., and John Furjanic, center, Steelton, Pa.

Selection of a captain is being delayed because of the resignation of five of the eight members of the athletic council. No authorization for any athletic effort being possible without a quorum, varsity letters cannot be awarded and, since lettermen are the only ones eligible to cast ballots, no election can be held. The annual football banquet for the team, at which the captaincy election is conducted, has been postponed indefinitely.

Forsburg, Don McCamants and George Bodga.

These boys have a long, hard row ahead of them. They are tackling as ambitious a schedule as ever has been attempted by a college team. Thirty-one games have been listed to date, with the possibility of an additional one being added. They'll play from coast to coast, meeting among other opponents, Southern California, California, Stanford, Kansas, Butler, Notre Dame, Indiana, Purdue, Wisconsin, Syracuse, Navy, Creighton, Pennsylvania, Harvard and Georgetown, besides the local and tri-state district foes, Tech, Dukes, West Virginia, Penn State and Wash-Jeff.

TRAVEL TO COAST

The long jaunt that will carry the Blue and Gold from here to the Pacific Coast, of course, is the feature of the season. Leaving here Monday, Carlson's Panthers meet Wisconsin, Indiana, Purdue, Butler, Kansas (three games), Colorado, California, Stanford and Southern California in the space of about two weeks. A week after playing the Trojans a second game in Los Angeles, the Pitt team must engage Syracuse at Syracuse.

The odd part of Carlson's team is that there isn't a man on the squad who was outstanding in high school. Tim Lawry, who came through in such splendid fashion last year, wasn't even a regular in 1929-30. He and the two Kowallis kids, Tip and Doc, are expert shots, real marksmen, and have the fundamentals of Carlson's intricate system down so pat that they have developed into stars of the first magnitude.

Don Smith, lacking a fraction of an inch of reaching the six-foot mark, is a big, husky fellow, fast, and a ball hawk as is a ball hawk. He was good enough last year as a sophomore to put Eddie Baker, co-captain with Willie Arture, plunk on the bench and to keep him there.

MEET TEMPLE FIRST

The Panthers open their intercollegiate campaign with the formidable Temple University Owls, of Philly. Temple rated high in eastern court circles last year, and this year the material is so impressive that only about three of last year's regulars will start against Pitt.

The game will be a feature of Pitt's second annual basketball clinic, with more than 400 college, high school and preparatory school coaches and players in attendance at the all-day session.

Dr. Carlson hasn't figured out his starting lineup as yet, but he'll likely have Ochsenhirt at center, Lawry and Willie Kowallis at the forwards and Smith and McCamant at the guards.

The Tipoff

I get a kick and a flock of laughs out of the all-America teams one runs into at the close of the season. You see guys on some teams that you know haven't been hitting the old ball all season, due to one thing or another. But if they had a rep the year previous, and play at all, on they go.

For example, take this chap McEver, of Tennessee. Two years ago, the big Southerner was one of the best backs in the land. He could kick, pass and run and was a tower of strength on the defense. But last year, he suffered one of those cussed knee injuries and was out of action.

According to my good friend, Quay Jones, who sees as much southern football as any man in the country, and is well qualified to judge the merits of players and teams, McEver's knee still bothers him and has changed him prodigiously. Jones tells me he is not nearly the player he was in 1929, and does not believe he is entitled to all-America rating.

Another player who looked like a bust here and who didn't look much better last year at Lincoln was Hugh Rhea, of Nebraska. Rhea certainly has all the physical qualifications of a great football player, but he did not give Pitt much trouble either last season or here in the Stadium Thanksgiving. At Lincoln, Brickstone was the baby who had the Panthers in a tail-spin.

MORGAN MEETS STIFF TEST

By TOM BIRKS

Soccer fans will have national cup ties and league games to become enthused over this weekend. In the national amateur cup, the outstanding battle finds the Morrys and Morgan scheduled to clash at Shannon, but there is a chance the game will be taken to South Park, with its big playing field and parking space.

The last meeting of the teams found the Morrys surprising the fans by holding Morgan to a tie. This time Morgan will be without the services of Buff Donnelli.

Clan Douglas' undefeated record in the Central League may be spoiled Saturday when the Celties appear at Westinghouse High School Stadium to clash with the Clansmen.

It would appear that the big league fights will be staged by Douglas and Switch. While Douglas is trying to stop Harold Farmer's outfit, Jack Campbell and his Switch team will be at McKeesport, trying to beat National Tube.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Defying a muddy field, the Columbia Lions unleashed a strong running attack to defeat Princeton, 13 to 0, in the first game of today's charity football tournament here.

James, of Princeton, broke away for a first down at midfield. Purnell fumbled and Columbia recovered on its own 42. Hewitt hit tackle for first down on the Tigers' 12-yard line. Hewitt, end, another first down on Princeton's 4-yard line. Princeton held Columbia for downs on the goal line.

LIONS TO PLAY EIGHT-GAME SCHEDULE

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., is the only new team on the 1932 eight-game football schedule of the Pennsylvania State College, but gridiron relations will be resumed with Harvard after a lapse of 10 years. The Penn State schedule has been announced as follows:

October 1, Lebanon Valley at home; 8, Waynesburg at home; 15, Harvard, away; 22, Syracuse at home; 29, Colgate, away; November 5, University of the South at home; 12, Temple at Philadelphia and 24, Pittsburgh, away.

It will be the first season since 1919 that the schedule has consisted of only eight games.

Penn State's football captain for next season will be George B. Collins, former star at Youngstown (Ohio) High school and Dean Academy in Boston. Collins played halfback on this season's team.

Collins played on the varsity in 1928 and then dropped out of college for two years, returning this fall to resume his place in the backfield. He filled the role of blocking back chiefly this fall but did some of the kicking when Capt. Lasich was not in the lineup.

WINDSOR, Ontario, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Windsor swamped Pittsburgh's Yellow Jackets under a 5-1 count in an International Hockey League contest here last night.

After a scoreless first period, Windsor took a two-goal lead in the second and added two more goals in the third period before Gregg pushed over a tally for Pittsburgh. Earl Roche was the outstanding star for Windsor, scoring four goals.

After a scoreless first period, two Windsor goals were scored in less than a minute's play in the second. Eddie Rodden, Pittsburgh center, was finishing out a major penalty for body checking Referee Flosdale of Detroit. Roche scored both tricks.

DETROIT HERE TOMORROW

The first revolution of the International League hockey wheel will be completed tomorrow night when the Detroit Olympics, the last aggregation to make its 1931-32 campaign debut here, will appear at Duquesne Garden.

The Jackets handed the Olympics seven successive setbacks last season, but the Detroiters, strengthened under the leadership of George Hay, former National League star, held the locals to a 3-3 tie in Detroit recently and figure to provide plenty of opposition at any and all times.

BISONS ADD TO LEAD

FORT ERIE, Ont., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—The Buffalo Bisons increased their lead in the International Hockey League race by defeating the Cleveland Indians, second place holders, 5-2, here last night.

Selling Spreads — Stocks Firm Here

RAILS TUMBLE TO NEW LOW LEVELS

Steel Breaks More Than 2 To Fresh Minimum, Under 49, as Selling Spreads

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP.)—Stocks again declined today under moderate selling which developed after announcement that New York Central had deferred action on common dividends and on publication of the joint recommendations of President Hoover and Secretary Mellon for increasing taxes.

The railroad group bore the main brunt of selling which at noon had reached a volume of 1,000,000 shares. All railroad shares went to new lows. Losses of 2 to 4 points were registered by Union Pacific, Atchison, New York Central, Lehigh Valley, Delaware and Hudson and Baltimore and Ohio.

Selling spread to the industrials and utilities with special activity in the tobaccos, telephone and chemical issues. United States Steel went to a new low for the present market, declining over 2 points to less than 49. Losses of 2 to more than 4 occurred in American Tobacco B, American Telephone, American Can, Western Union, Eastman Kodak and Consolidated Gas among others.

While the revenue proposals advanced jointly by President Hoover and Secretary Mellon had been foreshadowed in many important essentials over the past two weeks, actual publication of the recommended program caused further selling. Investors had been prepared for a stiffening of the income tax rate. Reduction of personal exemption to $1,000 and $2,500 had been forecast. Likewise the sharp increase in surtax rates which are graduated upward from 1 per cent on incomes of $10,000 to 40 per cent on incomes of more than $500,000. But the scope of special levies against particular industries apparently caught many holders of stocks by surprise.

These include larger imposts on tobacco and on transfers of capital stock. In addition they suggest a tax on automobile sales, radios, and a charge on telephone, telegraph, cable and radio messages. These latter recommendations led to fairly heavy selling of tobacco stocks and also caused some further liquidation of telephone shares.

Decision of the directors of the New York Central against declaring a dividend at this time again called attention to the flurry of recent railroad dividend omissions.

Trade reports were not inspiring, although no improvement at this time of year had been anticipated. Continued hesitancy of automobile manufacturers to place new orders for steel led to a further decline in steel production now at 26½ per cent of capacity for the entire industry.

WARNER DENIES INSOLVENCY

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 9—A petition for a receiver for Warner Brothers Pictures has been filed in the Delaware Chancery Court by Jules Endler, of New York City. It alleges insolvency.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—Warner Brothers Pictures in a statement today concerning the receivership action, declared that the complainant is not a stockholder of the company, and that the allegations made in the petition are not true in fact.

The statement said:

"The basis of the petition is that the corporation cannot meet its maturing obligations. This is untrue, as the company is paying all bills promptly, taking advantage of cash discounts. The company has no bank loans and has large cash balances."

WHEAT UNDER PRESSURE

CHICAGO, Dec. 9 — Fresh downturns in grain values took place early today owing largely to bearish action of the New York stock market. Liverpool reported that free offerings of new crop Argentine wheat continued. Opening ¼ to ¾ off, wheat afterward rallied somewhat. Corn started at a shade to ⅜ decline and subsequently steadied.

Selling pressure in wheat received stimulus from reports showing that practically the entire domestic grain belt had been furnished welcome moisture from either rain or snow during the last 12 hours. On the other hand, sleet was reported in numerous sections, a circumstance ominous of crop damage. Bulls stressed assertions also that wheat was the most liquidated commodity in the world.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

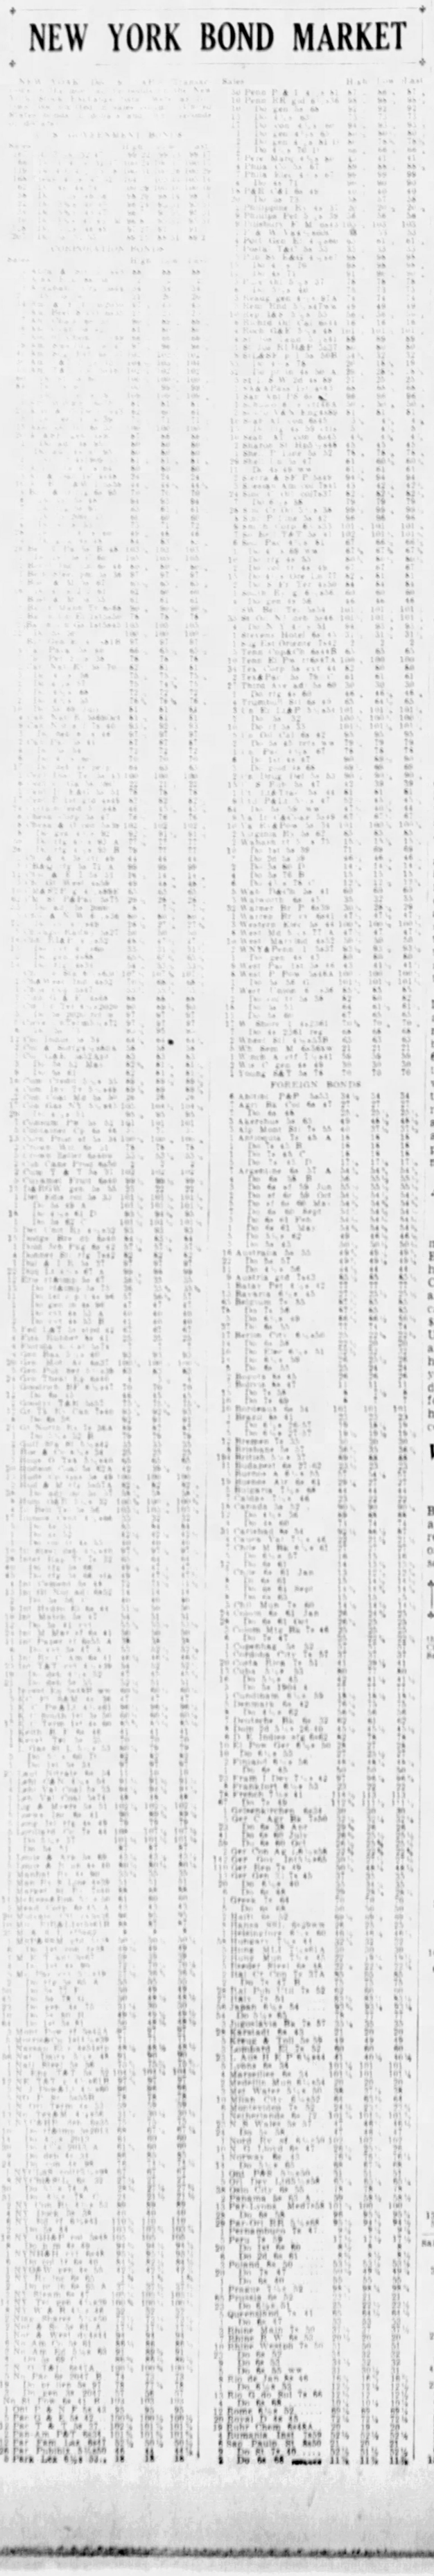
NEW YORK BOND MARKET



STEEL ACTIVITY DROPS FURTHER

The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the steel industry tomorrow will say:

A decline in steel ingot production to 26½ per cent of the country's capacity, against an average output of 30 per cent in November, further weakness in some finished steel products and a drop in the Iron Age steel scrap price composite to $8.58, the lowest on record, are developments that emphasize the year-end recession in business activity.

To counterbalance the usual December slowing down, the steel industry had expected considerable support from the automobile industry which has materialized only in part. Meanwhile, first quarter buying is generally being delayed by motor car manufacturers as well as other steel consumers, a situation brought about to some extent by price uncertainties.

With steel inventories already at an extremely low point, there is reason for believing, however, that any further sharp contraction in purchasing this month will be followed by a corresponding recovery in January, when replenishment of stocks will be an important factor, together with larger buying by the automobile industry and possibly some railroad purchases, if the financial condition of the carriers is then approaching solution.

COTTON PRICES SHOW LOSSES

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—Cotton opened steady today, 2 points lower to 1 point higher. Trading was moderately active, with some southern selling or liquidation. January sold at 5.97.

Liverpool was also a seller here and, after the initial demand had been supplied, prices worked off a few points under a continuation of the selling which was probably promoted by the action of the stock market. January declined to 5.94 and May to 6.31, with active months showing net losses of about 2 to 4 points by the end of the first half hour.

The selling by houses with Liverpool connections tapered off after the close of the English market while a little more trade buying seemed to develop around 6.30 cents for May contracts and the market later in the morning was quiet and fairly steady, although prices showed very little rallying power. At midday January was selling around 5.94 cents and May 6.30 cents, or 3 to 4 points net lower on the active months.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 9.—Attachment proceedings against Cyrus Eaton and Foreign Utilities, Ltd., have been filed in Common Pleas Court by Charles S. Wachner, who asks the court to forbid disposal of cash and securities amounting to $3,000,000 of Eaton and Foreign Utilities until suits against them are heard by the court. Wachner has filed several suits in the past year seeking to recover from the defendants large sums of money for Continental Shares. The first hearing on the suits will be December 22.

Forbes

Forbes Hears 'Short' Figures Will Be Issued

By B. C. FORBES

I UNDERSTAND that the New York Stock Exchange is giving serious consideration to the widespread demand that it publish promptly and regularly the short-selling data gathered daily.

Mr. Forbes

But I learn that the governors of the institution have not thus far changed their opposition to suspending all short-selling.

Some of the governors, I learn, feel so strongly that the total abolition of short-selling would cause chaos that should another acute emergency arise, they would prefer closing the exchange temporarily. Their view is that this would be the lesser of two evils.

KEEPING SECRET the information daily collected showing exactly the extent of the short-selling in each stock is utterly indefensible.

Doubtless each and every one of the two-score brokers constituting the governing committee would indignantly repudiate insinuations by outsiders that the acquiring of this inside information would ever be used for personal profit. But, human nature being what it is, these brokers cannot feel amazed that secrecy incites suspicion among some people.

The United States Steel Corporation directorate when that billion-dollar organization was established read like a bluebook of crowned heads of American finance and industry. Yet Judge Gary himself told me that, becoming suspicious, he caused a checkup to be made of the actions of certain directors who, he noticed, made excuses to leave the board room immediately after earnings statements were laid before them. He found that the excuses they gave for leaving the room were false, and that they hurried to telephones and issued stock market orders.

JUDGE GARY promptly changed the meeting hour so as to make sure that the market would be closed before the figures were presented to the directors. And of course the figures were released to the press and public before the stock market reopened next day.

President Whitney of the Stock Exchange once remarked to me that the desire of the institution was to conduct itself and all its affairs after the manner of Caesar's wife so that it must be above suspicion. By deciding to publish short-selling data regularly the institution assuredly will be taking an important step in the right direction.

TWO SHORT-SELLING suggestions received from readers:

"Designate each short-sale transaction by an asterisk or other symbol accompanying the quotation on the tape. This expedient might conceivably avert impending legislative activities."

"How would it be in times of stress to put a state or federal tax on short sales, same to come out of brokers' commissions and not allowed to be passed on to customers?"

Many protest vehemently against lending of customers' stocks by brokers to short sellers.

WELL, THE Interstate Commerce Commission has recalled its silly decision that certain railroads collect and pay a dole to weaker roads. Instead of a dole, the money is to be handed over in the form of loans.

This is, of course, better than the former ridiculous ruling. But don't for a moment conclude that it comes anywhere near solving the railway problem.

As told here several weeks ago, our financial leaders are so perturbed over the collapse of railway securities, especially bonds, that they regard it as futile to attempt to bring about stability in the security markets until some solution, going to the very vitals of the railway problem, is evolved and adopted.

FINANCIERS DECLARE very emphatically that wages of organized employes must be reduced just as wages of unorganized railway employes and executives have already been reduced. Also, finance is keenly interested in seeing Congress create some broad-gauge financing corporation headed by some man of conspicuous ability and having a thorough grasp of the fundamental issues involved.

It may astonish the public to learn that in influential circles it is not regarded as a foregone conclusion that the workers on all roads will refuse to accept a wage cut when requested to do so by the executives of their own systems. The belief is expressed that there is more than a remote possibility that amicable action will be witnessed after some give-and-take by both parties.

IF YOU DON'T enjoy crying, keep away from financial New York.

CENTRAL OMITS DIVIDEND

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—New York Central Railroad has omitted the $1 dividend due at this time. Three months ago the annual rate was cut from $6 to $4. The company issued the following statement:

"In view of the decline in earnings and of the difficulty of prognosticating future earnings, the directors decided not to consider until business conditions improve declaration of dividends due at this time."

Directors decided to take action on dividends semi-annually at the May and November meetings of the board instead of quarterly as heretofore. These dividends, if declared will be payable June 20 and December 20.

F. E. Williamson has been elected president of New York Central. He also was elected a director. R. H. Shaddick was elected executive vice president. P. E. Crowley will act in an advisory capacity with the company.

The office of chairman of the executive committee has been abolished.

Heinz Managers Map 1932 Plans

Speaking at an H. J. Heinz Company sales convention in Heinz auditorium and service building, Progress and Heinz streets, North Side, Howard Heinz, president of the concern, uttered a definite feeling of confidence in the future for the food business. The company has 87 sales branches and warehouses and managers are in Pittsburgh to consider plans for 1932.

Laurel Is Humiliated When Dr. Harvey Spurns Her Advances

CHAPTER XVII.

The country club was filled with lights, music and laughter.

It was Saturday night. The colored orchestra was playing that intriguing fox trot known as "Why?" Laurel Oakes was dancing rhythmically with the young doctor.

Laurel looked beautiful tonight. Across the floor she saw her mother watching her.

There was an odd expression on her mother's face. Was it possible that Connie was JEALOUS of her daughter?

She hadn't wanted Laurel to come here. Was that because Connie desired greater liberty for herself? Didn't want Laurel to be in on her gallivanting?

Or was it because she, too, had fallen a victim to the attractions of Bruce Harvey?

Oh, kill that thought! Connie belonged to Dad. Laurel wouldn't even in thought be disloyal to her mother.

"Our steps fit divinely," she murmured to her partner as they swayed in perfect unison.

"That's a good thing." He made banal answers to her "leads." There seemed no getting ahead with him.

Which was annoying. And horribly disappointing.

"Go away, you!" "Oh, later on, Freddie." "Be yourself, Roger!"

But she had a feeling none the less, that Bruce Harvey would have yielded her to any one of them without much protest.

It wasn't flattering, this knowledge.

A PLEASING REMARK

Then she saw her mother rise, and make as though to come directly towards them.

"Say, let's vamoose—"

"Where to?" said he, "you know I'll have to return to my party."

"Don't be so conventional, big boy! Anyhow—"—his back was to her mother—"there isn't anybody now at your table."

She drew him quickly out to the wide porch, and—her hand still possessively on his arm—down the shallow steps and over the fairway.

"Whither away?" He spoke lightly. She didn't guess that he, too, felt a heady excitement.

"Away from the mob. It's gorgeously cool in this tiny wood to the left, where the stream runs."

"But your dress? You'll spoil it—"

"Bosh! there's lot of others like it in the shop it came from."

"Spoilt young thing!"

"Don't be unkind to me. I put on this dress so's I would meet with your special approval!"

"You don't need ME to tell you you're beautiful."

"You mean it? Truly? They were out of the radius of light cast by the clubhouse now, and as she walked she did a funny little jazz step beside him.

And not the drugstore sort this time!"

He laughed again. He said—"What were you drinking in the bar this afternoon with your friend Roger?"

"Oh, only a ginger pop," she fibbed. "I'm a reformed character."

That's a good child. It'll be a whole lot better for your health and everything if you cut out some of the whoopie."

INTERESTED IN HER

"So you really mind what I do? You really do see I'm on the earth after all?" Her voice wasn't shrill or raucous now. It was musical.

"Yes." He felt an electric current rush from the touch of her hand on his arm and pour itself through his body. He oughtn't to be here at all . . . playing with fire it was . . . why, the child wasn't even 20!

They were in among the trees now, in the cool, sweet darkness. The tinkle of a little brook mingled with the music from the clubhouse and the crickets' humming.

She had halted still with her hand on his arm.

Listen!" The orchestra had started a new tune. "They're playing 'There's a Little Bit of Bad in every Good Little Girl!'" breathed Laurel.

Her hand slid down his arm till it found his. He had halted too. He saw her face like a white blur in the darkness.

He did not speak. He was overcome by the mad race of his pulses.

"You heard me, Bruce? I'm going to call you Bruce. Bruce (how maddeningly close she was!) . . . you aren't ANGRY with me?"

"I? Angry? Good lord, no!"

"Then—won't you be friends with me?"

FRIENDS? When every nerve in his body was clamoring for her!

He cleared his throat. "Of course I'm . . . friends with you . . . Laurel."

"But, Bruce . . . listen to that heavenly tune . . . I too have got a 'Little Bit of Bad' . . . in ME. Is that very awful?"

"Depends on . . . what kind of bad. Shall we move on? Where's this pool you were looking for?"

She said, in a flat little voice, —"Down here." Still clinging to his hand she moved forward.

It was lovelier still down by the pool. More isolated.

"There's a legend that if you look into the water you will see your lover's face. Shall—shall you and I lean over?"

"Little Delilah, what are you getting at?" His voice trembled though he tried to make it quizzical.

"I'm not a temptress, Bruce. But—but you're a . . . , terribly attractive person."

"Laurel, you shouldn't say such things."

"Oh, I know you think I'm just a wild woman."

"I don't think anything of the sort, and that's the trouble."

"Trouble? Do I trouble YOU, Bruce?" Her voice was in his ear, beguiling him with its sweetness. The perfume of her hair, her flowers, the nearness of her, clamored at his senses.

"Laurel, there ought to be a rock out there and you sitting atop it like—like Lorelei."

"A rock? YOU are the rock . . . hard . . . like granite."

Heavens! I wish I were."

She put her two hands on his shoulders.

"Bruce—help me to cut out the bad—please be that rock—and let me LEAN on you . . ." she whispered.

* * *

Night closed them round like a glorious black flower. From the clubhouse came the throbbing music of the tango.

It blended with the crickets' song, tinkle of the stream as it divided 'round some stick or stone before it joined the quieter water.

Peace! Beauty!

But there was no peace in the heart of young Harvey.

How could there be when the sweet, soft, yielding body of this girl was almost in his arms?

When her strange charm went clamoring through his senses . . .?

"A rock?" she'd called him that. Had asked him to let her 'lean' upon that rock . . . asked him to 'help' here . . .

The blind leading the blind!

She didn't speak. Her hands slid up behind his shoulders and locked themselves at the back of his collar.

He tried to push her back. "Why, Laurel—"

"Don't. Let me stay here. I feel so safe with you, somehow."

He told himself, over and over, that he mustn't lose his head . . . that he must play the game with her.

Not as her gang played it, but as a responsible creature.

The sweetness of her body and her beauty and the glamour of this girl went thundering to his senses. But his heart? What of his heart? What of his intellect?

Even discarding the question of her youth, weren't they poles apart mentally?

Her appeal was surely physical, and that was all. He was no Galahad . . . they were alone . . . but he would withstand her.

Choke back that impulse to take her in his arms and crush that fragrant loveliness!

He has seen too many mix-ups . . . hearts broken, lives ruined . . .

But he would try to guide her, as one would a wandering child.

"Laurel!"

"Yes, Bruce."

"What is it?"

"It's so heavenly—being alone like this—out here in the darkness."

"But we must go back and join the others."

"No. Let's stay. Let's stay here forever."

"What nonsense is this?" Her face was very close to his. Her breath was sweet as honeysuckle.

"It's not nonsense. It's heaven. What matter if the others do miss us?" Her voice beguiled him like the chords of a harp in some lonely forest.

"But they'll talk, dear. And your mother'll wonder—"

He had called her "dear." The little word had slipped out against his own volition.

"Bruce—listen—you asked me what it is I'm seeking. Her voice was low and appealing.

"Yes, I know. At least I think I know. But—the senses are treacherous guides, Laurel . . ."

"YOU aren't that. You're fine and clean and—and honest."

"And that way I'll remain, I hope—if it is true. And you, too, Laurel, you must find — fresh standards."

"There's just one thing I want to find—and that is—"

"Happiness!"

"No. Love. And I don't care if it hurts like hell . . . I want it to hurt . . . to cut me into little pieces . . . If I can know . . . the real thing."

Through her frail evening dress he could hear her heart beating.

His own thudded, too, with a queer delirium. Intoxicating words she's said . . . that slim and yielding sweetness!

But he mustn't pluck this flower. He musn't. MUSTN'T.

He put his two hands at the back of her waist. "Laurel don't you understand? . . . this kind of thing isn't Love . . . it's merely Passion . . ."

"What?" She drew back as though he had struck her. "What's that you're saying?"

"That the senses are treacherous guides, dear . . . and when they are quieted they can leave the heart so empty . . ."

"You mean . . . that you don't want to kiss me, Bruce?"

"What I want and what I'll do are two entirely different things. I'm a good deal older than you, Laurel . . ."

She stammered—"Age is nothing."

"But glamour is. You're an intoxicating child. Yet moonlight fades in the morning . . ."

She could feel her face aflame in the darkness till the whole world seemed scarlet with her humiliation.

He was spurning her . . . she who had thrown herself brazenly at him.

She offered him her love . . . herself . . . and he had told her plainly that she was the kind of a girl who only appealed to the senses but left the heart empty!

She LOVED him so. He was disgusted with her . . . thought her crazy!

HAD she gone mad? Why had she come out here among the flowers, like an insane Ophelia?

This man loved some one else. He had been too chivalrous to say so. Oh, how she loathed herself—and HIM!

But no, she didn't hate him . . . that was the awful part of it . . . but pride must help her carry it off.

She forced herself to laugh as she drew away from Bruce.

"The moonlight always makes me act a little queer. But it doesn't shine tonight—so shall we put this little interlude down to—er—experimenting?"

"With ME?"

"Why yes!" She forced herself to laugh again. Now her laugh sounded a shade more natural. "You're a nice boy, Bruce, to be around with now and again—but you're too darn cautious! And the next move in the game which is clearly indicated"—she flitted away from him down the path—"is to get right back to the clubhouse."

Laurel didn't guess that he, too, felt a heady excitement.

Synopsis

Laurel Oakes, "modern" to the minute, is invited by her friend, Imogen Gay, who is even more sophisticated, to attend a party in an old deserted farmhouse. When the party gets too wild for Laurel she leaves and meets Bruce Harvey, a young physician, who takes her home. Laurel tells her mother that pleasure means more to her than love or romance. Laurel, attracted to him, fails to make a favorable impression on Dr. Harvey. Harvey tells Laurel that she ought to stop seeking pleasure and get married. Laurel goes to a party at Timmy Tewson's. Imogen wins a bet by plunging in Tewson's pool and then he asks her to leave the place. Laurel's mother arranges to meet Diaz, a Spanish dancer 20 years her junior. He tells her that he loves her. Laurel follows her mother to the country club, because she knows Harvey is there.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

The Warner Theaters-Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Club is growing more popular every day with parents of the members. Many of them attend the meetings with the children and learn, first hand, what attractions and advantages the club offers. The meetings are held in neighborhood theaters within a few blocks of the children's homes. The earliest begins at 10 a. m. and the latest at 1 p. m. There are no evening meetings.

From time to time the Warner Theaters-Sun-Telegraph put on a big special show for members of the 15 chapters, at the Stanley Theater on Sunday afternoon. On these occasions the local theater managers accompany the children to the Sun-Telegraph Building, where they are put in charge of 50 or more representatives of the Warner Theaters and the Sun-Telegraph. One of these joint meetings and shows is scheduled before Christmas, the date to be announced later.

MEMORIAL, McKEESPORT

The Memorial (McKeesport) Theater has one of the largest and most active chapters of the club. The meetings open every Saturday at 11 a. m., with "The Star-Spangled Banner," reading of the club pledge, and the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Memorial has a cheer leader and their own club yells. Vera Hollywood leads the children in songs.

There are always a lot of peppy contests with attractive prizes. At last Saturday's meeting, the balloon contest was won by Bobby Greenwalt. The shoe contest for little girls was won by Irene Vadas. Betty Paulic won honors for the shoe contest for big girls. The Hickville Follies entertained on the stage.

Members of the club are looking forward to Saturday's meeting at which two big electric trains will be given away at each of the Warner neighborhood houses. There will be many smaller gifts and prizes. Special stage attractions have been arranged and it looks like a big day for the Warner Theaters-Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Club. Members are cautioned to be on hand early because the meetings will open promptly at the hour scheduled. Watch for this time schedule in Friday's edition of the Sun-Telegraph.

We can tell at a glance if your child is shy and frightened of a comb and brush. For a small fee we will inform you that your child eats too fast and has a stay-up-too-late complex. We find that a great many children have dark spots around the neck and ears. We will gladly explain that there is nothing much you can do about it—and we will strongly advise that parents spend more time improving themselves and less time expecting their kids to act like grown-ups.

The Hoover Message

It Fails to Provide Congress an Adequate Guide, And Gives Information That Is Wrong

President Hoover's third annual message to the Congress will doubtless disappoint the expectations of the people, because it falls short of the standard set in their Constitution for such a state paper.

By the Constitution the President is required to give to the Congress "information of the state of the Union," and to recommend such measures "as he shall judge necessary and expedient."

Unfortunately, the information in Mr. Hoover's message does not fully portray many conditions in the household of the nation today that urgently need the attention of the federal government. For that reason the message will not prove an adequate guide to Congress or the country.

And even more unfortunately, some of the information in the message is wrong, as Congress will prove by investigation.

For example, Congress and the country know full well that in spite of all organized relief work today this is going to be a severe winter for unnumbered millions of our people. Suffering and privation are bound to be the portion of many a family.

Yet Mr. Hoover would have us believe that these relief agencies provide "assurance against suffering during the coming winter."

Again, many an educator is deeply concerned over the slashing of appropriations for educational institutions and the reduction of teachers' salaries now going on all over this country.

Yet Mr. Hoover says in his message that in spite of the depression "there has been a constant gain in knowledge and education."

As for the rhetorical "Hush, darling," that "both our Army and Navy have been maintained in a high state of efficiency," Mr. Hoover contradicts a mass of facts that are of official record.

These rhetorical exaggerations were doubtless inserted in the message to revive confidence. They are apt to have the opposite effect. For, as James Russell Lowell said:

"Enthusiasm is good material for an orator, but the statesman needs something more durable to work on."

And there is something more durable for Congress to work on in the legislative recommendations which Mr. Hoover offers. Some of these are excellent and deserving of the sympathetic consideration of both parties in both houses of Congress.

The best of these measures proposed by Mr. Hoover are:

New banking laws to provide better protection for bank depositors.

Relief for the railroads through consolidation of existing systems and the regulation of competing agencies.

Stronger deportation laws to rid us of undesirable aliens, stricter immigration laws and the registration of all aliens.

Effective federal regulation of electrical power.

Of Mr. Hoover's suggestion that Congress establish a federal system of home-loan banks to encourage home ownership it must be said that, while the objective is excellent, the route seems rather circuitous.

These are fact-finding times. Their challenges can only be met by a leadership in government possessed of the courage to face the facts and the wisdom to follow where they lead.

This courage and this wisdom the country will now look to the Democrats, who control the House, and the Progressives, who hold the balance of power in the Senate to supply.

By raising up at the Capitol the constructive leadership that the country has failed to get from the White House, Congress can do far more to revive confidence than President Hoover has been able to do in his message.

Bank Liquidation

Progress in Releasing Funds in State Institutions Does Not Reach Expectations

Progress in distributing the deposits of closed state banks has been disappointingly slow in view of the optimistic plans announced by officials of the State Banking Department a short time ago.

Obviously the task of establishing facilities to undertake the liquidation of the unfortunate institutions has been difficult. Undue haste might result in the sale of assets at poor prices and should be avoided. But little has been accomplished toward releasing the millions of frozen bank deposits in time to brighten Pittsburgh homes during the holidays.

Following the meeting yesterday of the directors of the Second District Realization Corporation, formed to hasten the liquidation of state banks in this district, Dr. William D. Gordon, Secretary of Banking, made it known that only three of the smaller closed banks would be able to make distributions before Christmas and that these payments would be small percentages of total deposits.

Undoubtedly the organization set up by the Banking Department to undertake liquidation on a scientific basis will do much good. It does seem, however, that the department has been guilty of raising false hopes about the time needed for it to carry out its work. The predicted flow of funds to be released before Christmas has dwindled to a mere trickle.

A Deserved Rebuke

Representative Musmanno Had Ample Justification for His Sharp Words About the Legislature

Representative M. A. Musmanno's rebuke to the Legislature for its delay in doing anything to relieve unemployment distress was justified.

Four weeks have been frittered away without the accomplishment of anything worth while. The House and the Senate and Gov. Pinchot have so far failed to get together.

The session got started on the wrong foot, it is true, because of the emphasis placed on unwise proposals for cigaret and gasoline taxes. But there has been ample time not only for putting the quietus on these schemes, but also for the adoption of a sensible plan to take their place.

Virtually all that has been done so far is of a negative character. What the state needs now is positive action.

Mr. Musmanno has offered a resolution that will be at least a step in the right direction. It calls on Congress to authorize a $5,000,000,000 program of public works on which the unemployed can be given jobs. The resolution, buried in committee, should be reported out promptly and unanimously adopted.

The plan, originally offered by William Randolph Hearst, has gained some strong supporters in Congress. Indorsement by the Pennsylvania Legislature may be all that is needed to give it the impetus necessary to carry it through to a successful conclusion.

'Twould Mean the Dawn of a New Day

"A real way to relieve unemployment," wrote Arthur Brisbane, "is to give employment."

A gigantic scheme of essential public improvements, planned and promptly STARTED, would create the needed jobs for the jobless.

A $5,000,000,000 Prosperity Bond Issue promptly authorized would provide the funds necessary for such a scheme.

The Administration, having failed to act, Congress this week is brought face to face with the question of unemployment relief. A Prosperity Loan would solve the problem.

Prompt action by Congress would mean the dawn of a new day for the jobless millions rebuffed by the Administration.

Marry-Go-Round

Loose Marriage Ties

The best way to keep a husband and wife together is to keep them apart, most of the time, if you would believe Mr. Bertrand Russell, famous author and lecturer.

* * *

Mr. Russell would have modern married couples take their pleasures separately and spend a lot of their play-time with other people. That would give them a fine perspective on each other!

* * *

Oh, yeah? And if a man and wife do not work together and cannot play together, just how would they manage to keep up a bowing acquaintance? They could send each other postcards and Christmas greetings, I suppose?

Lots of society couples are like that already. They meet only when the husband drops in to change from his golf knickers to his dinner clothes. Or when the wife stops in for a few days on her way from Newport to Palm Beach. Yet they somehow manage to see enough of each other to make them want a divorce. Ask the lawyers at Reno!

* * *

The truth is that all these champions of loose marriage-ties start with the false assumption that love is nothing but sex-attraction, and that marriage is just an incident, or an accident—or something.

* * *

On the contrary, most of us marry in order to get a PLAY-MATE—a pal and a companion, with whom we can enjoy our leisure hours, our pleasures, our pastimes, our parties, our friends, our jokes, and our amusements.

* * *

We marry in order to have someone with whom we can share things! Our work, our dreams, our ambitions, our secrets— but MOST of all, our good times.

And, if we are sane, we deliberately choose someone, who enjoys the things that WE enjoy—the same books, the same plays, the same sports, the same brand of humor and the same sort of GOOD TIMES.

* * *

It is a great cross to a bridge-mad wife to find herself tied to a man who hates the sight of cards, or to a man with quiet, literary tastes to be chained to a woman who cares for nothing but whoopee and dancing.

* * *

It is a tragedy for a man who loves dinner parties and theaters and night-clubs to be bound to a woman who "goes dead" at 10 o'clock and wants to stay at home and read a novel or embroider guest-towels every night.

* * *

But, such people seldom DO marry each other, thank heaven!

* * *

And, there is no sane reason, why a man who is married to a woman with whom he is congenial and in love, should want to take his pleasures with other women. Nor why a woman who is married to the right man should prefer going to parties with other men.

* * *

If they do, they are not "married"—they are just TIED. Because, marriage is for the sole purpose of making and enjoying life, TOGETHER!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Manhattan's fabled extravagances these days is confined to those lavish side street mansions to which after midnight magnificents drift for wassail. Once private homes as sedately stiff as their high-backed hall chairs, they are now mellow with mirth.

Enormous fortunes have been spent to equip them into a splendor no New York restaurant ever achieved. Backers apparently have no fear the expensive trappings will fall under a raiding ax. Incidentally, whispers as to this financing, if true, would shock an already tottering world.

The private residence where Belle Livingston spread her aura of "continental culture" for such a fleeting period, has been done over. A foremost decorator was given carte blanche to floss it up. A backgammon room in onyx and pink marble gives a faint idea.

Joe Zelli, Italian entrepeneur, was imported from his dance hall on a Montmartre peak to conduct "The Royal Box," the highest tariffed night spot on either side of the Atlantic. "The Five O'clock Club," directed by the celebrated John and Cristo, is like an imported slice of the Riviera. Too, The Bath Club.

Also Lou Schwarz's "Mansion." In boom days spenders were content to gather in basement dining rooms where patrons buzzed a push button and asked for Loole. They were dim lit, smelly and pungent with the effluvia of garlic and other highly seasoned dishes.

But with the economic eclipse such hide-aways dried up like rain drops on the Sahara. In their stead four and five storied private residences were slit into soft carpeted salons, hung with rich tapestries, costly canvases and crystal dripping chandeliers.

Now and then they are politely invaded, a bottle of "cooking sherry" is carried away, bows are exchanged and business goes on as usual. One of the spots has a special dog checking room, highly sanitized and with silk cushions for Pekes and Poms.

* * *

Incidentally, Thyra Samter Winslow, the novelist, carries a fawn-colored Peke with her wherever she goes. Even to the theater. And she does not trust it to checkers. It nestles under her arm so obscurely it is rarely seen.

* * *

Gen. Pershing's phone chimed at his New York hotel room around 3 a. m. the other day. A rather hiccupy gentleman explained: "General, I just want to apologize for losing the Lost Battalion. Pleasant dreams, sir."

* * *

A Broadway thrift story concerns Bill Robinson who tap dances up and down an arch of stairs. To do his bit during the depression he is now merely sliding down the bannisters.

* * *

Recently I sat across aisle from an international gigolo watching Gilbert Miller's stinging expose of those silken buzzards circling about the Place Vendome. In hilarious moments when stage flaneurs were confessing their sins I expected him to squirm and express himself in dry little laughs. Instead, he seemed most vastly amused of all. But his rich wife sat tense and if my eyes did not deceive—a little white.

* * *

The other evening I saw blonde Mae Murray, draped in a clinging creation of moonbeam satin, for the first time in several years. Until her identity was confirmed by Bert Lytell, at the same table, I was unconvinced. She had the dewy freshness and vivacity of a 19-year-old flapper. Yet she was the toast of cabarets and dancing at San Souci when I emerged from mid-west downs into New York 20 years ago. She had a frisk of wind-blown hair, a wand-like figure and peach complexion. Her dancing expressed the lightness of a floating feather—the whilom elfin grace that distinguished her when the Midnight Frolic's overhead runway of glass was the talk of the town.

* * *

Fanny Ward, at the same gathering, remains, however, leading contender for eternal flapperdom. She is past 60, many years Miss Murray's senior, but the stranger would never guess it. Whenever I see Miss Ward—and that is every time I'm out after dark—I have an urge to hunt up a shovel and pail and romp her off to a sand pile.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

There's a lot of loose talk flying around.

Everywhere you hear it. Maggie gossiping to Mamie over the phone . . . Jim giving the low down to John in the washroom or the smoking car. Saying there's going to be trouble. Saying, "We've got to stop those cut-throat capitalists from taking the bread out of a poor man's mouth." Saying this country is going to the dogs.

And it's all tommyrot.

A starved Chinese coolie might be excused for talking like that, or a stupid Russian peasant whose mind has been warped by cruel tyranny. But there is no excuse for any American citizen, with a decent public school education and the memory of decent American wages behind him, talking like that.

Hard times? Of course we're having them. So's the whole world having them. That's why we're having them.

This thing didn't start in America. Depression hasn't arisen because there's something wrong with our cotton fields, our textile mills, our steel works, coal mines, automobile factories. It has come because THERE IS SOMETHING WRONG WITH THE WORLD.

It began about 50,000,000 years ago when cussed human nature first started and it will continue at least 50,000,000 years more, until man really grows up and gets dry behind the ears.

The government isn't responsible. Capital isn't responsible. Nor Wall street. Nor the bankers. Nor Messrs. Mussolini and Stalin. Nor the English, French and German governments.

THE WHOLE DUMB HUMAN RACE IS RESPONSIBLE. We're all in a jam together.

But we Americans have been in plenty of jams before. And got out of them. We can get out of this one, too, if we'll keep cool, use our heads and face facts. And the first fact is—

THERE ISN'T GOING TO BE ANY SERIOUS TROUBLE IN THIS COUNTRY. For the simple reason that there's no excuse to start trouble.

How can we rebel against a government that we made ourselves and run ourselves?

How can we shoot a king when there isn't any king to shoot? How can we massacre aristocrats when there aren't any aristocrats but you and I? Why call a man a "cut-throat capitalist" when he got his start selling papers on street corners just as you're doing now? Why bomb his store if you know darned well (and you DO know darned well) that you would have done exactly as he has done?

Uprising? My eye! Be your age!

We're going to have a hard winter . . . an irritating winter . . . an upset winter. That's inevitable. No one will escape the pressure of this winter . . . rich man, poor man, beggar man and bootlegger—we'll all have to take the rap. We'll all have to put our hands in our pockets—or our pride. But, for the luvva Mike, let's do it with good nature and horse sense.

Let's keep our heads and our sense of humor. We're not a bunch of half baked, hysterical peasants. We're solid, sensible, well educated Americans—living in a land where the breaks are better for the common man than they are anywhere else on earth. We've all had good wages in the past. We'll all have them again in the future . . . IF WE STAND STEADY NOW.

And if we don't stand steady? If we insist on saying that this nation is a flop and a failure—then what?

THEN WE'RE TRAITORS AND NOTHING BUT! AS ACTUAL TRAITORS AS THOUGH WE DESERTED IN WAR TIME AND SOLD OUR COUNTRY OUT TO FOREIGN SPIES.

For this is war time. And there are foreign spies within our lines. Indeed, the whole world is spying on us now . . . watching our democratic experiment with stealthy, speculating eyes. Once those eyes were envious—envious of our prosperity, our progress, our brotherly friendliness. Now they are openly sneering, openly scheming.

And who's responsible?

YOU AND I ARE RESPONSIBLE. YOU AND I, WITH OUR LOOSE TALK.

We're not a perfect nation. There are institutions and ideas in other nations which we might call copy. But we were founded on a noble dream—on the finest vision that has ever inspired any people. And we can make that dream come true some day if we'll all work together and have faith. FAITH IN THAT DREAM . . . FAITH IN OURSELVES. But we'll never make it come true if we undermine it with doubt and fear and stupid, malicious gossip.

So let's cut out this loose talk. Today. We made this government. It doesn't belong to kings or plutocrats. It belongs to us . . . THE WORKING PEOPLE OF AMERICA. Then, for the sake of our own profit, pleasure, pride and peace of mind—

LET'S STOP KNOCKING OURSELVES.

(Copyright, 1931, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Isn't It So?

Practice makes perfect in nearly everything except talk.

It is much easier to get into trouble than it is to get out.

A man gives himself away who finds it necessary to boast of his honesty.

Public opinion is any opinion that is accepted without private examination.

Only God can make a tree, but any careless motorist can wreck an expensive car against it.

Donnybrook-Kilkenny In Washington

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Under the great dome of the Capitol in Washington the chosen representatives of the people have assembled, and the day before the gavel fell we were interested in the speculations of those whose party has been repudiated by the people. Mark Sullivan is an important correspondent, because his intimacy with the President reflects the Presidential hopes and plans. Clearly we are to hear much about the desirability of a "coalition" government, of that "co-operation" which experience has shown means, in the mind of Mr. Hoover, the subserviency of the Democrats to the presidential policies that so signally have failed to appeal to the judgment of the people. The issues, of course, will be economic, but we would no more expect the two parties to entertain the same views on all the economic problems than we would have expected Woodrow Wilson and Nelson Aldrich to have agreed upon them.

* * *

Thinks Administration Hopes for Disruption

The evidently desperate hope of the administration is that the Democrats will fly at one another's throats on non-essentials and kill their own fair prospects. Mr. Sullivan is rather distressed about it. He thinks that "maybe" they will be harmonious. He evokes the memories of the convention of 1924. He is sure they are going to split because of sectional differences—they, of the only party that is not purely sectional. They have agreed in perfect harmony to a speaker from the South and a leader from the North, but that does not calm the fears of the administration circle. And Mr. Sullivan is alarmed lest the Democrats disagree on prohibition; forgetting conveniently that the Republicans are not in agreement on it. And he informs us of something we did not know, that the public "tends to think the Democrats are rather given the chaos, to Donnybrook fairs and Kilkenny noises." This based, no doubt, upon the strong, sane, constructive and harmonious manner in which the Democrats, under the leadership of Clark and Underwood, managed the House under similar conditions.

* * *

Republicans Fail To See Alike

All these lugubrious lamentations of the administration camp at first were puzzling, until in the same issue of the Herald Tribune we turned to the forecasts of the session from Senator Fess, one of the field marshals of the President, and from Senator Nye, representing the Republican insurgents. And then we saw that it was a "stop thief" hue and cry in the hope of diverting attention from the unfortunate dissensions in the administration camp.

Senator Fess, running true to administration form, devotes much of his article to the dreadful conditions across the sea. Senator Nye confines himself, as an American Senator, to the dreadful conditions here at home.

The two men are unable to see alike on what the administration has done to prevent human misery and starvation. Thus Senator Fess tells us:

"The spiritual and material strength of our people have been marshaled and funds are being gathered locally throughout the country to prevent starvation this winter."

This, of course, is nothing that the administration, the people's national government, is doing. Senator Nye does not share in his colleague's bland satisfaction. On the contrary, he says:

"The federal government has merely touched the hem or fringe of the unemployment situation with a totally inadequate relief program, a mere pittance. What is needed and what will be proposed by progressives is a building and constructive program of sufficient magnitude. The duty of a national government is to meet a national crisis in a national way with the power of the nation, instead of running from its duty."

And there is more than a touch of Donnybrook fair in that!

* * *

Kilkenny Battle On Tariff Issues

Then Senator Fess, turning his back on realities, remembering the political economy of Pig Iron Kelley's book of speeches, ignoring the common comment of business men and bankers of his own political persuasion that the tariff is wrecking our foreign trade and ruining our prospects of recovery, says with a brave smile:

"Administration leaders will not waver on the tariff despite demands for 'tariff revision' and 'tariff modification.'"

And Senator Nye, swinging a blackthorn with all the facility and felicity of a Donnybrook playboy, says:

"Already there is an invisible but extortionate tax in the form of an indefensibly high tariff. It was handed to the country with the assurance that it would 'protect the American workingman' and increase or maintain prosperity. The result we know . . . Progressives propose reduction of excessive tariff rates."

And there is the suggestion of a Kilkenny battle in that, too!

Views of Leaders Differ Radically

The point of view of these two Republicans, representing a distinct and deep cleavage in the President's party, is fundamentally opposed. Thus Senator Fess rhapsodizes on the "prosperity" and sound conditions that have been brought about by the policies of his party for many years. This all seems out of place to Senator Nye, who says:

"Reputable economists have estimated that 8 per cent of our population own 75 per cent of the national wealth. They have stated that 80,000,000 of our population of 125,000,000 have an income of less than $700 a year. Progressives believe that the first duty of government is concerned with the welfare of those 80,000,000 and of millions more who lack economic security."

Could any two views be more remote from one another?

Isn't there more than a suggestion of Donnybrook and Kilkenny here?

* * *

Should Seek Harmony In Their Own Party

Kind as it is for the supporters of Mr. Hoover to feel distress over the differences among Democrats, and generous as it is to suggest grounds on which they may do battle with one another in the interest of the re-election of Mr. Hoover, it does seem that all their powers of persuasion might better be expended in trying to harmonize the Fesses and the Nyes.

There will be more Democratic harmony in the House than there will be Republican harmony in the Senate.

And, after all, it was a Republican not a Democratic Senator who publicly informed the President that an announcement that he does not choose to run would earn him the gratitude of the rank and file of his party.

* * *

Consult Common Sense And Not Common Enemy

There have been times when Democrats of the Miss Nancy and Sister Sue variety have given more prayerful consideration to the advice of the opposition press than to that of Democrats who stand four-square on the fundamentals; and always, then, the Democracy has been smashed to smithereens—as it deserved to be.

If these Democrats have learned their lesson they will take counsel of their common sense and not of their common enemy.

And if they do, they will subordinate all minor differences to present a united front; for while there is little they can accomplish with the House alone, the Senate and the President against them, they can and should by their solidity and sobriety convince an harassed nation that something sane and constructive can be expected of them when they are given a full mandate from the people.
